the people we serve...

who

were crushed by cancer
but greet every new day with a smile

care for the special needs of their child and answer to a higher calling fought for our country and came home to a different battle

lost everything in a home fire but have vowed never to give up

share what they have with their housebound senior neighbors

are fighting to become a future leader in our community

Erma Waterford

She is a caretaker. Her smile and zest for life belies the hurdles she overcame to serve her family and others. A mother of three, Erma lost a 21-year-old son. She raised and provided for his children and continues to take care of her special needs daughter. A vivacious 62 years old, she works as a paraprofessional for special needs adults while battling breast cancer.

Carol & Elisa

Southwest Detroit

Carol lost her husband in the past year and has been left to raise her three daughters alone. Her daughter Elisa suffers from heart defects that strap the family budget. This year, Elisa will undergo yet another operation to replace a faulty heart valve. Carol works as a Youth Coordinator for the after school program at Latino Family Services in Detroit.

A.C.

Michigan Veterans Foundation

He is a patriot, but like so many others who bravely served our country, he would never describe himself as such. A.C. dedicated his youth to two tours in Vietnam at the height of the war. Proud of his service, he lives with his comrades in arms at the Michigan Veterans Foundation Detroit Veterans Center.

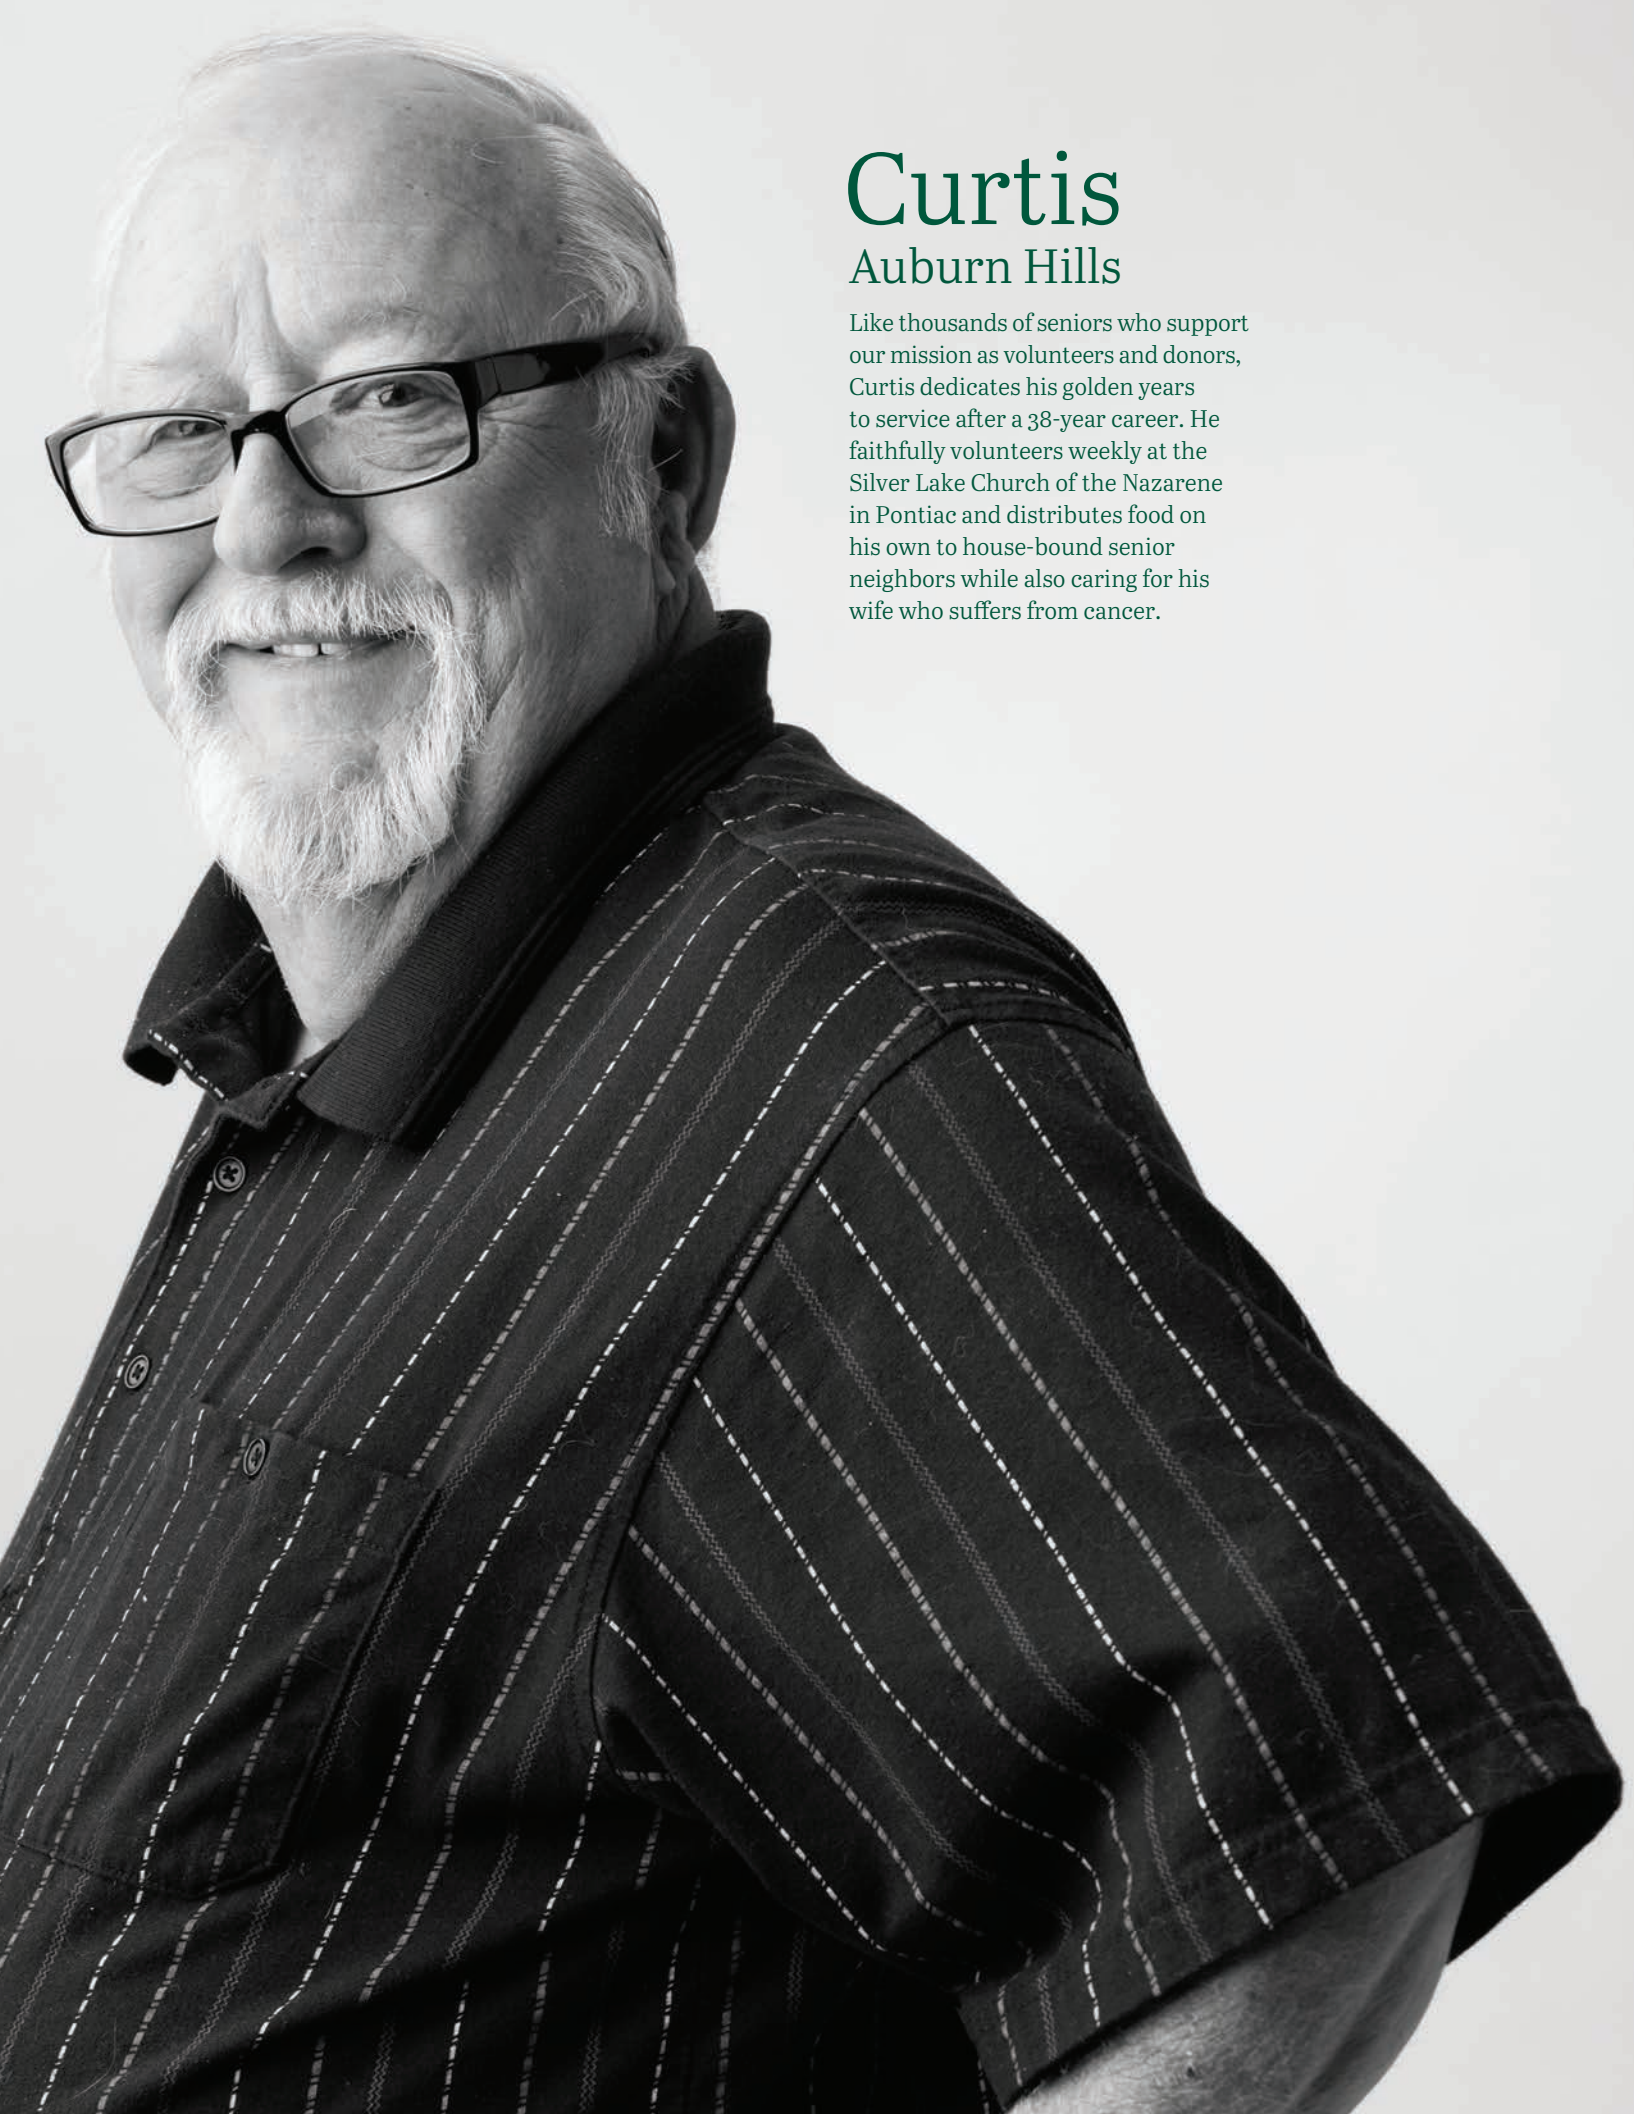

Fisher Family

Chesterfield Township

Resolved to persevere, the Fisher family slipped from a comfortable middle class life to a daily battle for survival. Rich, who prided himself as dad and breadwinner for the family, suffered a massive stroke that left the family penniless and him disabled. The family fought back, only to suffer the loss of their home and possessions to fire this year.

Curtis

Auburn Hills

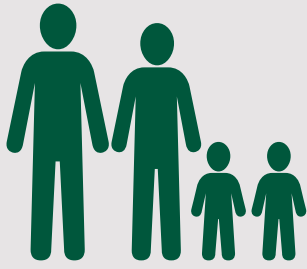

Like thousands of seniors who support our mission as volunteers and donors, Curtis dedicates his golden years to service after a 38-year career. He faithfully volunteers weekly at the Silver Lake Church of the Nazarene in Pontiac and distributes food on his own to house-bound senior neighbors while also caring for his wife who suffers from cancer.

Eyainna

Detroit

She has a goal in life. Eyainna wants to lead a gym and academic center for kids in Detroit who need the academic support and guidance that she receives at the Downtown Boxing Gym. Her mom serves as a cook at the gym making certain our kids get the good, healthy food they deserve that will power them to become future leaders of our community.

ANNUAL INCOME

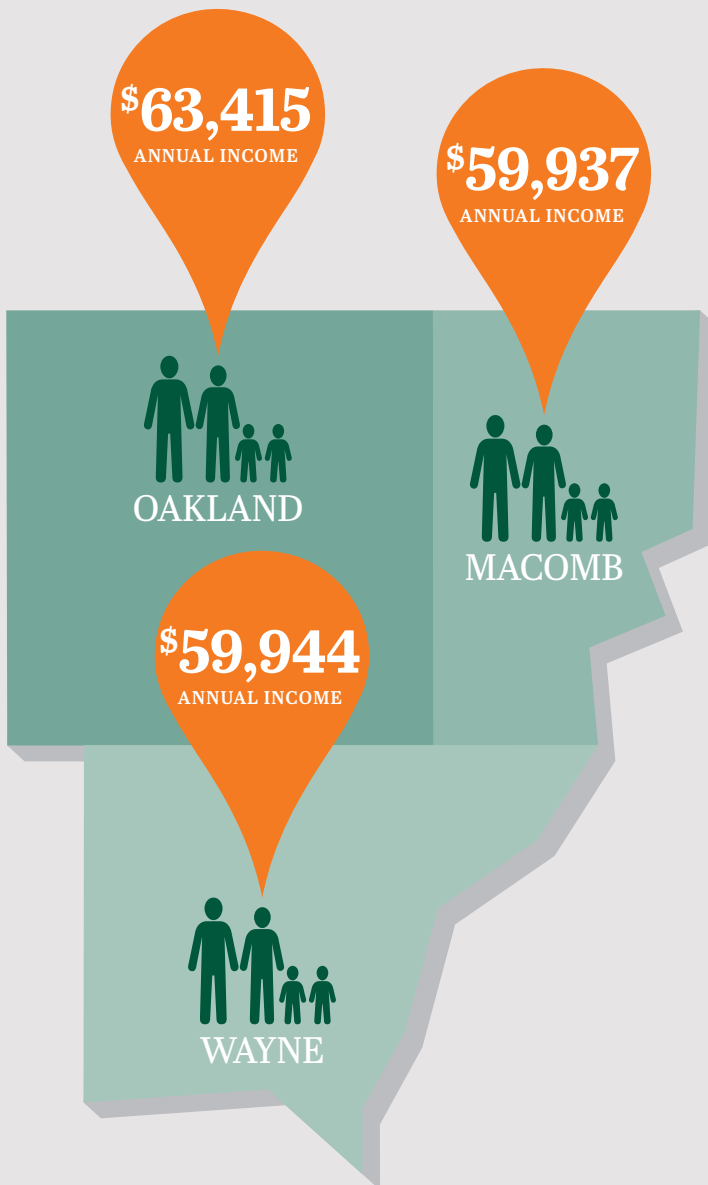

The Income Gap

A comprehensive study, commissioned by the Food Bank Council of Michigan and entitled The Self-Sufficiency Standard For Michigan 2017, dramatically demonstrates the disparity between the federal poverty guidelines, which serve as the standard definition of poverty for households and individuals, versus the minimum income required today to pay for basic needs like food, rent, transportation, childcare and healthcare. The study reports that a significant portion of the population falls into an income gap between the federal definition of poverty and the minimum income necessary to meet basic expenses. Many of these people are food insecure or need emergency food at points throughout the year.

The Self-Sufficiency Standard For Michigan Report

A New Yardstick to Address Food Insecurity

Armed with this Self-Sufficiency Study and the *Food Insecurity Index and using grant funds awarded by The Kresge Foundation to Forgotten Harvest, we intend to facilitate a comprehensive picture of the need for food in metro Detroit.

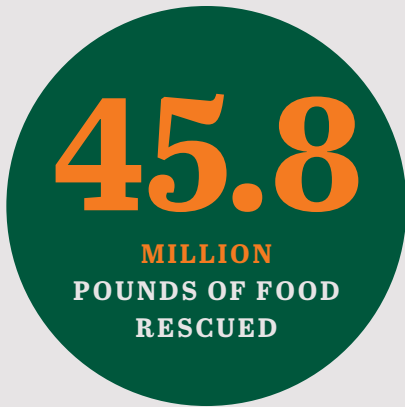

This year we initiated an assessment that will encompass each of our 250 Forgotten Harvest partner agencies. This agency-by-agency survey will enable us to measure the numbers of people we serve, offer insight to their needs and identify underserved geographic locations in metro Detroit. Nine underserved locations have already been identified through the work this year.

Our work will continue throughout the upcoming fiscal year and help us to define a long-term strategic course of action, refine our innovative rescue model and quantify the resources that will be required to end the scourge of food insecurity in our community.

[†]Household income required to meet basic expenses like food, rent, transportation, child care, and health care. The Self-Sufficiency Standard For Michigan 2017 was researched by the Center For Women's Welfare, University of Washington School of Social Work.

Our Mission

We are dedicated to relieving hunger and preventing nutritious food waste.

We dedicate our 2016-2017 annual report to the thousands of courageous people we serve every day in metro Detroit. Their resolve to make their way through life despite confronting enormous obstacles both humbles and inspires us.

The six clients and their families featured in our report have stepped forward to tell their stories in the hope that others in similar circumstances will benefit from their testimony and your generosity. They asked for nothing in return. Their stories are mirrored by thousands of people throughout our community.

Nearly one in six people in our service area live in poverty according to federal guidelines. For a family of four, poverty is defined as an income at or below $24,600.

Today, many metro Detroit families are struggling to stretch wages to meet the cost of basic life necessities. Though they are not deemed “poor” by the official measure of poverty, they simply lack enough income to meet the rising cost of living. The Self-Sufficiency Study cited in this report offers a realistic assessment of the income required to survive in today’s economy and a sense of the challenges clients who receive our food confront daily.

Our food helps bridge an income gap for thousands of people allowing them to meet other basic needs, like housing, transportation, health care and child care while maintaining a sense of pride and security for their families.

We continue forward, driven by the courage of the people we serve, your continued generosity and the confidence that one day we will eliminate food insecurity.

Our Sincere Thanks
