Callum's 'school' day

Callum Ferguson isn't a normal student. He's fourteen and he doesn't go to school. His mother teaches him and his sister, Jean, at home. Their lessons start at nine o'clock and they have lunch at half past twelve. Their school day finishes at half past three and they normally do forty-five minutes of homework every day.

They study history, geography, maths, English, French, science and they revise for the same exams as their friends at school. But at home they also study extra subjects like graphic design and food technology. Another tutor, Mr Gregory, teaches them music and art. Callum's favourite subject is geography. He starts a new project every month. Jean prefers maths. They can't do P.E. at home so they go to the sports centre in the evenings.

Callum enjoys his lessons at home. He doesn't have to get up early or wear a uniform. His mother is a good teacher because teachers in normal schools don't have much time with each student. He doesn't miss his friends because he sees them a lot in the evenings and at weekends.

1 Why are Callum and Jean different from other students?

2 When do their lessons start and finish?

3 Which extra subjects do they study?

4 Who teaches them art and music?

5 How often does Callum start a new geography project?

6 Which subject can't they do at home?

Student life

My name is Becky. I'm a student at university. I live in a house in Birmingham with three other students – Tom, Alice and Mike.

My brother doesn't go to university. He's still at school, and he lives at home with our mum and dad. My family lives in Coventry, and I sometimes visit them at the weekend. I usually go to my university every day but sometimes I study in the library.

I like living in our house. It's very noisy and our friends often visit us in the evening. Tom likes cooking, so he often makes dinner in the evening. Mike doesn't like cooking but he sometimes does the shopping. They both hate tidying the house, so Alice and I usually do it!

Language school

Michelle and David are French. They live in Lyon, but at the moment they're doing an English language course in Cambridge. They're staying in Cambridge for two weeks and they're living with an English family. It's good because they speak English at home every day with the mother and father and the two daughters. They go to the language school every morning. They have English lessons from half past nine to twelve o'clock. They study with a lot of people from other countries so it's very interesting. In the afternoon they go on trips or they do activities. Sometimes they play badminton at the sports centre.

Today they're visiting Windsor Castle to learn about its history. In the evening they're going to the cinema. At the weekend, they're going to London. They're going to do a tour of the city. They want to see Buckingham Palace and Big Ben. After the tour, Michelle is spending the rest of the morning in Covent Garden and David is going to Virgin Megastore to buy some DVDs. In the afternoon they're visiting the London Eye.

Michelle and David are really enjoying their trip to Cambridge. They're learning English and they're having fun too.

Franco's holiday

Franco is from Florence in Italy. He works in a bank. Every morning at 7.30 a.m. he goes to work on the bus and he returns at 6.30 p.m. He usually has lunch in a café near the bank.

At the moment, Franco isn't in Italy. He's in South America. This month he's travelling around Brazil with his friend Mario. They're staying in a small camp in the rainforest. Franco likes taking photographs of the rainforest. He's got a very expensive camera. His friend Mario likes studying insects! He thinks that they are fascinating.

Yesterday, they stayed in a tent in the rainforest. It rained all night! They didn't sleep much because it was very noisy. In the morning all their things were wet. Today they visited a tribe living in the forest and Franco took lots of photos. Mario helped them to hunt. They looked for birds, small animals and insects.

They're staying in the camp for one more night and then they're returning to Brasilia on Monday to do some sightseeing. Franco and

Mario enjoyed staying in the rainforest, but they don't want to live there!
