Overviews

At LinkedIn, one of our core values is “Relationships Matter,” which speaks to the trust we strive to foster with our colleagues and partners. Establishing and maintaining that trust is integral to our success; that’s why we have created this Global Data Privacy Notice. It’s meant to promote transparency around the way in which we handle personal information about LinkedIn employees and job applicants.

In this Notice, we’ll describe:

- The kinds of personal information we collect and process
- The reasons why we collect this information
- Your rights.

This Notice covers all individuals applying for employment at LinkedIn, including applications for all types of contingent and non-permanent positions like:

- Agents
- Independent contractors

- Consultants
- Temporary contract workers
- Professional advisors
- Interns

Key Terms You Should Know

Before reading on, it might be helpful to familiarize yourself with a few key terms we use in this Notice. These terms have a specific meaning under the law and we want to be transparent with you about what they mean in plain language. We've capitalized these terms throughout the document to make them easy to spot.

When we say...	We mean...
“LinkedIn,” “we” or “us”	LinkedIn
“LinkedIn Group”	LinkedIn Corporation and its parent company, Microsoft Corporation, subsidiaries and affiliates
“Notice”	This Global Data Privacy Notice
“You”	Individuals applying for employment or contingent roles at LinkedIn
“Personal information”	Any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person
“Data Controller”	A person or organization which, alone or jointly with others, determines the purposes and means of the processing of Personal Information. Annex A includes a list of LinkedIn group companies that serve as data controllers.

Please keep in mind that this Notice covers the handling of your Personal Information as a job candidate. It doesn't cover your use of LinkedIn products or services as a member or visitor. To learn more about our data collection practices in our products, please see the specific privacy policies linked to those products and services.

What Kind of Personal Information Do We Collect?

During the application, recruitment, and onboarding process at LinkedIn, we may process Personal Information about you including, but not limited to the examples listed in the table below:

Type of Personal Information	Examples
Identification data	Name, photograph, gender, date of birth

Contact details	Address, telephone, email address
Education and employment background	Academic and professional qualifications, CV/résumé and/or LinkedIn profile & connections, transcripts and employment references.
Job application information	Role(s) for which you are applying, your job application and related documentation/communications, cover letters, scores and information from assessments and interviews, compensation/benefits requests, relocation information, and any other information you provide to us in support of and during the recruitment process
National identifiers	National ID/passport, immigration status, work authorizations, visas, social security numbers
Previous applications/roles	Information relating to previous applications you have made to LinkedIn and/or any previous employment with the LinkedIn Group.
Financial information	Bank account details, tax information, salary, benefits, expenses, company allowances

In addition, we may collect publicly available information about you from third parties or other sources on an as-needed basis. For example, before and during the course of your employment or assignment with LinkedIn, we may collect information from social media sources (including your LinkedIn profile) for recruitment and other employment purposes.

Also, as we explain during the recruitment process, LinkedIn engages a third-party vendor for background screenings. This helps us verify information about your past education, employment, and your credit and/or criminal history, where laws allow. In addition, if there is an investigation of an employee matter, we may obtain information about the incident from external sources including private parties, law enforcement, or public news sources.

Please keep in mind that you have a personal responsibility to obtain consent from your references before you provide their Personal Information to LinkedIn.

Sensitive Personal Information

Certain kinds of Personal Information require a higher level of protection. This type of Personal Information is known as “Sensitive Personal Information,” and it includes characteristics that are protected by law. If we have a reason to collect Sensitive Personal Information from you, we will specifically ask you for it and tell you how it will be used. LinkedIn’s use of Sensitive Personal Information varies by region and country. Please be assured that in all cases, we will handle your Sensitive Personal Information with care and in line with the laws that govern it just as we do all Personal Information.

To help LinkedIn foster a more diverse and inclusive workplace, we may request limited Sensitive Personal Information from you, like your racial or ethnic origin, your gender, sexual orientation or identity, and any disabilities you may have. Providing this information to LinkedIn is completely voluntary, meaning you don’t have to provide it if you would prefer not to, and you won't suffer any negative consequences if you decide not to share it with us. If you do choose to provide this information, we will use it to:

- Strengthen our Diversity, Inclusion & Belonging (DIBs) initiatives
- Comply with anti-discrimination laws and meet our government reporting obligations
- Help ensure equal employment opportunities at LinkedIn
- Provide accommodations during the recruiting process.

Why Do We Collect Your Personal Information?

We collect and use your Personal Information primarily for recruitment purposes. In particular, we use this information to determine your qualifications for employment or a temporary assignment, and to help us reach a hiring decision. This means, in part, that we need to:

- Assess your skills, qualifications, background for a particular position
- Communicate with you during the recruitment process;
- Verify your information and carry out reference or background checks (where applicable)
- Make the needed arrangements for your future employment
- Generally manage and improve our recruitment and hiring processes here at LinkedIn.

Keep in mind that we may also use your Personal Information to comply with the laws and regulations that apply to our business, or to protect the rights and interests of LinkedIn, our users, employees, applicants, and others, where required or permitted by law.

Additionally, LinkedIn may use Personal Information for workforce planning and diversity initiatives to help make LinkedIn a better place to work. In these cases, we will always handle your Personal Information with care and in line with the laws that govern it.

If you accept a job with LinkedIn, the information we collect will be included as part of your ongoing employment or contingent workforce record. If you don't receive or accept a job offer from LinkedIn, we may still keep your application for a limited time period to consider you for future openings you might be well suited for. If you would prefer that LinkedIn not keep your application on file, you can request that your data be deleted.

Who Do We Share Your Personal Information With?

There are a number of situations where we might need to disclose your personal information with others. These include:

Disclosures to subsidiaries and other group companies

We may share your Personal Information with other members of the LinkedIn Group around the world in connection with our recruitment process, or as otherwise outlined above. This includes our affiliates, our parent company Microsoft, and any of our subsidiary companies.

Disclosures to third party agents and service providers

In addition, we make certain Personal Information available to third parties who provide services to us. We do so on a "need-to-know" basis, and in line with our contractual provisions and applicable data privacy laws. For example, we currently use Jobvite for recruitment software services, and therefore need to share some Personal Information with them.

Also, some Personal Information will be available to our employee benefit plans service providers and third-party companies, such as those that provide payroll support services, verification/background checking services, or relocation support services. The specific service providers we use may change over time, but our commitment to using trusted vendors will not.

We will always work with third parties who will handle your Personal Information in a way that aligns with this Notice and applicable law.

Disclosures to other third parties

We may also disclose Personal Information to other third parties, in an effort to:

- Comply with our legal obligations, regulations or contracts
- Respond to a court order, administrative or judicial process, such as a subpoena or search warrant
- Respond to lawful requests by public authorities (such as law enforcement)
- Establish, exercise or defend against potential, threatened or actual litigation, as needed
- Protect LinkedIn, your vital interests, or those of another person
- Sell, assign, or transfer of all or part of our business
- Fulfill other legitimate business purposes with your consent.

Does LinkedIn Transfer Personal Information Abroad?

Yes. Because we operate at a global level, LinkedIn may need to transfer Personal Information to countries outside of where it was originally collected. When we export your Personal Information to a different country, we take great care to ensure that it is handled carefully and in line with applicable laws.

How Long Does LinkedIn Keep My Personal Information?

Personal Information is stored only as long as it's needed to match you with prospective employment or assignment opportunities, as required by law, regulation, our data retention policies, other legitimate business interests including the reasons we outline in this Notice.

If you do not want us to retain your data, please contact us directly. Keep in mind however, we may need to retain the information if we're required to do so by law. In addition, if you become an employee of a LinkedIn Group company, this information will become part of your employment record.

How Does LinkedIn Keep My Personal Information Safe?

At LinkedIn, we have a responsibility to keep your personal information safe and secure—and we take that responsibility very seriously. First, we limit those who have access to your information to those who have a legitimate business reason for using it. Then depending upon the type and form of Personal Information, we manage it according to our data handling policies and procedures to help ensure it's transferred, processed, and stored with the proper safeguards in place.

What Are My Rights Relating to My Personal Information?

In some regions (like Europe), you have certain rights under applicable data protection laws. These include the right to:

- Request access and obtain a copy of your Personal Information
- Request that your Personal Information be corrected, amended, or erased if it's inaccurate, has been processed in violation of data protection laws or for a number of other reasons specified by applicable law
- Restrict processing of your Personal Information
- Data portability, where applicable.

In certain circumstances, you may also have the right to object to having your Personal Information processed.

Where we have relied on your consent to process your Personal Information, you have the right to withdraw your consent at any time. However, this will not affect the lawfulness of any processing before the withdrawal of your consent.

To make this kind of request, please use the contact details listed at the end of this Notice. We will consider and act upon any requests in accordance with applicable data protection laws.

You also have the right to refer any complaints to your local data protection authority.

How Often Does LinkedIn Update this Notice?

It's important to us to be transparent about any changes in our privacy practices, so we will update this Notice on an as-needed basis. If we make any changes that materially affect your privacy rights, we'll make a prominent note at the top of this Notice so you know when it was most recently updated. We encourage you to check back periodically to ensure you've seen the most up-to-date version of this Notice.

Questions or Concerns? Contact Us!

We've tried to make this Notice easy for you to read and understand in full, but there are a lot of details to cover. It's a lot to take in! But the key takeaway is this: we respect your privacy rights and are committed to handling your personal information responsibly and in line with the laws that apply to our work.

In keeping with LinkedIn's Open, Honest and Constructive culture, you are encouraged to ask questions or raise concerns whenever they come up. If you run into an accessibility issue with our Notice, please reach out to a11y\_compliance@linkedin.com. If you'd like more information or have concerns related to this Notice and LinkedIn's privacy practices, please reach out to:

EU-Resident Job Candidates LinkedIn Global Data Privacy Notice

Specific data protection laws in the European Union, including the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), require that we give our European candidates some more detailed information. We wanted to share that with you here. As mentioned in the Notice, if you have any questions, please contact us.

What is the Legal Basis for Processing Personal Information?

Our legal basis for collecting and using your Personal Information will depend on the Personal Information involved and the context in which we collect it.

We will normally collect Personal Information from you only where:

- you are considered for employment, to take steps to enter into an employment contract with you;
- we need the Personal Information to comply with our legal obligations or exercise rights in the field of employment;
- we have your consent to do so; or
- LinkedIn's use of the data is expected and a legitimate use of your data in light of your privacy rights.

In some cases, we may need the Personal Information to protect your vital interests or those of another person. For example, we may need to share your Personal Information with third parties in the event of an emergency.

If we ask you to provide Personal Information to comply with a legal requirement or to enter into a contract, we will make this request clear at the relevant time. We will also let you know whether providing your Personal Information is required or not, and explain to you the possible consequences if you do not provide it.

Similarly, if we collect and use your Personal Information based on it being an expected and legitimate use, we will explain this to you.

If you have questions about or need further information concerning the legal basis on which we collect and use your Personal Information, please contact us using the contact details provided in this Notice.

Is There Any Automated Decision-Making?

Yes. In limited instances, our use of your Personal Information may result in automated decisions being taken that have a legal or similarly significant effect on you in connection with your applications for employment with us. "Automated decision" means that a decision concerning you is made automatically on the basis of a computer determination (using software algorithms), without human review. For example, we use tools to sift out candidates who do not meet essential minimum criteria for a role by comparing data points from your profile, application and/or assessment scores. We have implemented measures to safeguard the rights and interests of individuals whose personal information is subject to automated decision-making which includes evaluating and minimizing the opportunity for bias in the process. When we make an automated decision about you, you have the right to contest the decision, to express your point of view, and to require a meaningful human review of the decision. In a situation where we use automated decision-making, we will tell you how to contact us to request human review of the decision. You also can contact us using the details provided in this Notice.

You also have the right to refer any complaints to the data protection authority. The contact details are as follows:
