

2019 September Celestial Timings

by Cayelin K Castell

September begins with Mercury (7 Virgo), Sun and Mars (9 Virgo) and Venus (14 Virgo) inspiring me to share this powerful invocation that comes from Mary - Keeper of the Hovenweep Medicine Wheel as described in Drunvalo Melchizedek's book Serpent of Light - Beyond 2012 - The Movement of the Earth's Kundalini and the Rise of the Female Light, 1949 to 2013.

If you feel resonance with this invocation speak it with intention whenever planets are in Virgo.

The Weaving

We stand here, surrounded by the sacred mountains, at the sipapu, where our world began.

We come from the four corners of this Earth, walking in love, bringing our knowledge of many cultures, many languages.

Seeking understanding, growth and change, for ourselves, our nations, our world.

This is our Intention!

Here at this time we create a new world, we weave a new reality!

We pray for assistance and request witness, from the sacred energies of our world!

Air: Winds of the 4 directions, winds that move the stars

Water: Rain, rivers, springs

Fire: Our Sun, lightning that dances on the sky

Earth: Our mother, her sand, her cliffs, her mountains

Our Brothers: The four legs, the winged ones, water children, and those that creep and crawl

Our Sisters: The standing people, from mighty tree to smallest flower

Our Own Human Race: From our ancestors, who first walked the land, to our children's children, seven generations distant, most of all we call upon

Ourselves: here and now to witness and take action...

We are here to create a weaving of a new reality.

In any weaving, beauty is created by the warp, weft, and the pattern.

We bring: For the foundation the warp thread, Human Energy, the experiences of diverse cultures.

*Strength and pride from our societies, our families,
History, our struggle to manifest our own path.*

*These we braid together and string on our loom to form the warp, the shape of our weaving.
Onto this we weave the weft of our daily journey, the thread of beauty, spun one moment at a time with each step of integrity,
as our actions spin time into history.*

And the Pattern?

The pattern that will call the rest of humanity into understanding and changing?

This Pattern is formed by our teachers and by our intention.

We set our intention to manifest a world where every spirit, human, animal, plant and mineral, walks in harmony and balanced health and joy.

We ask our teachers to guide us to actions that flow into this intention.

We seek to manifest that divinity within ourselves that will create this new reality.

This is our time.

We are called.

Together we will weave a new world!

Aho! Blessed Be and So It IS!

As September Progresses: Mercury is the first to leave the Virgo line up on September 14 and Venus follows a few hours later that day. The Sun follows on September 23 as it crosses into 0 Libra marking the exact Equinox and Mars leaves October 4. So we have 4 planets in Virgo for the first two weeks of September magnifying and illuminating the Virgo mysteries. These mysteries are beautifully expressed in the above invocation. If this invocation resonates with you - I suggest you use it every day for the first two weeks of September and together we will weave a New Earth.

MORE on the Virgo Mysteries

There is a woman who weaves the Night Sky
See what she spins how her fingers fly
She in within us beginning to End
Our Sister, Grandmother and Friend
She is the Weaver and we are the Web
She is the Needle, we are the Thread...
She Changes everything she Touches and Everything she touches Changes

The mysteries of Spider Woman who weaves the web and attunes to the natural cycles and rhythms of the Earth and Sky are primary to the mysteries of the Virgo Archetype. Or said another way this is the archetypal Medicine Woman and/or High Priestess (meaning high vibration) who honors and continually weaves balance through the sacred rhythms of Earth and Sky.

This is always true but especially true when all four of the inner planets are in Virgo reminding us of the importance of actively engaging in Living Ceremony or living life as ceremony with deep reverent gratitude and for the opportunity to continually weave greater harmony and coherence into our personal lives and thus the greater collective web of life.

The Norns

Spider Woman is a Native American imagery, also connects to the Greeks and other cultures and is reflected in the mythic concept of the Norns that comes from Norse Mythology. The three Norns are also weavers of the web of life.

In Norse mythology the web, or pattern of life, was known as 'wyrd' an Anglo-Saxo word for the unseen influences that create our reality. The weavers of this wyrd (or web) were the Norns - Urd, Verdandi and Skuld - loosely associated with past, present and future respectively.

Urd or the guardian of a bottomless well symbolizes the primal source of all unmanifest potential that creation arises from and then returns too, similar to the idea of the field of all possibilities where everything and anything exists before manifesting into this life. Urd is credited with being the weaver of the past.

Verdandi is what is manifesting in the present moment or coming into being now based on past actions that also recognizes that our current actions help determine our future.

Skuld is translated as "should", meaning that most of what is to come is based on what has been or what has already happened. Another perspective is, if you plant seeds – you "should" reap plants that coincide with what you planted. However, that also depends on having the right soil, water, and sunlight and supportive weather including rain to nourish the seeds. Destructive weather such as tornados, floods, drought, insect infestations or something else that might destroy the crops affect the outcome. What "should" be comes from surmising what "should" happen based on prior events, but that is not a guarantee. We don't always have control over those bigger factors but we do have control over how we respond to them so in that sense our present is helping to weave future possibilities. In the simplest form Skuld is seen as the weaver of the future.

In the realm of Wyrd: Urd describes what we can't see or perceive. It is unmanifest potential.

Verdani is what we can see and experience directly as it is what is manifesting now.

And Skuld is the future that we anticipate through logic, intuition and divination.

These are the strands, or weavings, of the Wyrd (the Web) that connect us all. We influence the web and the web influences us. Everything everyone does affects everything and everyone within the web of life throughout all timelines and parallel realities. We often do NOT realize the potent ripple affect our actions have in the greater reality.

These threads weave the intricate patterns and timelines that are constantly shifting and changing as new patterns are being woven based on our conscious participation with what is unfolding. The intersection of timelines (imagine the threads of the web intersecting) means our future is not set and we have choice points where we can jump into a new pattern and become an intricate part of a weaving that we are even more consciously choosing. This also means we can positively influence all other timelines as they too are evolving toward the ONE.

Our Current Reality, The Great Hack, Choosing From Love or Fear?

Have you seen the movie The Great Hack on Netflix? It is very illuminating and worth seeing for those who choose to be more aware of how we are being influenced – especially politically.

It seems this moving is inspiring many to leave Facebook or other Social Media Platforms. I get it! It is scary and infuriating to think there are others out there purposely doing their best to influence what we do. AND honestly that has been going on for centuries.

Think about the religious traditions that influenced people to fear anyone they considered to be evil – burning so-called witches at the stake. Think about the influence of those in power that has disconnected humanity from a deep and loving relationship with the Earth. Think about the political and social influences that have divided people by race, religion, economic status, and gender etc. Think about the Us versus Them or We are RIGHT and They are WRONG mentality that has fueled centuries and centuries of war and fear.

This is NOT a new phenomenon. Think about the influence of Newspaper, Radio and Television ads designed to influence what you think, what you do and what you purchase. This has been going on since these things have been in existence. With the coming of the internet the tools to influence us have become more sophisticated but it is certainly nothing new. In fact, we are also learning how our phones and devices we are putting in our homes are also listening in on our conversations supposedly to better serve us but really the bottom line is to influence our choices.

Growing up I was aware of advertising and how it was designed to influence us. In my teens and twenties I began practicing declaring out loud I wasn't buying what the commercials were selling to dispel the hypnotic effect of Radio or Television Commercials. I was determined that if I was going to buy something it was due to my choice and NOT because I had been influenced through a medium that didn't care about me but rather was interested in making a profit, selling a product or service, and had created a campaign to hook my interest, convince me I needed what they were selling – while the base motivation was simply to increase their bottom line.

Many years ago - when I realized how credit card purchases, emails, and what we search for on the internet was being tracked I opted out of using even a debit card and only spent cash or wrote checks. This was before Facebook or Social Media was even a thing. Then I realized I was making that choice out of fear and it was time to make my choices out of love. So that is when I made a conscious choice that I wasn't going to let whatever data mining was happening determine what I did or what do.

I decided that for me it was and IS important to bring light and love into what seems dark and nefarious. Hence why my posts and my energy on social media is about creating awareness of the light of who we are. I tend to stay away from political posts mainly because that seems to add to the divisiveness and my intent is to remind myself and those who read what I post that it's the power of love that will transform this world.

I have had several conversations recently with those who are interested in the message Marianne Williamson, as presidential candidate is bringing to the political discussion. I am NOT in any way desiring to make a political statement here as I am not interested in getting bogged down in the divisiveness of today's political climate. Even Marianne Williamson is encouraging everyone to move beyond the polarizing conversations of today's political climate. I have long felt Marianne's message through her books (like my favorite A Return To Love) speaks to my heart long before she decided to run for president.

My point is to say, her voice and perspective is important and Social Media is helping her to reach a larger audience. I realize many who may not have any interest in what she is bringing forth in the political conversation so I am not promoting her as a candidate but I am interested in the ideas she is offering to our greater collective awareness because so many have forgotten the importance of our humanity and are fueled and influenced by fear - and that collective fear is what has gotten us where we are today. What I value is the perspective of HOPE and how that changes our hearts as represented in these words from Marianne:

The hope for America lies in the embrace of a politics that does not flow like bile from the power of an amoral economic system, but from the power of deep humanitarian principles at the core of our democracy. This speaks not just to changes in Washington but to changes in our hearts as well. These are spiritually revolutionary times. Rehearsal is over. The time for change is now. <https://www.marianne2020.com/posts/we-will-not-defeat-the-president-with-a-political-argument>

We are Co-Weavers of the Web of Life. Are you Choosing (weaving) from LOVE or Fear?

What I know for now is I am the one in charge of choosing what I do and making the decisions that work for me – not advertising or Social Media or anything outside of me.

My intent is to come from love, compassion and kindness toward myself and others. I am choosing to bring light and love into all that I do including the posts I create on Social Media because I feel strongly that by participating in ways that work for me, posting positive messages and making heart felt connections, makes a huge difference. It is what fuels love as the healing power our world so needs now.

Awareness is the key! So ask yourself: What are you choosing and why? Can you make better choices to create a better future going forward? If so what would those choices BE?

I ask myself whenever I remember (almost daily) - am I choosing from love or fear? If I get that fear is fueling my choice then I take time to step back and reassess because I AM the one choosing and I choose to be in charge of my choices and I choose to be the light within the dark - to BE the change, to radiate, and act from, LOVE!

September Sky Magic

Venus begins September in the Underworld and rises into the evening sky around September 19 setting about 30 minutes after the Sun. If the sky is clear Venus can be seen even though it is low in the after glow of the sunset due its very bright -3.9 magnitude but only for a very short time after sunset.

Venus returns to Libra on September 14 where the current Venus cycle began nearly a year ago on November 1, 2018. Last November, this was the first time in 155 years since Venus had risen as morning star in the sign of Libra. Venus rising as evening star in Libra signals the completion of the Libra Goddess underworld initiation in this cycle as she begins her ascent back through the chakra gates to reclaim a healthy relationship with these energy centers having let go of all her distortions on the way into the underworld.

Venus travels through Libra until October 8 symbolizing the reclaiming of healthy inter-relatedness with every aspect of creation that includes a growing awareness around the importance of taking personal responsibility for how she (we) engage the relational mysteries.

This is a great time to note the quality of your relationships in your outer reality as a reflection of the quality of relationship you have with yourself and your inner reality.

If you are desiring deeper, more meaningful relationships or you find your current relationships are challenging or less than fulfilling it might be worthwhile to do an inquiry around personal patterns in ways that further activate a sense of curiosity about how to be more responsible and conscious in your personal relationships.

Do you blame others for how you feel in relationship to them?

Do you find yourself in conflict with others?

Do you feel it is the other person's fault when conflict arises?

Are you willing to take responsibility for your part in any conflict?

Are you willing to really listen to what others are saying to you?

Are you attached to your point of view?

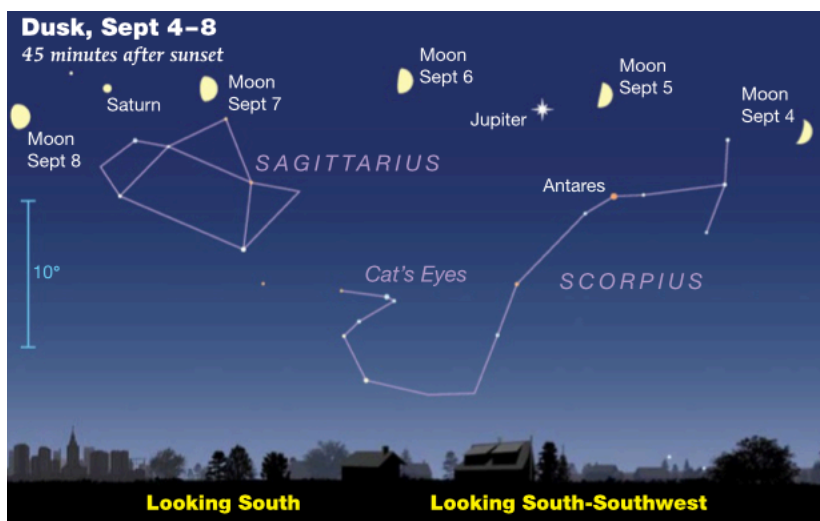

Are you convinced you are right and only interested in relating to those who agree with your position?

Are you willing to look at how you are showing up when relating to others?

Are you willing to go deeper and further than ever in your personal relating even if it is scary?

The Moon catches up to Venus on September 29 marking the first gate where Venus is reclaiming a healthy root chakra and her primal connection to Mother Earth in the physical world reclaiming the nurturing Earth energy that sustains and supports all our needs. When the first chakra is healthy there is a keen awareness that we are connected to all life, including all the ways the beloved Earth sustains our existence.

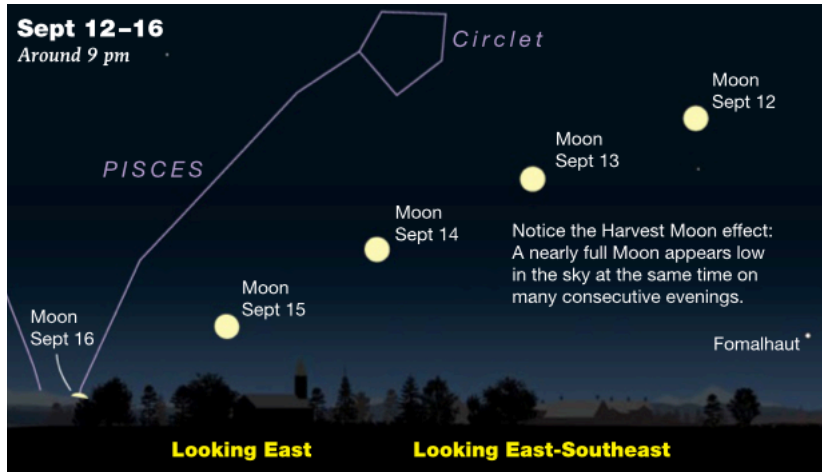

Mercury is with the Sun on September 3 or 4 depending on your time zone. This Sun conjunction is happening on the other side of the Sun meaning Mercury remains hidden from view for a longer time than when Mercury is retrograde and conjunct the Sun shifting from morning star to evening star.

Mercury technically moves into the evening sky around Sept 16 or 17 (depending on your time zone) but will be difficult to see at that time - especially for those in southerly latitudes. On September 28 it may be possible to see Mercury just 1° from the bright star Spica though both might be lost in the afterglow of the sunset.

Mars and Sun are together exact on September 2 and around September 4 Mars and Mercury are together exact. Mars is not visible due to its close proximity to the Sun this entire month – technically return to the morning sky around the third week of October. The Mars Venus Underworld Dance continues to inform us until Venus rises into the Evening Sky on September 19.

Jupiter and Saturn continued to brighten the evening sky they both are setting earlier and earlier. Jupiter begins September visible just passed the Veridian in the south as it comes into view early in the evening. Jupiter is dimming from a -2.2 magnitude to a -2.0 magnitude over this month. However it still remains the brightest object in the Night sky

Jupiter stationed direct August 11, 2019 gaining greater forward momentum as it moves away from Antares beginning September within 5 degrees of Antares and ending the month 8 degrees away from Antares. Jupiter is setting around 9 PM as September begins and just more than half an hour after sunset at the end of the month.

Saturn also in the night sky is seemingly trailing behind Jupiter (the brighter planet). That is due to the illusion of the planets rising and setting from east to west and because Jupiter is to the west of Saturn. However, Jupiter is catching up to Saturn and the two will be amazing to see in the sky for much of 2020.

Saturn is fading from a +0.3 magnitude to a +0.5 this month and stations direct on September 18 (at around 14 Capricorn) still visible in the constellation of the archer aligned with Vega. <https://cayelincastell.com/the-former-pole-star-vega/>

The September Equinox is at 12:50 AM Pacific time on September 23. The Equinoxes represent the seasonal time of year when there is a balance of day and night. In September it marks the beginning of moving toward longer nights in the northern hemisphere and shorter nights in the southern hemisphere.

September 5 the First Quarter Moon is forming a beautiful triangle with Antares within 7° or less below this royal star and Jupiter is to the left with the gap between the Moon and Jupiter growing smaller over the course of the night so much so that Moon and Jupiter set close together.

September 7 waxing Gibbous Moon is 5 to 6° to the right of Saturn on September 7. The following night Moon is just beyond Saturn by about the same number of degrees.

September 13 (Friday the 13th <https://cayelincastell.com/what-is-up-with-the-number-13/>) and 14 is the Pisces Full Moon at apogee (or furthest from the Earth) meaning the Moon appears smaller and further away than usual. The Pisces Full Moon is a time to cultivate a magical mystical connection with the Divine that serves all life through loving compassion. When out-of-balance, Pisces can express through co-dependency, unable to discern what they want and desire with a tendency may be toward depression. Connection with the Divine within is the best way to shift that.

September 14 Mercury and Venus move into Libra crossing the September Equinox marker (one of the four Solar Seasonal Gates where the Sun is crossing on September 23) of the year. Again, as already shared this highlights the mysteries of all our relationships. If you are desiring deeper, more meaningful relationships or you find your current relationships are challenging or less than fulfilling this is one of the best times to do an inquiry around your personal relational patterns. Doing our inner sacred marriage or sacred union work is necessary to have more fulfilling outer relationships. See quote below!

September 20 The waning moon passes the Hyades and is very near Aldebaran around dawn.

September 26 the waning Moon is a few degrees to the left of Regulus and around dawn it may be possible to see the zodiacal lights up northern latitudes about two hours before morning twilight. It is likely to appear as a tall pyramid of light tilted toward the right stretching through the constellation of the Crab and the Twins on towards the Bull. Best visibility is under dark skies and will be visible for the next two weeks.

September 28 The Perigee Libra New Moon

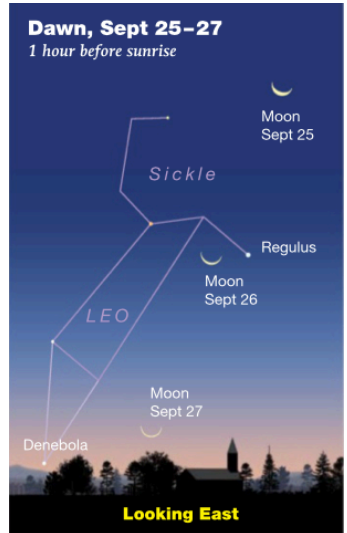

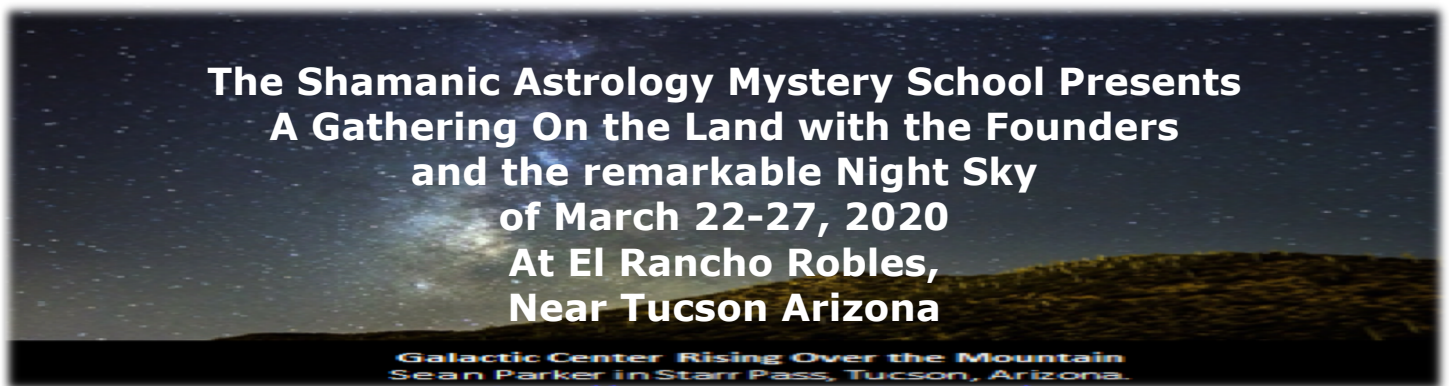

September 29 features a very tiny Crescent Moon with Venus at the first gate though it will require a keen eye and willingness to look for the pair right after sunset

And SHE...it is...who remembers her wings... soaring through the sky...
 feeling the energies extend to the farthest reaches of creation...and on the wings...comes the remembering of Sacred Union... when Sky enters the crown..
 and Earth touches the feet...
 and together...they merge in the Heart...
 remembering only LOVE...
 full and complete...
 Wholeness already is!!
