Reflections on Judging and the Mentally Ill

The Honorable John L. Kane, Jr.

John L. Kane, Jr. has served as a Senior United States District Judge of the United States District Court for the District of Colorado since his nomination by President Carter in 1977. As one of Colorado's most experienced and outspoken judges, he has served as a passionate advocate for legal reform for over 40 years, including for defendants with mental illness. Born in Tucumcari, New Mexico, Judge Kane received a B.A. from the University of Colorado in 1958 and a J.D. from the University of Denver College of Law in 1960. Prior to becoming a judge, he had an eclectic career, including work as a prosecutor, in private practice, as a public defender, and as a director of Peace Corps programs in India and Turkey. He was an Adjunct professor at the University of Denver College of Law from 1978 to 1988 and a Visiting Lecturer in Law at Trinity College in Dublin, Ireland in 1989. He was a Miller distinguished visiting professor of law at the University of Denver College of Law from 1990 to 1996. Since 1996, he has served as Adjunct Professor at the Colorado School of Law.

Graves Injustice

Mr. Anthony Graves

Anthony Graves is the 138th death row exoneree in the United States. Mr. Graves spent eighteen and a half years in prison, sixteen of those in solitary confinement, twelve on Texas Death Row, with two execution dates, for a crime he did not commit. With his steadfast focus on his innocence and the tireless work of The Innocence Network, he was vindicated and released in 2010. Since then, he has spoken at universities and organizations all over the world, including the American Bar Association Death Penalty Representation Project's 25th Anniversary celebration with retired Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens and the U.S. Senate Judiciary Hearing on Solitary Confinement. Mr. Graves' story has been featured on two covers of Texas Monthly magazine, the Katie Couric Show, and the 48-hours documentary "Grave Injustice," which won the 2012 Emmy Award. Mr. Graves founded the Anthony Graves Foundation to promote fairness and effect reform in the criminal justice system, and he also started a scholarship at the University of Texas Law School in the name of his attorney and champion, Nicole Casarez. Since 2015, he has served on the Board of Directors for the Houston Forensic Science Center, helping the city to prevent wrongful convictions.

The Clinical Detection of Malingered Mental Illness

Phillip Resnick MD, Cleveland, OH

This course is designed to give psychiatrists practical advice about the detection of malingering and lying. The latest research on malingered hallucinations will be covered. Psychotic hallucinations will be distinguished from non-psychotic hallucinations. Suspect auditory hallucinations are less likely to be associated with delusions. Persons faking auditory hallucinations may say they have no strategies to diminish malevolent voices and claim that all command hallucinations must be obeyed. Malingers are more likely to report extreme severity and intensity of their hallucinations. Suspect visual hallucinations are more likely to be reported in black and white rather than in color, be dramatic and are more likely to include miniature or giant figures. Resolution of genuine hallucinations and delusions with anti-psychotic treatment will be delineated. Participants will learn 12 clues to detect malingered psychosis and four clues to detect malingered insanity defenses. Videotapes of several defendants describing hallucinations will enable participants to assess their skills in distinguishing between true and feigned hallucinations.

Assessment and Treatment of Problematic Sexual Interests

R. Gregg R. Dwyer MD EdD, Charleston, SC
J. Paul Federoff MD, Ottawa, ON, Canada
Lisa Murphy MCA, Ottawa, ON, Canada
Charles Scott MD, Sacramento, CA

This course is intended to provide Forensic Psychiatrists with an update on the current state of assessment and treatment of people with problematic sex interests including special populations (e.g. adolescents, women and people with intellectual disabilities). It will be of use to psychiatrists who are currently assessing or treating sex offenders as well as psychiatrists wishing to keep up to date on the state of the art of this important and rapidly evolving area of Forensic Psychiatry. Best practices used from both Canadian and American perspectives will be reviewed. A practical overview of penile tumescence testing and ways of improving its validity and reliability will be covered. Utilization of visual aids will provide the audience with a clear understanding of assessment procedures and reports. Research on innovative measures for assessment of sexual interest will also be discussed. The current state of treatment of adults and adolescents with paraphilic interests will be reviewed along with evidence to support a new paradigm for the understanding of paraphilic disorders. Case studies will be used to provide practical information on successful treatment options for specific paraphilic disorders. Attendees are encouraged to bring case details for group discussion.

Psychological Testing in Forensic Psychiatric Evaluations

(Limited to Psychiatrists, Psychologists, Psychiatry Trainees, and Psychology Trainees)

B. Thomas Gray PhD ABPP, Pueblo, CO
Rose Manguso PhD ABPP, Pueblo, CO
Richard Martinez MD, Denver, CO

It is commonplace for psychiatrists conducting forensic examinations to enlist the assistance of a psychologist to provide testing. This can be done for any of several different purposes, including diagnostic clarification, identification of feigning/exaggeration or underreporting of symptoms, or elucidation of specific forensic issues. Charles Scott has argued that forensic psychiatrists should be trained in the administration and interpretation of some psychological tests. Scott was clear in asserting that proper training was essential to the success of his proposal, and identified several important components. In his view, forensic psychiatrists should receive instruction in the use of certain evaluation tools, including consideration of appropriate use, limitations, reliability and validity, and the role of the tests in a comprehensive forensic evaluation." The purpose of this proposed course is to explore Scott's idea further and to provide basic information on general psychological testing. A variety of commonly used psychological tests will be reviewed, ranging from those with purely forensic applications, to more general personality and neuropsychological tests, including measures of malingering. The presentation will seek to identify instruments that can most properly be used by forensic psychiatrists, including introductory instruction in the administration of one or more of those tests
