PRESENTATION OF THE HOTEL

Ideally situated in the heart of medieval Beaune, Capital of the wines of Burgundy, just minutes away from the famous Hospices de Beaune and the Notre-Dame Basilica, the 5 star Hôtel Le Cep is a genuine institution in town.

The harmonious connection of XIV and XVI century residences has allowed for expansion year after year. Today the Hotel is composed of 64 rooms including 30 suites, several lounges, a bar, a gastronomical restaurant “Loiseau des Vignes”, rated 1 Michelin star since 2010, two courtyards dated XVI century, a garden “à la française”, a covered garage and outdoor parking lot and 3 conference rooms equipped high-tech, a fitness center and a superb SPA, all of which is entirely at your disposal. The genuine style of antique furniture, woodwork, ceiling “à la française”, has been left in place in the new section of the hotel, with a splash of modern comfort. All rooms are different and personalized with names corresponding to famous Burgundy wines, and unique decoration.

Be assured of our devotion to make your stay unforgettable! The staff and the management of the Hotel Le Cep have only one goal: to help you transform your visit into an extraordinary experience which you will cherish with great pleasure.

HISTORY

En 1986 the Hotel le Cep changed hands and the Bernard family took over the destiny of this already well-known establishment which at the time included 21 rooms.

Its expansion was to accelerate over the years, for today the hotel holds 65 rooms including 29 suites!

The hotel was expanded with respect for its beauty and the guests' well-being; this was confirmed in 1996 by the acceptance of Hotel le Cep as a member of "Small Luxury Hotels of the World", and its numerous listings in the Gold List of the world's best places to stay edited by the Conde Nast Traveler... The hotel is composed of several private mansions, once owned by prominent families from Beaune, that were reunited over the years to slowly expand the hotel, as desired by its present owner, the Bernard Family.

The classification as historical monuments of these mansions has of course influenced the care taken in restoring this architectural heritage. In the summer, breakfast is served in an interior courtyard dated 1547, part of a mansion owned by the BRUNET DE MONTHELIE family, whose descendants served as administrators of the Hospices de Beaune.

In the same courtyard stands a tower encasing a spiraling stone staircase. This staircase leads up to the different floors of the building and ends at the top in an old pigeon loft.

Next to the tower you will find an ancient well decorated with a ram's head, a symbol of philosophers' sulphur, serves today as a recipient for a fig tree. Just across the courtyard, a much more recent and higher tower provides from its summit a panoramic view of the town's rooftops and spires, and notably those of the famous "Hospices de Beaune", located just a few steps away. An old anecdote has it that the king Louis XIV, while on visit to Beaune on the 18th of November 1668, preferred to sleep in this mansion rather than in the Hospices de Beaune for fear of germs...

A French-style garden serves as a transition from the courtyard to an adjacent building, the former mansion Thiroux de Saint-Félix, dated 1570. Its architecture, also of the Renaissance period but of a different style because of its half-timbering, shelters some beautiful alchemy symbols. The quaintest is that of a courtjester, sitting on a barrel and holding a strange spoon, the whole sculpted on the stone pillar supporting the balcony. This courtyard was completely renovated in 2004, in the spirit of its origins.

Some of the new suites and apartments of the Hotel le Cep overlook this mansion's interior courtyard. The latter also contains a well surmounted by a griffin, a fabled monster having the head and wings of an eagle (symbol of what is volatile in alchemy) and a lion's body (symbol of what is fixed or stationary).

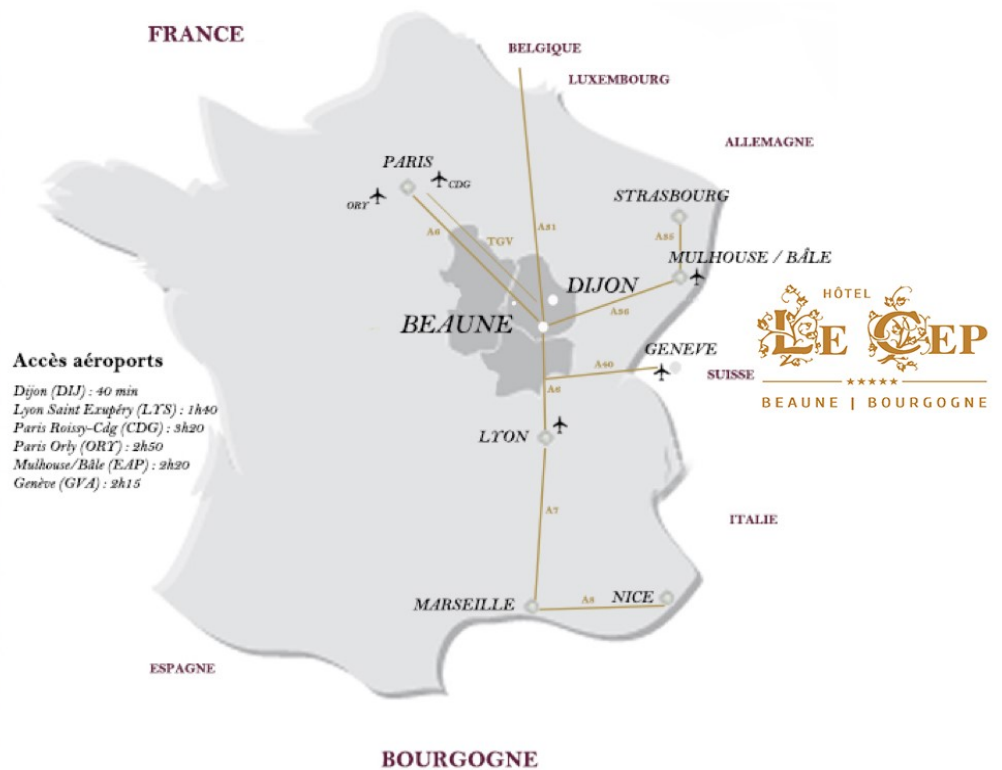

In conclusion, the charm of Hotel le Cep is noticeable even on arrival, but the myriad of details that bear witness to its history only slowly reveal themselves as you familiarize yourself with the surroundings.
