AM I DISADVANTAGED BY BIDDING ON THE INTERNET?

No! That being said, Internet bidding does come with certain advantages and certain inconveniences. Internet bidding permits you to bid from the comfort of your home or place of preference at the time you deem fit. The inconveniences bidders are sometimes confronted with are generally related to Internet issues, such as internet lag, duplicate bids etc... these issues may cause you to miss a desired lot. When internet bidding, you enter your data, which is then encoded on the auction site then transferred to the internet and then displayed on your screen, a couple of seconds may have passed and a delay may occur between the auction floor information and your computer. These delays are common and often caused by internet transfer times and are generally related to your internet connection. As the Auctioneers we do our best to allot an appropriate lapse of time during each lot to accommodate these delays and offer you the best opportunity to bid.

THE LOT SOLD FOR MY EXACT BID YET I DID NOT WIN THE LOT, WHY?

Tied Bids, the auction platform will not double sell a lot, it is programmed to accept all bids and register them by time and date entered, This means that a tied bids will automatically be awarded to the bid first entered and accepted on the program no matter how close the bids entered. It is important to note that The Auctioneer has no control over the internet platform and its choice of winning bidders. In the case of a Live public sale, the Auctioneer will accept the bid first called to his or hers attention and award the lot the appropriate bidder.

HOW DO I KNOW IF I WON THE LOT?

When the lot closes a message in green indicating you won will be displayed. Important: In the rare occasion where the lot must be re-opened it is possible that the said lot will not show on your invoicing as the bidding increments continued over and above your high bid entered. You must either continue to bid or concede the lot to the new high bid.

WHY ARE LOTS RE-OPENED?

Other types of internet delays, such as internet lag, transfer times or even late bids often create situations in which a bid will come through as we are closing the lot on the floor and/or another internet platform, in the case where not all platforms are yet closed and the auctioneer deems fit, a lot may be re-opened to accept a tardy internet bid to offer a fair opportunity for all internet bidders to participate in the bidding of the said lot. It is possible and most likely that if you were the initial winning high bid that you will now be surpassed by a higher bid and if you do not continue the bidding process you will concede the lot to the new high bid.
