Bronze Fennel - 1 pint

Price: $5.00

An aromatic perennial herb, fennel is widely cultivated for its edible, licorice-flavored leaves and seeds. Bronze fennel, has dark, smoky foliage to a height of 6'. The large nectar-filled, yellow flowers are attractive to many butterflies and pollinators, particularly the Eastern Black Swallowtail caterpillar and butterfly. Flowers eventually dry in the fall, which allow growers the opportunity to harvest fennel seeds.

Sunlight needed: Full Sun

Tuscan Blue Rosemary - 1 pint

Price: $5.00

Tuscan Blue is a perfect rosemary for the southern states as it's more tolerable to heat and humidity. Throughout the year, this Mediterranean native has needle-like leaves that are very fragrant from afar. In spring, its small violet blue flowers cover the plants and attract butterflies and other beneficial pollinators. As with all varieties of rosemary, Tuscan Blue performs very well in both garden beds and pots that can be brought indoors for winter use for gardeners above USDA Zone 7. Tuscan Blue rosemary has a lemony tang that goes along with its pine flavor and scent. It is not as harsh a taste as most other varieties and partners well with chicken, lamb, and fish.

Sunlight need: Full Sun

Tricolor Sage - 1 pint

Price: $5.00

This ornamental herb has grayish-green leaves marbled with white, pink and purple. Lavender blue flower spikes often appear in summer, which are attractive to bees and butterflies. Tricolor sage also has strongly aromatic foliage that may be used dried or fresh in a variety of cooking dishes.

Sunlight needed: Full Sun

Pineapple Sage - 1 pint

Price: $5.00

This sage is equally appreciated for the sweet pineapple scent of the foliage and its red flowers. Pineapple sage leaves are often used dried or fresh in teas. Plants will grow up through the summer, when you can enjoy their leafy fragrance. Then, just as some other garden plants start to fade in late summer and early fall, pineapple sage will burst into bloom. This is a great addition to a fall garden because it attracts migrating hummingbirds and butterflies. You can also use the flowers as an edible decoration in salads.
