Preface xv

Chapter 1 • THE SCIENCE OF COGNITION 1

Summary 1

Motivations 1

Intellectual Curiosity • Practical Applications • Implications for Other Fields

The History of Cognitive Psychology 5

Early History • Psychology in Germany • Psychology in America • The Reemergence of Cognitive Psychology

The Methods of Cognitive Psychology 10

The Need for an Abstract Analysis • Information-Processing Analysis

How to Use This Book 15

Organization of This Book 16

Remarks and Suggested Readings 17

Chapter 2 • THE NEURAL BASIS OF COGNITION 18

Summary 18

The Nervous System	20
The Neuron • Neural Representation of Information • Coding of Permanent Memories
Organization of the Brain	26
Neural Localization of Function • Topographic Organization of Brain Areas
The Visual System	32
Information Coding in Visual Cells • David Marr's Work
Connectionism	41
Remarks and Suggested Readings	45

Chapter 3 • PERCEPTION AND ATTENTION 47

Summary	47
Sensory Memory	48
Visual Sensory Memory • Auditory Sensory Memory
Attention and Sensory Information Processing	52
A Model of Attention • Divided-Attention Studies • Automaticity
Pattern Recognition	58
Template-Matching Models • Feature Analysis • Speech Recognition • Voice-Onset Time
Gestalt Principles of Organization	66
Object Perception	68
Attention and Pattern Recognition	73
Context and Pattern Recognition	75
Effects of Sentence Context • Context and Speech • Context and the Recognition of Faces and Scenes
Conclusions	83
Remarks and Suggested Readings	85

Chapter 4 • PERCEPTION-BASED KNOWLEDGE REPRESENTATIONS 86

Summary	86
---------	----

Spatial versus Linear Representations	87
Mental Imagery	91
Mental Rotation • Image Scanning • Interference and Image Scanning • Two Types of Imagery • Comparison of Visual Quantities • Hierarchical Structure of Images • Mental Maps
Linear Orderings	105
Hierarchical Encoding of Orderings • Judgments of Linear Order
Remarks and Suggested Readings	110

Chapter 5 • MEANING-BASED KNOWLEDGE REPRESENTATIONS 112

Summary	112
Memory for Verbal Information	114
Memory for Visual Information	116
Retention of Perception-Based versus Meaning-Based Knowledge Representations	119
Implications of Good Memory for Meaning • Summary of Research on Memory for Meaning
Propositional Representations	123
Analysis into Propositions • Propositional Networks • Hierarchical Organization of Propositions • Propositional Networks as Associative Structures • Retrieval from Propositional Networks
Schemas	133
Psychological Reality of Schemas • Schemas Represent Natural Categories • Event Schemas
Conclusions	143
Remarks and Suggested Readings	144

Chapter 6 • HUMAN MEMORY: BASIC CONCEPTS AND PRINCIPLES 146

Summary	146
The First Memory Experiment	147
The Two-Concept Theory of Memory	148

Working Memory	150
Working Memory: A Summary
Long-Term Memory	156
Spread of Activation	160
Associative Priming • Summary: Relation of Activation to Processing Time
Interference	164
The Fan Effect • Interference and Historical Memories • Interference and Retention
Recall versus Recognition	171
Decay Processing in Forgetting	172
Are Forgotten Memories Truly Lost?
Remarks and Suggested Readings	176

Chapter 7 • HUMAN MEMORY: ELABORATIONS AND DISTINCTIONS 178

Summary	178
Elaborations and Their Network Representations	179
Elaborateness of Processing	183
Representative Studies • Incidental versus Intentional Learning • Nonmeaningful Elaborations • Text Material • Summary
Inferential Reconstruction in Recall	188
Plausible Retrieval
The Interaction of Elaboration and Inferential Reconstruction	193
Use of Schemas
Organization and Recall	198
Hierarchical Structures and Other Organizations • The Method of Loci
The Effects of Encoding Context	202
Encoding Specificity • Encoding Variability and the Spacing Effect
Conclusions about Elaborative Processing	209
The PQ4R Method	210
Implicit Memory	212
Remarks and Suggested Readings	217

Chapter 8 • PROBLEM SOLVING 219

- Summary 219
- Procedural Knowledge and Problem Solving 221
- The Problem Space 223
States in the Problem Space • Searching the Problem Space
- General Problem-Solving Methods 225
- The Difference-Reduction Method 228
Where Similarity Is Misleading
- Means-Ends Analysis 232
The Tower of Hanoi Problem
- Working Backward 237
- Problem Solving by Analogy 239
- Production Systems: A General Problem-Solving Formalism 242
- Representation 244
The Importance of the Correct Representation • Functional Fixedness
- Set Effects 248
Incubation Effects
- Remarks and Suggested Readings 253
- Appendix 254

Chapter 9 • DEVELOPMENT OF EXPERTISE 256

- Summary 256
- Stages of Skill Acquisition 258
The Power Law of Practice
- Factors Affecting Practice 265
Part versus Whole Learning • Knowledge of Results
- The Nature of Expertise 267
Proceduralization • Tactical Learning • Strategic Learning • Problem Representation • Problem Memory
- Transfer of Skill 284
- Remarks and Suggested Readings 287

Chapter 10 • REASONING 289

- Summary 289
- Logic and Reasoning 290
- Deductive Reasoning 291
- Conditional Reasoning 292
The Failure to Apply Modus Tollens
- Reasoning about Quantifiers 298
The Categorical Syllogism • The Atmosphere Hypothesis • Limitations of the Atmosphere Hypothesis
- Inductive Reasoning 303
- Hypothesis Formation 305
Concept Identification • Two Concept-Formation Strategies
- Hypothesis Evaluation 312
Bayes's Theorem • Deviations from Bayes's Theorem
- Judgments of Probability 318
Availability • Similarity
- Remarks and Suggested Readings 322

Chapter 11 • LANGUAGE STRUCTURE 324

- Summary 324
- The Field of Linguistics 326
Productivity and Regularity • Linguistic Intuitions • Competence versus Performance
- Syntactic Formalisms 330
Phrase Structure • Rewrite Rules • Evidence for Phrase Structure in Speech • Speech Errors • Transformations
- The Relationship between Language and Thought 340
The Behaviorist Proposal • The Worfian Hypothesis of Linguistic Determinism • Does Language Depend on Thought?
- The Uniqueness of Language 346
Child Language Acquisition • A Critical Period for Language Acquisition • Language Universals • The A-over-A Constraint • Parameter Setting • The Uniqueness of Language: A Summary
- Remarks and Suggested Readings 356

Chapter 12 • LANGUAGE USE: COMPREHENSION 358

Summary 358

Parsing 360

Sentence Patterns • The Concatenation of Constituents • The Psychological Reality of Constituent Structure • Immediacy of Interpretation • The Use of Syntactic Cues

Semantic Considerations 372

Integration of Syntax and Semantics • Ambiguity • Lexical Ambiguity • Propositional Representation

Utilization 380

Inference of the Unstated • Inference of Reference • Pronominal Reference • Negatives

Text Processing 390

Text Structure and Memory • Kintsch and van Dijk's Text Comprehension Model

Conclusion 397

Remarks and Suggested Readings 398

Chapter 13 • COGNITIVE DEVELOPMENT 399

Summary 399

Piaget's Stages of Development 402

Hidden Objects • Conservation • Transitive Inference • Balance-Scale Task

What Develops? 412

Increased Knowledge • Increased Mental Capacity

Development of Cognitive Processes 417

Memory • Knowledge Representation • Problem Solving • Development of Basic Cognitive Abilities: A Summary

Development of Mathematics 425

Initial Conceptions of Number • Addition • Subtraction • Origins of Subtraction Bugs

Remarks and Suggested Readings 429

Chapter 14 • THE NATURE OF INTELLIGENCE 431

Summary 431

Individual Differences in Cognition 433
*Intelligence Tests • Factor Analysis*Individual Differences and Information Processing 439
Reasoning Ability • Verbal Ability • Spatial Ability • Conclusions from Information-Processing Studies

Gardner's Multiple Intelligences 446

Artificial Intelligence: The Power of Knowledge 448
The MYCIN System • Can Computers Be Truly Intelligent? • Intelligent Tutoring

Conclusions 459

Remarks and Suggested Reading 459
