ST. JOHN FISHER COLLEGE IRISH STUDIES PROGRAM PROUDLY PRESENTS

Yeats Now: Echoing Into Life

To celebrate St. Patrick's Day early, the St. John Fisher College Irish Studies Program is pleased to announce a presentation on William Butler Yeats by Joseph Hassett, renowned Yeats scholar and author.

W. B. Yeats often has just the right words for important occasions. Joseph Hassett will discuss memorable lines from Yeats's poetry that help us articulate our thoughts about significant moments in our own lives. Inviting Yeats into our lives line by line turns out to be an easy point of entry into the work of this astonishingly vital poet.

The presentation will include a video of acclaimed actor Lisa Dwan reciting three of the poems to be discussed. Audience questions are welcome.

Joseph Hassett is a Washington trial lawyer and author. His newest book, Yeats Now: Echoing into Life can be ordered now from Book Depository at <https://www.bookdepository.com/Yeats-Now-Joseph-M-Hassett/9781843517788>. Distinguished critic and Notre Dame Professor Declan Kiberd called it "one of the most beautiful and enjoyable books on Yeats" in his review in the Dublin Review of Books.

Hassett's books include W. B. Yeats and the Muses (Oxford University Press, 2010) and The Ulysses Trials: Beauty and Truth Meet the Law (Lilliput 2016). He attended Canisius College, Harvard Law School, and University College Dublin (PhD).

Presented by the St. John Fisher College Irish Studies Program

Date and time: Wednesday, 10 March 2021 from 4:20-5:40 PM, Eastern Standard Time

Celebrate St. Patrick's Day with a Sean Nós Workshop!

St. Patrick's Day won't be the way we want it this year, but we can still dance! Irish stepdancing is uniquely suited for these times, and Sean Nós dancing is suited for everyone.

Sean Nós ("shah-noze"), or "old style" stepdancing is a gentler, more traditional style of Irish dance than the high-kicking modern style made popular by Riverdance. With its slower music, close-to-the-ground steps, and relaxed posture (you can use your arms!), Sean Nós allows each dancer to develop their own personal style at a pace which suits them.

When: Monday, March 15, 6:30-7:30 p.m.

Cost: $15.00

Level: Beginner—No experience necessary!

Where: Rince Na Saor Irish Dancing. (Located at Dance Biz in Longview Plaza, 1742 Long Pond Road, near Unity Hospital and just off Route 390.)

Register: www.rns.dance, email kathyw@rns.dance, or call 227-6614. Space is limited so we can keep everyone distanced, and all dancers must wear a mask.

Irish Hurling!

Music and Dance are, and have been, a major factor in preserving and expressing the Irish culture here in the US for a long time. In an effort to continue this tradition, I would like to promote the sport of Hurling here in the Rochester area. I am teaching introductory skills classes for kids at local Rec centers this May. A friend mentioned you guys to me as someone who might be willing to help me promote Irish Hurling (maybe in your newsletter) or collaborate with me in some way to do that. I am very open to ideas around this and discussion with you. As you consider this please take a moment to check out my webpage about the program here... <https://progressiveearlylearning.com/irish-hurling/>

Introductory skills classes for children 4-17 years old

Learn to play the ancient sport of Hurling! Described as “the fastest game on grass,” hurling has been played in Ireland for at least 4,000 years. It is now one of the fastest growing sports in America with new clubs sprouting up everywhere, including here in Rochester. Combining the skills learned playing lacrosse, field hockey, soccer, and baseball, hurling is a full body workout.

Come learn the basic skills that it takes to begin playing the game. This four-session class lays the foundation on which to build your skills in order to play the game of hurling.

Coming to Perinton Rec. Tuesdays at 5pm May 4-25 and June 1-22

Coming to Penfield Rec. Thursdays at 5pm May 6-27 and June 3-24

Coming to Pittsford Rec. Mondays at 5pm May 17-June 14 *no class May 31

The history of the Shamrock

Slainte columnist Edythe Preet explores the story behind Ireland's national symbol.

(edited for brevity, first published in 2017; reprinted in Irish America, Feb-2021)

The word "shamrock" is an anglicized form of the Irish term seamir og, which means "little clover." While there is no plant botanically classified "shamrock," there are dozens of types of clovers. Ireland is covered with gazillions of them, and a shamrock is really just a young clover. Like the Irish themselves, clovers are found all over the world, but only in Ireland has a cloverleaf become a primary national symbol. Saint Patrick gets most of the credit.

Celtic beliefs included many gods and goddesses, each manifesting different aspects of human life, and some even embodied triplicity. Perhaps the most revered Celtic divinity was the triple goddess Brid, who represented the three aspects of womanhood – maid, mother, and crone. Brid's female triplicity provided a yin balance to Christianity's yang Trinity.

The shamrock began to change from a Christian symbol to a national symbol, when it was adopted in the late 1700s as a motif by several revolutionary groups fomenting Irish independence from the British Crown. The resulting brief but bloody Irish Rebellion of 1798 (May 24 to September 24) was so brutally put down by British forces that it inspired folk ballad "The Wearing of the Green," which lamented, "they're hanging men and women for the wearing of the green [shamrock]." With the 1800 Acts of Union, Ireland's shamrock was added to the Royal Coat of Arms of the United Kingdom alongside England's rose and Scotland's thistle.

When the Royal Regiment of the British Army adopted the shamrock as its emblem, Queen Victoria ruled that Irish soldiers should wear shamrock sprigs to honor their fallen fellows. During World War I, the famous Connaught Rangers (who called themselves "The Devil's Own") marched to battle wearing shamrock emblazoned badges and singing "It's A Long Way To Tipperary," which became a unifying anthem of the conflict.

These days, the shamrock is as internationally recognized a symbol of Ireland as the Statue of Liberty is for the United States.

Every year on Saint Patrick's Day, the Irish taoiseach presents the president of the United States with a bowl of shamrocks in a special Waterford Crystal bowl featuring a shamrock design.

Nora's Book Review

“Music and Memories”, Nora Kavanagh’s new 99 page book, is a great tribute to Waterford musicians and their continuing contributions to the culture of Ireland. The large format book, centered around the local Comhaltas Branch, concentrates on the traditional music and dance of the of the area with many photographs of musicians and dancers, and their stories. The book also contains 50 pieces of music played in the area including 14 compositions by local Waterford artists. It is a wonderful documentary of the history of Irish music in the Waterford area, Nora Kavanagh is a well-known musician and music teacher in Waterford. Waterford is a “Sister City” of Rochester. NY. Nora and a group of her musicians performed here in Rochester in 2008.
