Swim coach leaves championship legacy

02/17/03

AMY MARTINEZ STARKE

Dan Perz would not have missed watching his kids swim at the state championships for anything. The Lake Oswego Swim Club swimmers were improving their race times, but he didn't dare get his hopes up. Another top club had won the title for most of the past 20 years.

Perz, though, was hospitalized Feb. 7 and had to miss the weekend swim meet in Springfield. Throughout Feb. 8 and 9, the head coach kept in constant touch with him at the hospital. Then coaches and kids showed up with a huge T-shirt from the meet for the big man -- 6-foot-5, 300 pounds and shaped like a beer keg -- and told him his team had won the 10-and-younger state championship.

Perz beamed. And the next day, he was gone. Dan Perz died Feb. 10 at age 50 of unknown causes.

He had been at the swim club only since September, but his impact was far-reaching. He had coached before at Woodburn, Hillsboro and Tualatin Hills, and before that he coached masters.

More than 100 kids at Lake Oswego Swim Club were under his tutelage, mostly ages 8 through 12. It was a "full-time" part-time job, which meant many hours spent talking to parents -- something he disliked -- meetings and preparation. For a lot of the kids, it was their first time swimming competitively.

He loved to inspire kids, teach them how to swim fast and watch them improve. It would drive him nuts when coaches yelled at kids. He swam competitively as a youth. He taught his daughter to swim and later watched her make the junior national synchronized swim team; his son was a speed swimmer.

Perz had a master's degree in cinematography and married his art experience and visual talent with swimming. He took videos of swimmers in the water, then used a computer to isolate single images and used special effects from the computer to make photographs.

His size intimidated some people. But his wife says he was a big teddy bear. The native Chicagoan loved Sheboygan "brats" (bratwurst) and peanut butter on toast. He was a committed Scientologist for at least 20 years, a faithful reader of L. Ron Hubbard, and took classes at the Celebrity Centre downtown.

Perz had long been a jazz guitarist. It was Perz's work putting sound to his avant-garde films years ago that led to his playing: He got more interested in the sound than in the images. He self-produced many LPs, then CDs -- he did his own artwork for the covers -- getting air time on radio stations across the country. KMHD-FM, a jazz station, played tributes to him all last week.

Perz played for years at the Benson Hotel lounge. Most recently, he performed at Sherwood Peddler. He was always trying to get a steady gig; ideally, he wanted to be a concert musician. His jazz had been taking a back seat to coaching recently. He put down the guitar more often and picked up the workout sheets. His goal was to win the championship. From his hospital bed, he smiled, and then he smiled wider. His wife had never seen him happier.
