Agent H2O Rides the Water Cycle
 Written and Illustrated by Rita Goldner

This beautifully illustrated story introduces a secret agent with an important duty, a few disguises, and a wild journey. Agent H2O is on a mission to hydrate plants, animals, and people. His assignment requires an exciting escapade: evaporating up into the clouds and raining down again, and sometimes masquerading as vapor or an ice crystal.

This grueling job includes getting sucked up by a thirsty plant root, swallowed by a coyote at a watering hole, and chased by the evil villain, Scummy Pollution. The science is accurate and S.T.E.M. based. The message is important: an eco-friendly lifestyle, reduction of pollution, and water conservation.

These concepts are offered in a character-driven adventure, a funny plot, and award-winning illustrations. This story will bring a smile to grown-ups and kids.

FOR TODAY'S

STRESSFUL LIFESTYLE

By Vannoy Gentles Fite
& Dr. Debbie Palmer

There's no escaping it. We're a high-tech world—connected 24/7 to our smartphones, social media accounts, home and work computers, and digitally connected houses—and it's stressing us out in ways we could have never imagined.

Most of us are aware of how chronic stress is linked to the worsening of health problems like obesity, heart disease, asthma, eczema, and psoriasis. Today, pharmaceutical companies are raking in well over a billion dollars annually on stress-reducing drugs. The side-effects from these drugs alone are creating another whole generation of issues and problems. But, are we also paying attention to the less-talked about aspect of this of this modern-day tension: its effect on our inner spiritual health and our outer beauty?

According to board-certified dermatologist, Debbie Palmer, author of the new book Mindful Beauty: Holistic Habits to Feel & Look Better, chronic stress is not only aging our body, it's sapping our spirit as well. Her patients seek her out in her busy New York-based practice looking for both answers and treatment. In addition to other physical ailments, long-term anxiety, worry, and tension are affecting our outer beauty and inner radiance; this constant stress is making us look and feel years older. Fine lines and wrinkles, an overall lackluster appearance, and dry rough skin all become more pronounced as a result.

So, stress affects us—in every facet imaginable. How can we combat these negative effects?

Vannoy Gentles Fite, author of Llewellyn's Book of Natural Remedies, feels that reducing stress naturally and in a manner that is actually beneficial to our health should be at the forefront of our society. Anxiety, depression, panic attacks, stress, and general malaise can all be categorized as ills that we can reduce using a few techniques that have been around for thousands of years.

In Llewellyn's Book of Natural Remedies, recipes for everyday ailments involve essential oil recipes, Ayurvedic recipes, herbal recipes, and home remedies. The more than 100 remedies and recipes within the book contain ingredients that are easily accessible, contain few, if any, chemicals, are beneficial, and have been proven to work at minimizing the effects of stress on our mind, body, and soul. Dr. Palmer's medical advice also offers more than just the standard of care today. She prescribes medications as necessary, but she also makes sure every patient leaves her office armed with the mind-, body-, and soul-nourishing tools that will enhance their beauty, inside and out, long-term. These life-advice tools and healthy habits are found on the pages of Mindful Beauty: Holistic Habits to Feel & Look Better.

As we go through our daily, stress-filled lives, remember that the tools for physical, emotional, and spiritual beauty and health are at our disposal.

Radiance-Boosting Stress Relief Tools

In her new book Mindful Beauty: Holistic Habits to Feel & Look Better, Dr. Debbie Palmer shares, among many others, these 6 tips and tools for looking younger and restoring a healthy glow and vibrancy, from the inside out:

☞ Cultivate Mindfulness

In a frenetic digital world, mindfulness is so often lost. Take time to be really aware of everything you do—the taste of food in your mouth, the feel of the sunshine on your face when you're outdoors, the beauty of your surroundings and nature.

☞ Carve Out Time for Spiritual Enrichment Every Day

It's easy to forget about our spiritual selves in a modern world, but this is essential for true inner and outer beauty. This can be as simple as waking up every morning with five minutes of meditation or an expression of gratitude for what we have.

☞ Follow a Mediterranean Lifestyle

Dr. Palmer recommends a Mediterranean lifestyle and diet: it's proven to be good for health, beauty, and longevity. But there's more to a Mediterranean lifestyle than just the food: Mediterranean people take time out for in-person social interactions with others and they have a passion for life, not just work.

☞ Move Your Body Every Single Day

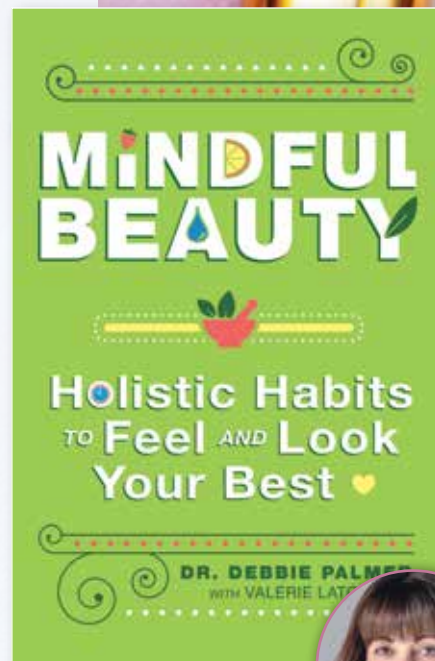

Some people call it exercise; Dr. Palmer calls it spiritual movement. Getting moving every day—be it a walk after lunch or dinner, a run at the gym, or daily yoga asanas—helps boost blood circulation, which is good for not only the heart and our mental health, but for the skin and our spirit, too.

☞ Nurture the Relationships That Really Matter

We may have 500 friends on Facebook, but taking time to nourish our close personal relationships is even more important. What this means: shutting off social media and picking up the phone to call or visit with people close to you. Human connections are critical for our mind, body, and soul (connections with our pets can help, too!).

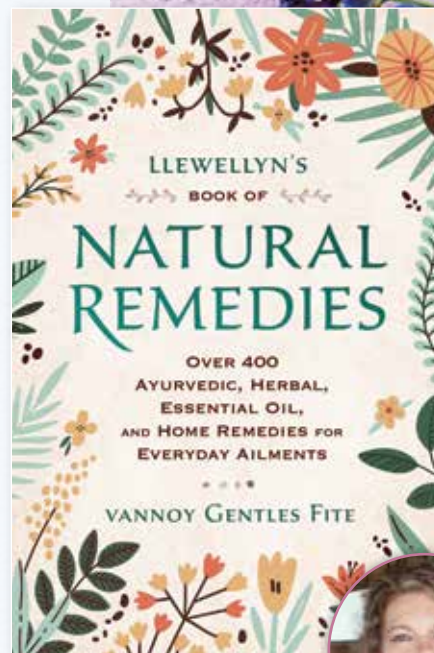

☞ Change Your Mindset

Being happy has been shown to reduce inflammation in the body, keeping us healthier overall. People who are happier also exude a natural glow and radiance—what Dr. Palmer describes as true natural beauty.

Who knows what a Locomotive means? Or a Bowl?

Chart shapes formed by the planetary groupings are fascinating, and in this new book Wanda Sellar shows us that shapes like the Bowl, Locomotive, Bucket and See-Saw are more than just names as they add deep insight to the delineation of the chart.

Her many case studies include:
Annie Besant, Harrison Ford, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle,
George Harrison, Sir Winston Churchill, Agatha Christie, John Dee and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Therapeutic Essential Oil Guide

Singles & Synergies

We hope this guide will help you to better understand authentic and genuine essential oils—their important therapeutic qualities and their valuable contribution to self-care and well being.

WHAT ARE ESSENTIAL OILS?

Essential oils are concentrated, volatile, aromatic compounds that are extracted from aromatic plants. Regarded as the life force of the plant, they are present in various parts such as leaves, seeds, flowers, and bark. They give the plant its unique, signature aroma. It is believed that plants produce essential oils to attract bees for pollination, repel insects, and help protect the plant from disease.
