Family Fun that Grows Great Memories

Tips for making the most of your visit to the Epcot® International Flower & Garden Festival, March 4th to June 1st.³

Where can you enjoy gorgeous flowers, fabulous food, family fun and rocking music all in one place? At the Epcot® International Flower & Garden Festival, of course! This event blooms with experiences that kids and kids-at-heart alike will enjoy. “Our goal from the very beginning of the Festival has been to create a family-friendly experience,” says Eric Darden, Horticulture Manager, Epcot® International Flower & Garden Festival. Here are some highlights of the fun in store this year and tips for making the most of your experience.

As soon as you enter Epcot®, pick up your Flower & Garden Passport to guide you through your day. Drop by any merchandise location to purchase your Spike’s Pollen Nation Exploration Scavenger Hunt Map so you can look for Spike as you explore the park, stamp your map and redeem it for a surprise when it’s completed. Once you’ve taken care of those preparations you’re set for a day of horticulture beauty, relaxing fun and great culinary experiences.

WATCH BUTTERFLIES EMERGE AND DISCOVER TOPIARIES

Darden suggests visiting The Goodness Garden Butterfly House Presented by GoGo squeeZ located in Future World West early to watch butterflies emerging, then follow the Passport guide to locate topiaries of beloved Disney Characters—always a Guest favorite. “This year we’re introducing a new Remy topiary in the Ratatouille Garden near the France pavilion,” Darden reveals.

DINE AL FRESCO

When hunger strikes, head for one of the 16 Outdoor Kitchens. “We’re bringing back all the favorite Outdoor Kitchens from last year,” says Chelsea Florig, Project Manager for Food & Beverage at Epcot®. Among them are Citrus Blossom, Honey Bee-stro and Trowel & Trellis, where you can munch on grilled corn dripping with plant-based butter. Yum!

TREAT YOUR SENSE OF SOUND

All day, you’ve celebrated your sense of taste, touch, smell and sight, now add sound with the Garden Rocks Concert Series at the America Gardens Theatre at the American pavilion. The concert plays three times nightly, seven days a week. “Over the course of the Festival we bring in 33 artists,” says David Baldree, Producer, Disney Parks Live Entertainment. So check the schedule frequently at FreshEpcot.com. TIP: You can enjoy guaranteed seating when you reserve a dining package at participating restaurants in Epcot®.

WATCH YOUR GARDEN GROW

“We hear from our Guests that the festival has inspired their family to start a garden at home,” Darden says. “I think the Festival has helped spark interest in gardening as a fun, healthy and satisfying activity that brings families together. It’s exciting to see how far we’ve grown together!”

NEW MERCHANDISE IN BLOOM

This year new festival merchandise includes collections inspired by Minnie, Mickey, Orange Bird and Spike the Bee! Keep your eyes peeled for this brand-new headband from the Orange Bird-inspired collection and other items from the Minnie’s World in Bloom collection, including a flower crown and spirit jersey.

Rising to the Challenge

Learn about the creation of Star Wars: Rise of the Resistance now open at the Disneyland® Resort and Walt Disney World® Resort.³

Sometimes inspiration seems to come suddenly. But, in reality, inspiration actually never comes without months of thinking, concepting and planning. “We began the development process for Star Wars: Rise of the Resistance in what we call the ‘blue sky’ phase which is the way we always work. Everyone is coming up with possibilities for experiences and ride systems,” says John Larena, Executive Creative Director, Walt Disney Imagineering.

THE STORY BEHIND THE THRILLS

“This blue sky phase took about 18 months alone. During this time we came up with a lot of possibilities. We had a jigsaw puzzle of exciting elements that had been vetted for their technical and financial feasibility. But the final idea was ultimately born one morning over coffee. Suddenly, all the ideas coalesced. We had our attraction! When we presented the concept to our partners at Lucasfilm, their reaction was strongly enthusiastic. It was so exciting. We never looked back!”

Every Disney attraction takes you into a story, and Star Wars: Rise of the Resistance is no exception. “The attraction’s story is inspired by the original film Star Wars: A New Hope,” Larena says. “Seeing Han Solo, Obi-Wan Kenobi and Luke Skywalker get captured on the Death Star, then rescuing Princess Leia and pulling off an escape against the odds always resonated with me. It’s a classic story theme and it makes a very compelling experience. Star Wars: Rise of the Resistance begins on a Resistance outpost, then you leave the planet Batuu and head out into space and onto a Star Destroyer. This places the characters Rey, Poe, Finn and Kylo in environments that you expect to see them in and makes the whole experience authentic to the movies.”

In order to bring the experience to life for Guests and truly immerse them in the story, Star Wars: Rise of the Resistance has become one of the largest attractions ever built at any Disney park. “This is a 360-degree experience, no 3D glasses or suspension of belief is required,” Larena reveals. “When you’re on a Resistance flight deck, you really have Poe’s X-wing with BB-8 next to you while you walk up the ramp into your 70-foot-long transport ship. When your ship gets tractor beamed onto a Star Destroyer, you and your entire ship are now physically inside a massive hangar bay guarded by 50 stormtroopers. Later on, when you encounter two All Terrain Armored Transport (AT-AT) walkers, they really are looming over you as you speed between their legs avoiding blaster fire. The challenge in delivering an attraction this massive was making sure that every single inch of it got the attention to detail needed to give you a realistic experience.”

FROM CONCEPT TO CONCRETE

An attraction as huge and complex as Star Wars: Rise of the Resistance is bound to have a few challenges before takeoff. But those same unexpected surprises can often lead to great new solutions. “I think the development of our trackless vehicle was one of those moments,” Larena says. “We started off thinking we could build upon one of our previously used systems, but eventually found out that the level of complexity involved with a trackless ride engaging with other ride mechanisms required us to start from scratch with an entirely new software system. This gave us the flexibility to push the envelope and go far beyond what was previously possible.”

Walt Disney Imagineers worked with show and ride vendors in five countries and shot ride footage on the stages of Star Wars: Episodes VIII and IX at Pinewood Studios. “We had hundreds of construction workers and craft people working multiple shifts a day in Anaheim and Orlando simultaneously for over three years,” Larena says. “Walt Disney Imagineering has over a hundred different disciplines and every kind of talent came into play. Industrial Light & Magic partnered with us to create the space battles and Skywalker Sound brought in over 40 years of iconic sounds into our mix to help us craft an audible masterpiece. It was an amazing team effort.”

Creating Parade Magic

The enchanting new Magic Happens parade arrives February 28th, at Disneyland[®] Park.³

Get your treat, find your favorite spot on the walkways between "it's a small world" and Main Street, U.S.A., and prepare to be enchanted by the new Magic Happens parade when this daytime spectacle debuts February 28th at Disneyland[®] Park.

CELEBRATING MAGICAL DISNEY MOMENTS

"Parades have always been an important part of the Disneyland[®] Park legacy experience since the park first opened," says David Duffy, Director of Creative Development and Production for Disney Parks Live Entertainment at the Disneyland[®] Resort. "They give Guests ways to experience both new and classic Disney stories in fresh, exciting ways. It's always an amazing experience to be part of creating something new."

"This parade is all about celebrating the way magic affects both the Characters in the stories and us as viewers and Guests," explains Jordan Peterson, Show Director, Disney Parks Live Entertainment. "The parade is like a love letter to those special transformative moments."

REVELATIONS AND TRANSFORMATIONS

"Parades are like a 360-degree show that moves past you, revealing surprises that unfold as it goes by," Duffy says. Featuring more than six floats, over 90 performers and dancers and a cool, contemporary parade anthem written by Todrick Hall, the Magic Happens parade is all about those revelations. "In the Moana sequence you see the ocean come to life," Duffy says. "The Coco float depicts Miguel's journey across the gleaming marigold bridge. And we're celebrating the world of Frozen 2 with a representation of the magical forest," Peterson adds. "We've designed the floats so that different Characters and scenes are revealed a little at a time so each float is a journey of discovery. The grand finale takes up one-third of the parade, with multiple floats depicting some of the greatest magical moments throughout our Company's history," Duffy says. "Cinderella's pumpkin transforms into a carriage, Tiana and Naveen turn back into their human forms and Princess Aurora waltzes on clouds in a gown that changes from pink to blue before your eyes."

"Creating the parade was a two-year process and an international effort," Duffy says. "And it was a work of heart for us," Peterson adds. "We're both so fortunate to be able to create art that helps make magic happen for our Guests."

Bringing Epic Battles to the Screen

Stunt Coordinator, Ben Cooke, talks about creating the Mulan battle scenes in theaters March 27th.

The tale of China's legendary warrior comes to life in Disney's new live-action film, Mulan, the story of the fearless young woman who risks everything out of love for her family and her country and becomes one of the greatest warriors China has ever known. Masquerading as a man, Hua Jun, she must harness her inner-strength and embrace her true potential. She also has to learn to fight. So did Liu Yifei, who plays the title role and hundreds of other actors. "It was an immense undertaking that required careful step-by-step planning and intense training," says Ben Cooke, Stunt Coordinator.

BREAKING THE BATTLES DOWN

"I read the script, came up with ideas and met with Director Niki Caro to discuss what we were trying to achieve in each scene," says Cooke. "Then we broke each sequence into bite-sized pieces and built them, adding choreography and action. Once we were happy with the sequence, we rehearsed every day, until an entire sequence was camera ready. It was intense."

Many of the actors did their own stunts, which required thorough training in multiple physical disciplines. "The actors trained for two hours daily with stunt experts," Cooke says. "They started with the basic foundation movements of classical Chinese martial arts to keep everything super authentic. Liu Yifei trained constantly for her role as Mulan. The volume of fights she needed to learn was extraordinary. She is uber-talented with the sword, staff, open hand, tai chi, fast-paced wushu and also wires and horses. You name it, she did it! One time while galloping a horse, she had to draw her sword and fire her bow while chasing a team of 10 horses and being filmed from a pick-up truck with a camera crane on the back... oh, and she had to act while doing all that!"

LOCATION CHALLENGES

One of the biggest challenges the filmmakers faced was shooting in three different locations. "In New Zealand, we used both the North and South Islands which are very remote," Cooke says. "We also shot in China. All locations had large action sequences so sourcing and moving our resources was demanding." In addition, weather was not always cooperative. "It was very hot in China," Cooke recalls. "Then, while we were shooting on the South Island of New Zealand, it was quite cold. In fact, we were snowed in one day. We had dozens of horses, hundreds of performers and a whole shooting crew huddled under whatever shelter they could find."

A JOURNEY OF GROWTH

"But the film is about so much more than battles. We tried to keep the action grounded," Cooke says. "Mulan is a real girl developing into a real woman. She is not a superhero, although she is special. She is graceful and artistic. It was important to follow this narrative and not let the language of the action muddle it. At the start of the film, young Mulan runs around her village chasing a chicken. By the end of the film, she has become a strong woman. That's what excites me most about this story. I hope it will inspire others as well."

Fantasy Will Never Be the Same

Prepare to be surprised and enchanted when Disney•Pixar's Onward arrives in theaters March 6th.

Talking fish, toys, cars and bugs, and houses that fly on balloons are all a fantasy, of course. But with Onward, the storytellers at Disney•Pixar have delved into the realm of classic fantasy, complete with elves, sprites, and wizards for the first time. But wait... this isn't your typical fantasy world and neither are the characters. True to the Pixar storytelling charm, Onward puts a humorous, contemporary twist on everything you thought you knew about trolls, dragons and more.

THE QUEST IS ON

Onward tells the tale of two teenage elf brothers, Ian and Barley Lightfoot (voiced by Tom Holland and Chris Pratt) who use a magic spell to bring back their dad who died when they were very young. If the spell succeeds, they'll have a whole day to get to know him. Unfortunately, the spell only brings back dad's lower half. So they set out on a quest to discover if there is still enough magic left in the world to bring all of their dad back. But they only have 24 hours to complete their quest.

"The idea for this film was inspired by my own relationship with my brother," says Director Dan Scanlon. "He and I lost our father when we were very young, and my personal journey to understand who I was is the emotional theme for Onward."

SUBURBAN FANTASY

"Telling a story that draws on what I call 'high fantasy'—the kinds of stories we associate with Tolkien for instance, is different for Pixar storytellers," says Scanlon. "Most of those stories are set in historical periods or fantastical worlds like Middle Earth. We asked ourselves if we could set Onward in the modern world. It opened up so many possibilities for humor!"

UNDERSTANDING THE WORLD

According to Scanlon, magic existed long ago in the world of Onward, but because of "difficulties and complications, everyone simply lost interest in using their powers and either created or used machines to do both the magical and the mundane." So Centaurs now drive zippy cars instead of running. Pixies book flights on airplanes instead of using their own wing power. Even the architecture is affected—like mushroom homes sprouting satellite dishes and garages.

FUN FACT

The iconic Pizza Planet truck from Toy Story appears in every Pixar film, and Onward is no exception. But Scanlon says it will have a slightly different name this time—so look sharp!

LAUGHTER AND LEARNING

"The beauty of telling a story like Onward isn't just that it's funny and entertaining," Scanlon says. "It's the chance to explore specific emotions. I think when a film is emotionally truthful, it connects with people in a universal way. That's a movie that has a reason to exist."

SPRITES WITH WHEEL'ITUDE

"Sprites are classically known as mischief makers," Scanlon says, "but ours have geared up to a whole new level. We originally thought we'd put them each on their own miniature motorcycles, but then one of the artists drew them all riding one giant motorcycle and it was much funnier that way, so we went with it."

DUMPSTER DIVERS WITH HORNS

"Unicorns are depicted as rare and beautiful in classic fantasy," Scanlon says. "We wanted to do something different, so now they're everywhere, getting into the trash, making messes and being a nuisance. They gave us a lot of opportunities for humor. I love them!"

TAKE THE TROLL ROAD

"In many fairytales, trolls stand guard beneath bridges and require a riddle to let someone pass," Scanlon explains. "Our trolls have jobs as toll collectors on toll roads. It's much less damp than crouching under a bridge. Drivers can still pay in riddles, but it's usually faster to use cash."

MOW, BLOW, CLIP 'N' GO

"Gardening is the perfect non-magical job for a garden gnome," Scanlon says. "Although the little guys sometimes have to wrestle with mowers, blowers and trimmers that are larger than they are. But they can still trim a hedge faster than you can say, 'hedge clippers.'"
