My New Friends

Last month I attended an International conference in New York organized by UNESCO. I met lots of people from different countries there, and I made friends with Pier Chevalier, Kevin Smith, and Mei Ling.

Pier Chevalier is from Marseille, France. He is a doctor and is in his late forties. He looks rather thin; perhaps because he is very tall. He must be over 1.80 m. His neatly trimmed beard is the first thing you would notice about him. When we were together, he was always cheerful, and he made us laugh a lot.

Next is Kevin Smith. Kevin is a thirty-five years old lecturer from Washington D.C. He is not tall for an African-American, just about 1.70 m, I guess, and he is of medium build. I like his curly black hair and thin moustache. Kevin showed us the sight of New York during a tour of the city. He was very helpful and never got tired of answering our questions about the Big Apple.

Finally, there is Mei Ling. She is 25 years old. She is a teacher of economics at a senior high school in Canton. She is about 1.58 m tall, just like me. Mei Ling is pretty. She has a nice smile. Her eyes are bright and slanted, and her nose is rather flat. She has beautiful black hair. It has loose around her shoulders. She liked to be with us, but she didn't talk much.

Once upon a time, there lived a kindhearted man and his wife. One morning , his wife found a poor little sparrow. She took it gently and fed it. To show its gratitude, the sparrow stayed with them and sang every morning. But there was an ill-tempered old woman who did not like the sparrow. She cut the sparrow's tongue.
