RESEARCH PROJECTS

- Bridging the tradition of activism and professionalism within the context of contemporary urban education: Perspectives from Birmingham educators born pre- and post-Civil Rights Movement. From a life course and life story perspective, the aim of this study is to examine how educators in the Birmingham metropolitan area view the salience of activism in carrying out their roles in urban schools and communities. A core assumption of this study is that a historical discontinuity in the tradition of activism exists between African-American educators born pre- and post civil rights. This discontinuity is attributed primarily to a failure to articulate and bridge between the generations, the historical memory of the struggles for social justice in the education profession. Forty-two African-American educators selected along the dimensions of generation, gender, and professional role were interviewed. Principal Investigator. 2004-present
- Communities and Schools Together (CAST) Project. CAST is a comprehensive plan to support the involvement of families and communities in the education of urban students. The core activities of CAST include: researching current national and local trends in parent involvement and home-school relations; training of educational professionals who work closely with urban parents and families; and serving as a coordinating entity to bring together families, educators, community representatives and agencies, and other local and national actors. CAST will serve as a clearinghouse for the dissemination of effective practices in promoting urban family involvement in education. P.I. 2005-2012

QUALITATIVE PROGRAM EVALUATION

- CAST Evaluation of UTEP Collaborative Skills Competency: The TRUST Initiative. Completed an evaluation of UTEP's progress and future needs in helping its alumni teachers acquire competency in the area of collaborative skills, particularly related to parent and community partnerships. Was responsible for design and implementation, which entailed: participant recruitment and follow up; training graduate student interviewers to implement the evaluation process; training Center for Urban Education staff for administrative support; survey and interview data analysis; and report writing and presentations.
