4. Product Activation on an Existing Install

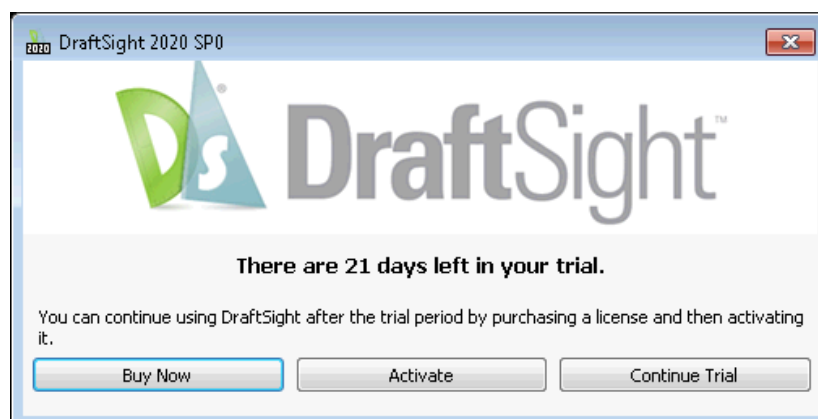

If you are running a DraftSight Premium trial on your machine, understandably the process will be different, and does not require the reinstallation of the application.

After purchasing the DraftSight subscription (Standard, Professional, Premium), you will receive a confirmation in email format with the purchase details. This email message will contain your DraftSight product license/Serial Number as indicated by the red arrow in the following image. You will use this Serial Number to activate your product.

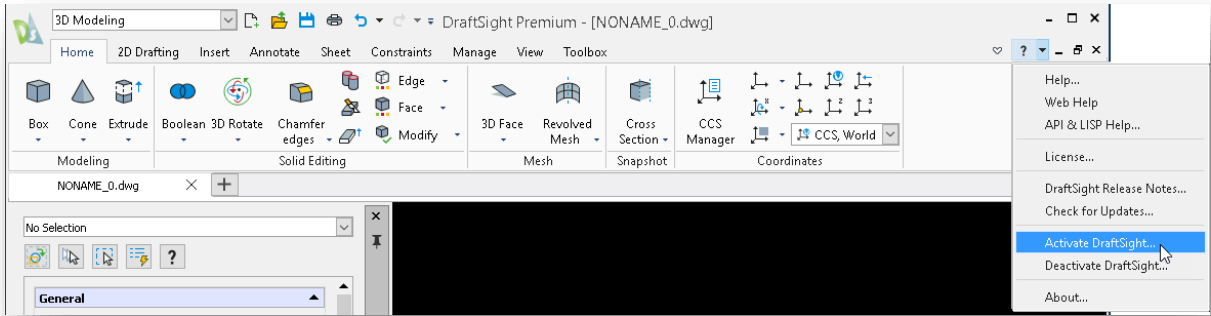

To activate your DraftSight License:

1. Launch DraftSight. If still enjoying a 30 day DraftSight Premium Trial, you can activate your product by clicking in the correspondent button in the dialog when launching DraftSight:

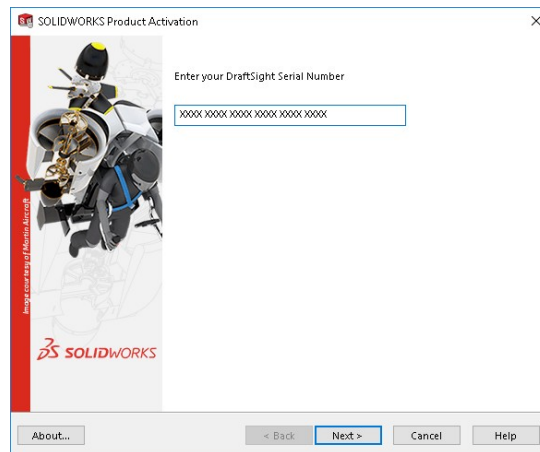

2. If/when using DraftSight, you can also use the option In the Help menu (select the option “Activate DraftSight”).

Note: Depending on which layout/user interface is set, the Help menu appears in different places either as a menu entry (if using the Classic Layout) or under the question mark as shown below.

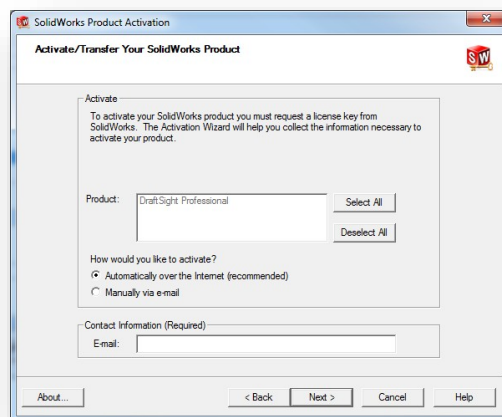

The SOLIDWORKS Product Activation wizard appears.

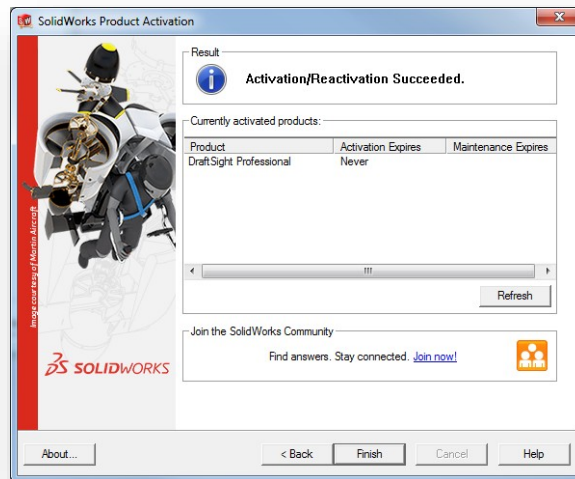

3. Type the serial number for your DraftSight license and then click Next.

4. Select your activation method, type your contact information, and then click Next.

5. The activation wizard sends the information to the SOLIDWORKS Activation Server for validation.
6. Upon validation, a message appears informing you of successful activation.

7. Click Finish, and then restart the DraftSight application.

Note: When you open the DraftSight software, there are no changes to the splash screen of the software. Within the DraftSight user interface, you will notice a few changes including the availability of new features and options. If you want to verify that the installation process was successful, look for the new “API & LISP Help” and “DraftSight Premium Help” options under the Help menu.

5. License Management

Users can manage their License using the options “Activate/Deactivate DraftSight”, available under the DraftSight Help menu. Under the current licensing model, you can only activate your DraftSight Serial Number/Product on one computer at any given time. However, should you need to use the product on a different computer on a temporary basis, or in case of computer replacement, you can transfer your License to a different computer, using the options mentioned above.

To “Transfer the DraftSight License”:

- In the computer where the License is active, Go to the Help menu > Deactivate DraftSight.
- Once the License is released, you will be able to activate the License on any computer to your convenience.

Note: Failing to release the License from the computer where is currently activated prior to performing the product activation, will cause the activation on the new computer to fail.

Note: Please keep in mind that the objective of this functionality (“Activate/Deactivate” DraftSight) is not to emulate a floating licensing such as is available for the DraftSight Enterprise software. The number of License Transfers is currently limited to 100 transfers.

6. FAQ's and Troubleshooting

If your subscription expires, and you want to renew your subscription in order to regain access to the software, you can do so by contacting the Cleverbridge Support Team (contact in the email/receipt received at the time of your purchase).

▶ What if I require technical support?

Technical Support and Order Processing Support contacts can be found in the email that contains the DraftSight product serial number that you receive at the time of purchase. When contacting the support teams, always include your DraftSight serial number.

You can report Installation and Licensing issues to the DraftSight Technical Support Team. Support contact information is provided in the email/receipt that you receive at the time of purchase.

(DraftSight.com/Community).

For issues that relate to the Purchase / Order process, please contact the Cleverbridge Support Team. Support contact information is provided in the email/receipt that you receive at the time of purchase.

▶ Can I use DraftSight Standard/Professional/Premium on more than one computer?

Under the current licensing model, you can only activate your DraftSight Serial Number/Product on one computer at any given time. Should you need to use the product on a different computer on a temporary basis, or in case of computer replacement, you can transfer your License to a different computer, using the options available for License Management.

In order to Transfer your DraftSight license, in the computer where the License is active, Go to the Help menu > Deactivate DraftSight: Once the License is released, you will be able to activate the License in any computer to your convenience.

Note: Failing to release the License from the computer where is currently activated prior to perform the product activation, will cause the activation on the new computer to fail.

Note: Please keep in mind that the objective of this functionality (“Activate”/Deactivate” DraftSight) is not to emulate a floating licensing such as is available for the DraftSight Enterprise or Enterprise Plus software. The number of License Transfers is currently limited to 100 transfers.

▶ Where can I find the DraftSight installation files?

The different DraftSight products (Standard, Professional, Premium, Enterprise and Enterprise Plus) share the same installation file. During the installation process, the user selects the product to install. The installation is validated locally by the activation method that corresponds to the product selected, as described earlier in this document.

The only method of distribution for the DraftSight product is via the Dassault Systemes DraftSight product page at:

DraftSight.com/Download

▶ My computer broke down: I am not able to transfer DraftSight to a different computer

In this case, it is possible to disable the computer, in order to allow activation of the product on other computer. Contact the DraftSight Technical Support Team to report the failure, including your DraftSight serial number and request the computer disablement.

▶ After upgrading hardware or OS, DraftSight stopped working

For licensing purposes, DraftSight generates and uses information based on the local hardware and OS configuration. Some operations like upgrades or replacement of the OS or hardware can affect this information and cause the licensing to fail. To prevent any issues, the DraftSight Technical Support team recommends that you use the Transfer Activation functionality prior to performing any of these operations. After completing these operations, you only need to reactivate the product on the computer. If you performed any of the operations mentioned, and then lose access to the product, please contact the DraftSight Technical Support Team. Support contacts can be found in the email that contains the DraftSight Professional serial number that you receive at the time of purchase. When contacting the support teams, always include your DraftSight Professional serial number.

► Where can I find information about the functionality available?

Product installation adds information to the standard Help files. A new set of options will be available from the product Help menu. The new options include the “DraftSight Premium Help”, which contains information about the product specific features, and the “DraftSight API & Lisp Help”. We recommend in particular the information available under the “Contents” tab as a learning resource. You can find other documentation and information in:
