Learning Simulations

Mission U.S. <http://mission-us.org>

Developed for use in middle & high school the simulations engage students in the study of transformational moments in U.S. history. Each mission consists of an interactive simulation and a set of curriculum materials that are aligned to national standards and feature document-based activities. The interactive immerses players in rich, historical settings and then empowers them to make choices that illuminate how ordinary people experienced the past. The Educator's Guide provides a wealth of resources and activities for both teachers and students, including primary source documents that show the broader social, political, and economic context of events and perspectives featured in the game. Since some of the topics Mission US explores are difficult, it is recommended that teachers/parents preview the simulation content to make sure it is appropriate for their students/children.

NEW MISSION DUE OUT IN JUNE! "Prisoner in My Homeland" focused on a Japanese American teenage boy's experiences during the WWII internment.

MISSIONS "For Crown or Colony?" puts players in the shoes of Nat Wheeler, a printer's apprentice in 1770 Boston. They encounter both Patriots and Loyalists, and when rising tensions result in the Boston Massacre, they must choose where their loyalties lie. A brand-new version of this game is now available!

In "Flight to Freedom," players take on the role of Lucy, a 14-year-old girl enslaved in Kentucky who escapes to Ohio. As Lucy joins a community of abolitionists, players discover that life in the "free" North is dangerous and difficult. In 1850, the Fugitive Slave Act threatens all African Americans in the North and brings new urgency to the anti-slavery movement.

In "A Cheyenne Odyssey," players become Little Fox, a Northern Cheyenne boy whose life is changed by the encroachment of white settlers, railroads, and U.S. military expeditions. As buffalo diminish and the U.S. expands westward, players experience the Cheyenne's persistence through conflict and national transformation.

In "City of Immigrants," players navigate New York's Lower East Side as Lena, a young Jewish immigrant from Russia. Trying to save money to bring her parents to America, she works long hours in a factory for little money and gets caught up in the growing labor movement.

In "Up from the Dust," players take on the roles of twins Frank and Ginny Dunn, whose family wheat farm is devastated by the Great Depression and Dust Bowl. As they experience the hardships of the 1930s, players learn about Americans' strategies for survival – as individuals, communities, and a nation. "Up from the Dust" is available online and as free iPad and Windows 10 apps.

Pushout: The Criminalization of Black Girls in School
Airs 5/18 at 9 p.m.

<https://pushoutfilm.com/>

A feature length documentary that takes a deep dive into the lives of Black girls and the practices, cultural beliefs and policies that disrupts one of the most important factors in girls' lives – education. The documentary underscores the challenges Black girls face with insight from experts across the country who have worked extensively in the field of social justice, gender equality and educational equity. These experts give context to the crisis and provide a roadmap for how our educational system and those who interact with Black girls can provide a positive rather than punitive response to behaviors that are often misunderstood or mis-represented. While the challenges facing Black boys in this country have garnered national attention, absent from that conversation was how girls of color, particularly Black girls, are being impacted. PUSHOUT addresses that crisis. The documentary focuses on challenges Black girls face, emphasizing first-person narratives from girls. We hear from them as young as the age of seven and as old as 19. They describe navigating a society that often marginalizes and dismisses them. At the same time the documentary lays out how adults and policy makers can address the needs of these young girls and women with positive responses that can short circuit the pervasive over punishment of Black girls.

6/15 at 10 p.m.—Recorder: The Marion Stokes Project

Marion Stokes secretly recorded American television 24 hours a day for 30 years, from 1975 until her death in 2012. Long before the era of “fake news,” the Philadelphia-based Communist and radical activist believed that a comprehensive archive of the media would one day be invaluable, protecting the truth by archiving everything that was said and shown on television. Her visionary and maddening project nearly tore her family apart, and her son reflects back on his fractured, fascinating relationship with his complicated and fabulously wealthy mother. Now her 70,000 VHS tapes are being digitized for future generations, giving us all an eye-opening glimpse into how television shaped, and continues to shape, our world.

In 2019, vaping became a crisis in the United States, as thousands experienced severe lung injuries and dozens died after vaping black market products.

- 2,200 people have been sickened and 47 have died from using black market vaping products (as of November 20, 2019) But there's also a slower and more insidious crisis, as marketers target teens with flavored nicotine vaping cartridges, hooking a new generation on this by-product of tobacco.
- e-cigarette use has skyrocketed among teens, with one in four high school seniors nationwide saying they vaped in the last month.

Most young people are unaware of the short and long-term health impacts of vaping!

In an hour-long special, KRCB-FM Northern California Public Media talks with high school administrators, health professionals and students to investigate the vaping epidemic.
