Introduction

Welcome to Effective Reading, a four-level reading course specially designed to meet the needs and interests of students studying English in universities. Effective Reading is different from other course books of its kind in the following principle ways:

High interest reading texts

The main aim of Effective Reading is to provide reading texts of high interest to university students. Too often course books aimed at an international audience contain content that is either uninteresting or simply irrelevant to students, making it difficult for teachers to keep students engaged in the material. In Effective Reading, all reading texts have been written specifically to match the interests of young adults. To increase student interest in reading materials, scholar Anthony Bruton (1997) recommends avoiding '(a) general topics with the predictable liberal slant, often communicating nothing that is new; (b) topics of technical or scientific interest to which nothing can be added; (c) culturally distant and anecdotally irrelevant topics; and (d) narratives with a high cultural content.' We took this advice to heart when selecting and developing reading texts in order to maximize student interest, while ensuring that the content is still appropriate for an academic institution.

Reading skills development

Effective Reading teaches reading skills and strategies to help students become more efficient and successful readers. Skills such as skimming, scanning and guessing word meanings from context are found in every unit. Effective Reading also promotes the practice of extensive reading. Information on how to read extensively, as well as extracts from Macmillan Graded Readers, give students the opportunity to discover that reading in English at their level of difficulty can be an enjoyable way to develop reading skills, as well as other language skills.

Academic vocabulary development

University students need to be able to read English materials relating to their major, and this requires consolidating their existing knowledge of vocabulary commonly used in academic settings. To reinforce the vocabulary support in Effective Reading books 1–4, the Teacher's Files provide additional vocabulary exercises and tests on words selected from the Academic Word List (a list of words which are common in academic texts).

Improving vocabulary knowledge is dependent on good dictionary skills. Using examples from the Macmillan English Dictionary, the Teacher's File provides dictionary skills exercises to increase students' familiarity with English-English dictionaries and to help students use them more effectively.

Overview of Effective Reading books 1–4

Each book is composed of 12 units, with two reading texts per unit. The format of each unit is as follows:

PRE-READING EXERCISES

These exercises activate the reader's background knowledge to make the text more accessible, preview key vocabulary and stimulate interest in the text.

FIRST READING TEXT

This is the main reading text of the unit. The core language (vocabulary and grammar) exercises are drawn primarily from this text.

POST-READING EXERCISES

The first post-reading exercise checks general comprehension of the first reading text. The second post-reading exercise highlights specific sentences and expressions from the text, which are typically problematic for learners. Rather than waiting for the teacher to explain or translate the text, this exercise gives students a chance to find the answers on their own.

LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT AND SPEAKING EXERCISES

These exercises provide extended work on essential vocabulary and grammar from the first reading text. Only language items which are common in natural English use are selected, as these are words and structures which students are likely to encounter again and again in their future English study. The speaking exercises give students the chance to reflect on and evaluate the first reading text, as well as personalize the content.

SECOND READING TEXT AND READING SKILLS WORK

The second reading text is shorter and slightly simpler in language than the first reading text. In this section, students further develop specific reading skills such as skimming, scanning, reading speed, guessing word meanings from context, and so on.

NOTES ON 1ST TEXT

Culture notes

Some people believe that euphemisms are often used unnecessarily for reasons of extreme political correctness. For example, deferred success may be seen as a rather ridiculous way of saying failure; person who is hearing-impaired is a lengthy way of saying deaf; and thought shower was created as a way of avoiding the common expression brainstorm, which some people believed could offend people who suffered from epileptic fits.

Vocabulary notes

The word euphemism comes from the Greek word euphemos which can be translated as "good speech."

The military euphemism friendly fire has been around since the Vietnam War. It was used to distinguish soldiers who were killed by enemy fire from those killed by their own troops by accident.

NOTES ON 1ST TEXT

Culture notes

Text A: Nathan's Hot Dog Eating Contest has been taking place in Coney Island since 1916. Coney Island is a peninsula in Brooklyn, New York, where several films have been set. The competition is said to have started when four immigrants wanted to prove who was most patriotic – by eating the most hot dogs sold at Nathan's Hot Dog restaurant.

Text B: One of Italy's favourite seafood specialities is Ricci di Mare, or Sea Urchins. If you are in Italy during the summer, you can find families down on the beach, having a snack of fresh sea urchins at lunchtime. Sea urchins are considered a delicacy because it takes considerable effort to collect them, and there isn't a huge amount of 'meat' inside them once you have opened up the spiny shell.

Text C: The Wildfoods Festival in Hokitika, New Zealand, started in 1990, as a way of celebrating the birth of the mining town 125 years previously.

Text D: Kvass has been a common drink in Eastern Europe since ancient times. It is sold in the summer on the street by Kvass vendors in major cities in Russia and other Slavic countries. But it can also be bought commercially in bottles and cans throughout the year.

Text E: Blowfish is also known as puffer fish, or fugu. According to www.japanesefood.about.com, some typical ways to serve fugu are, for example, raw and thinly sliced and served with citrus juice and soy sauce, or by putting the grilled fin into hot sake.

Text F: Iguana meat can be more expensive than beef, poultry, pork or fish: this is probably because of the local belief that it has medicinal value and can also work as an aphrodisiac!

Model answer for paragraph 3 and conclusion:

However, most young people have a balanced outlook on fashion. They recognize what suits them and they do not overspend on their credit card. Indeed, it is rather unfair to accuse them of being superficial. Many are deeply concerned about other issues and they are faced with some tough questions: What will the job market be like? What kind of environment will we be living in? Am I going to be affected by war?

We can conclude that the majority of young people today have just as many concerns and interests as previous generations – perhaps even more.

What's in fashion?

1. a. in a fashion magazine/fashion column in a newspaper b. women aged 18–30 2. come back in = become fashionable again; catwalk = the raised areas that the models walk on at a fashion show; suntan = the dark skin color you get by sunbathing or using a tanning cream; out = unfashionable; trend = a look or style that is becoming popular

What's in fashion?

1. Read the headline and the paragraph below and answer the questions.

- Where would you see this kind of text?
- Who is the text aimed at?

Black is the new blond!

If you're a red head or brunette, or better still, have black hair, your look has just come back in. Forget dyed blonde hair – most of the models who appeared on the catwalk this season are wearing their hair dark, sleek and long. And according to fashion editor

Daniella Presley at MissFit magazine, we should all be changing the contents of our cosmetics bag this autumn. "Bright make-up like white lipstick, thick black eyeliner and orange suntans are definitely out. The new trend is to look as natural as possible."

2. Use the context to guess the meaning of the vocabulary in bold.

3. Which of the following things would you wear or have? Why (not)?

- hip hop clothes
- surfer clothes
- a crucifix
- dyed hair
- secondhand clothes
- designer clothes

Damien Hirst is an English artist who dominated the art scene in Britain during the 1990s and is now famous all over the world. During this time his career was closely linked with the collector Charles Saatchi.

Hirst's works are often concerned with death. He became famous for a series in which dead animals are preserved in formaldehyde. A 4.3 m dead shark in a glass case, became the symbol of 'Britart' worldwide.

David Černý is a Czech sculptor who gained notoriety in 1991 by painting a Soviet tank pink that served as a war memorial in central Prague, for which he was briefly arrested

He attracted controversy again in 2009 for his EU sculpture Entropa. This was for two reasons: Firstly, he stereotyped various EU member states in an unflattering way. Secondly, the sculpture was supposed to have been a collaboration of EU artists, but was actually made by Černý and two friends.

Tracey Emin is an artist of dual Turkish Cypriot and English nationality. Emin's art includes needlework and sculpture, drawing, video and installation, photography and painting.

In 1997, her work Everyone I Have Ever Slept With 1963–1995, a tent appliquéd with names, was shown at Charles Saatchi's Sensation exhibition. In 1999, she exhibited My Bed — an installation, consisting of her own unmade dirty bed with used condoms and blood-stained underwear.

NOTES ON 1ST TEXT

Culture notes

There are two issues in the text which may seem unusual in an Asian context. Firstly, it is common in anglophone countries for young people (14 and over) to have part-time jobs. In the 14–16 age group, delivering newspapers or working in a supermarket are typical jobs and are ways to supplement pocket money. Part-time jobs are also regarded as a way for parents to encourage self-reliance and independence. Many college students also work during the summer or on weekends, doing bar or café work, working in factories, or doing simple administration work in offices. This is to help pay for accommodation and tuition, since they have to pay back the government loan for all their college/university costs. Secondly, it is usual in Western countries for people to look each other in the eye when they are talking, no matter if someone is older or senior. If you do not look someone in the eye, they may believe you are dishonest or very nervous.

Himalayan people have talked about the Yeti for centuries, but the legend first attracted Western attention in the 1920s, when a group of English explorers came across some large, human-like footprints. Since then, expeditions have searched for evidence of the Yeti and some claim to have had genuine sightings or encounters.

The Loch Ness Monster first made media headlines in 1933 when a couple were driving near Loch Ness, a large freshwater lake in Scotland. They saw a giant animal with a small head, a large body and a long neck leaping out of the water. Since then, 10,000 sightings have been reported and people have tried to find evidence of the monster's existence using sonar and submarines, but no conclusive proof has been found.

A statue of a weeping Madonna (Virgin Mary) is supposed to weep tears of blood. One theory suggests the liquid is actually moisture coming out of cracks. This event is seen as a miracle by some Christians.

Crop circles started to appear in corn fields in England in the 1970s. People believed these patterns were either made by aliens in UFOs or by tornadoes. In fact they were made by two men, Doug Bower and Dave Chorley, who did it for a hoax, using planks of wood, wire and rope.

Mexicans survive 11 months at sea

Three Mexican fishermen have been rescued by Taiwanese sailors after spending 11 months adrift on the Pacific Ocean. Lucio Rendon, Salvador Ordoneze and Jesus Vidana set sail from Mexico on October 9th, but strong ocean currents began to drive their 27 foot fiber glass boat westward after its engine failed. They had no way of calling for help as they had no radio aboard, and their compass could only tell them which direction the tide was taking them in. They claim to have survived on fish and the occasional sea bird. With no matches and no means of cooking, everything they caught had to be eaten raw. Although Rendon says they sometimes went without food for fifteen days, they were never in danger of dehydration since it rained every day. At night they huddled together to keep warm and tried in vain to signal distant boats with their one flashlight. Vidana, however, says they never lost hope as they prayed to God that they would be rescued.

The Siberian tiger (Panthera tigris altaica) is also known as the Amur, Manchurian, Altaic, Korean, North China or, Ussuri tiger. It could be found throughout Western and Central Asia and eastern Russia, but is now completely confined to areas of eastern Siberia, where it is now protected.

In the late 1980s, illegal deforestation and poaching put this tiger subspecies at risk of extinction as the Soviet Union broke down, along with law and order. However due to the work of The Siberian Tiger Project, founded in 1992, the Siberian tiger has made a steady recovery after the disastrous post-Soviet years that saw a sharp drop in its numbers. In addition to tagging tigers electronically and recording valuable information about their activities, the project included anti-poaching patrols, consultation with local governments regarding human-tiger conflicts, and reducing the amount of logging.

The title of the reading text "Big Brother is getting bigger" is a reference to George Orwell's novel 1984. Orwell wrote the novel in 1948 about a totalitarian state of the future. People were constantly watched by cameras and recorded by the Thought Police so they could not rebel against Big Brother, a term used to refer to the Party leader. Nowadays, people often refer to "Big Brother" as a way of criticizing the government for having too much power, even though they may not realize its fictional origins.

The UK government will vote on whether to make biometric cards compulsory for everyone in 2013. In some ways it is surprising that the current Labour government has introduced this scheme, since it was first suggested by members of the right-wing Conservative Party. In Britain some people feel that their civil liberties are being taken away, but the government claims they are protecting people from crime and terrorism.

The Rules: Time-Tested Secrets for Capturing the Heart of Mr Right, by Ellen Fein and Sherrie Schneider, was published in 1995. Fein and Schneider appeared on many US chat shows to promote and discuss their ideas. To many modern women, their ideas seemed very old-fashioned, but the book was still a huge publishing success. Fein and Schneider now have their own website where they advertise for Rules Facilitators, women who follow the advice in The Rules and who are available to give other women advice by telephone.

Neil Strauss works for Rolling Stone magazine, which is one of the best known music magazines in the US, and which also features articles on current trends and politics. Before becoming well-known for The Game, Strauss was also a 'ghostwriter,' someone who helps famous people write their books. If you do a Google search for Neil Strauss, there are many interviews in which he discusses the two years he spent with a group of 'pick-up artists,' learning how to impress women.

Vocabulary notes

A facilitator is a person who helps an organization or group of people find a solution to a problem. It is a term most commonly used in business or in adult education. A facilitator encourages people to use their own knowledge and experience to reach a decision or develop their learning – rather than directly giving his/her own opinion. In the text, 'A Rules Facilitator' is a person who helps women to understand the messages in The Rules – and put theory into practice.
