Jason could feel butterflies in his stomach as he entered the bustling airport. The plane is a zoor! his mother exclaimed as she got in line at the ticket counter behind about a million other travelers, like an obedient puppy. Jason followed. After waiting forever to check their luggage, Jason's family had a quick breakfast at the Bunen Bonuts counter before rushing off to airport security "town," where Jason, "another line." As he glanced ahead, Jason noticed that the main security guard looked more intimidating than Mr. T. Finally, Jason placed his shoes, belt, and change onto the first conveyor belt and walked through the metal detector, relieved when he didn't hear a beep. He collected his items and finally reached the gate, waiting in line to board the plane, an older lady asked Jason how he liked flying. He was close enough now to hear the engines roar as they came to life. "This is my first time," he replied.

___ simile ___ personification (2) ___ idiom
___ metaphor ___ alliteration (2) ___ allusion
___ hyperbole (2) ___ onomatopoeia

As Mom pulled the car into the driveway I stepped out and heard the sizzle of barbecue. I walked towards the backyard and inhaled the delicious scent of grilled chicken. The sun was getting ready for its nightly rest and the moon prepared to take its place. The picnic table felt as hot as a frying pan but I sat down anyway. I looked around the yard and realized that the grass was freshly mowed. Poked next to the barbecue pit, Dad looked more dreamy than Tom Cruise. Soon, Dad carried to the table a mountain of food stacked a mile high. Not caring what anyone thought, I pigged out on chicken, hot dogs, and hamburgers. I savored the sweet, sour, and salty flavors as they danced on my taste buds. Dad is the best barbecue chef in the entire world.

The bright sun gazed down on Grace and her family as they canoe through the calm, crystal clear waters of Gray Lake. The paddles, looking tired and worn out from their long day stouly path, the water bob, causing them to drift forward with each stroke. The huge Arkansas sun bakes their skin like cookies in an oven. Grace's mind is an ocean of peace she would rather be when the naboo a splashing sound in the distance. Suddenly Grace and her family stumble upon an immense waterfall. Grace wonders if Niagara Falls could possibly be as beautiful as this waterfall. With a sudden burst of energy, Grace paddles at the speed of light. She is on cloud nine as she approaches the waterfall that must stretch upwards for a hundred miles.

Long ago in a sleepy Japanese village, there lived a dragon named Boris. Boris, the Dainty Dragon, was admired by other dragons, young and old, as she was more lovely than any dragon ever had been. On a night as cold and black as marble, the Herculean Horseman rode into town. He was older, shabbier, and filled everyone in the village with fear, as it was known that anyone who had ever crossed paths with the Herculean Horseman had paid for it. It was even rumored that the Herculean Horseman could defeat thousands of enemies within seconds, word spread throughout the village that the Herculean Horseman had challenged Boris to a duel. Boris anxiously awaited the duel like a murderer awaiting trial. When the day arrived, the two met in the village square. Thunk! Thunk! The Herculean Horseman defeated Boris in under a second.

Figurative Language Stories #6 Task A: Identify Figurative Language

Party in Room 302

Find, underline, and label each instance of figurative language in the paragraph. Check it on the list as you go. You should find

___ simile (2) ___ personification (2) ___ idiom (2)
___ metaphor ___ alliteration (2) ___ allusion
___ hyperbole (2) ___ onomatopoeia (2)

The inside of room 302 was as disastrous as the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Desks screamed as they were pushed together by the students. The whispers of the paper airplanes and spitballs were lost amidst the laughter that could be heard in the next city. The classroom was a chaos while the students were having a whole of a time. The substitute teacher wondered if the principal might give her the boot after only her first day on the job. The substitute had made only a half-hearted attempt to regain control of the class when the door sprung to life and Mr. Miller walked in. Their teacher's arrival hit the students like a bucket of cold water to the face. Room 302 was suddenly so silent that you could have heard a pin drop.

Task C: Modify Figurative Language

Princess Penelope

In Task A, you found 12 instances of figurative language in the story. Choose any 5 of the 12 instances of figurative language and rewrite them, using the table below. If you choose a simile, you must write a new simile. Do not change one form of figurative language to another. There are two examples in the table to help you.

Figurative Language	Original (from the story)	New (my own)
alliteration	Princess Penelope	Lady Laura metaphor	the dress was a sparkling ruby	the dress was a sea of red

Task D: Revise Figurative Language

Princess Penelope

Using the original story from Task A and your new figurative language from Task C, copy the story, inserting your own modifications in place of the originals. Underline or highlight the five modifications that you made.

Handwriting practice area consisting of multiple horizontal lines. A large, faint watermark reading "do not copy" is overlaid across the center of the page.
