1. If you are experiencing problems with your automobile, you should first take the automobile to the manufacturer's authorized dealership for repair.

2. If the dealer is unable to resolve your problem, you should discuss the matter with the service manager.

3.. If the service manager is unable to resolve your problem, you should contact the manufacturer via telephone or in writing.

- DO NOT leave the dealership without your repair order (no repair order means no proof of repair).

- Make sure the repair order accurately reflects the date you dropped off the vehicle for repair and the date you picked up the vehicle when the repairs were completed.

- Make sure the dealership accurately describes your complaints in your words, not the dealership's words.

4. If you are unable to get satisfaction after you gone through steps 1 - 3, you should contact a lemon law attorney to find out more about your rights.

STATE LEMON LAWS

What is the Lemon Law

The Lemon Law is designed to protect consumers that purchase new cars, trucks, SUVs and mini-vans. As of 1993 all fifty U.S. states have passed Lemon Laws. Each state has different standards and procedures, but all have similar coverage.

There are also other Consumer Protection laws that apply to consumer product purchases. Complaints, recalls and class actions are also an option for certain cases. There are options for new, used and leased vehicles.

LEMON LAW • FAQ

What is the Lemon Law? • BACK

The Lemon Law is designed to protect consumers that purchase new cars, trucks, SUVs and mini-vans. As of 1993 all fifty U.S. states have passed Lemon Laws. Each state has different standards and procedures, but all have similar coverage.

There are also other Consumer Protection laws that apply to consumer product purchases. Complaints, recalls and class actions are also an option for certain cases. There are options for new, used and leased vehicles.

What if the Lemon Law does NOT apply? • BACK

If the defects with your vehicle do not meet the requirements of the Lemon Law, you may have claims under other state and federal laws that protect owners of new or used vehicles.

What Is a Safety-Related Defect? • BACK

Generally, a safety-related defect is a problem that exists in a motor vehicle or item of motor vehicle equipment which:

- poses an unreasonable risk to safety, and
- is common to a group of vehicles of the same design or manufacture, or items of equipment of the same type and manufacture.

When Is a Recall Necessary? • BACK

- When a motor vehicle or item of motor vehicle equipment (including tires) does not comply with a Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard.
- When there is a safety-related defect present in the vehicle or equipment.

Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards set minimum performance levels for those parts of the vehicle which most effect its safe operation (brakes, tires, lighting) or which protect drivers and passengers from death or serious injury in the event of a crash (air bags, safety belts, child restraints, energy absorbing steering columns, motorcycle helmets) and are applicable to all vehicles and equipment manufactured for sale in the United States certified for use on public roads and highways.

CALIFORNIA LEMON LAW - California Lemon Law Text

The California Lemon Law (The Tanner Consumer Protection Act) covers new motor vehicles such as cars, vans, SUV's, and trucks with a gross vehicle weight of under 10,000 pounds. It also covers the chassis, chassis cab, and that portion of a motor home devoted to its propulsion, but does not include any portion designed, used, or maintained primarily for human habitation.

However, if a consumer has problems with a motorcycle, a boat, a used car purchased with a manufacturer's new car warranty, a pre-owned certified vehicle, the coach portion of a motor home, a truck with a gross vehicle weight of over 10,000 pounds, we may still be able to help under California case law and other relevant state and federal statutes.

ILLINOIS LEMON LAW Lemon Law Text

What kind of vehicles are covered under state and federal laws?

Illinois Lemon Law covers every vehicle which is self-propelled and every vehicle which is propelled by electric power obtained from overhead trolley wires,( except for vehicles operated upon rails, moved solely by human power and motorized wheelchairs).

The lemon law also covers motor vehicles designed for carrying more than 10 persons, buses, and trucks, that weigh under 8,000 pounds (including passenger vehicles designed for carrying not more than 10 persons that are re-modeled for carrying more than 10 persons). In addition, the lemon law covers recreational vehicles except for some camping trailers and travel trailers.
