For those who plan to fly in the most economical fares will be to Atlanta, GA. Rental car from there will probably be less than shuttle flights to nearer locations.

Motor home and camping sites are available in Wynn Creek State Park (part of the Alabama State Park System) near Alexander City, AL. Wynn Creek also has swimming, picnicking, hiking, and other activities if you can stay long enough to enjoy them. At present, I am considering staying in this park the week before.

I need to know if you plan to attend and how many you are bringing. I will welcome your input as we finalize plans to make this as enjoyable as possible for all who attend.

TERRELL/WILKINS DESCENDANTS; Part One

From TERRELL GENEALOGY by Emma DICKEN.
Timothy TERRELL (son of William & Susannah TERRELL) and his wife Mary MARTIN had fourteen children, all named in his will, though they may not be given in order of age. . . included: (10) Elizabeth, called Betty, b. 1756.
This is the source used most to establish the generally accepted ancestry of Mrs. William Wilkins, below. However there is an alternative ancestry in the Simpson Bobo WILKINS sketch included in Part Two of this series. DFB

"CAPTAIN" WILLIAM WILKINS

Submitted 2001 by #592 Mrs. Phyllis Kenady; 44 Peace Church Rd.; Wetumpka, AL 36093 in a printed, numbered generation tree format containing only names and dates. Due to the difficulty of turning printed the tree back into electronic text for Trails editing, it has been buried on your editor's desk.

Terrell Trails

#697 Ms. Gail J. Barbre; 4249 S Victor Ave; Tulsa, OK 74105-4226 email: gbarbre@cox.net was very helpful in correcting the descendants of Aaron WILKINS. Her information is indicated by the notation [Gail].

WILKINS Researcher: Mr.- Gregory F Black: gblack@pacifier.com Research: 1618-1940 Marshall Co. MS, Union Co, SC, Halifax , VA posted 3 generations on a message board. Email bounced in 2005. His info is indicated by [Black]. Mrs. Ciella Stiles; 1115 Edgemont Rd; Emmett, ID 83617; cbstiles@bigskytel.com (DRAPER descendant) was especially helpful on the DRAPER & LITTLEJOHN lines.

We have attempted to expand upon that skeleton to create the most complete text possible by citing DICKEN and others. DFB.

First Generation

1. "Captain" William WILKINS 1746 – 1807 m. Ann Elizabeth (Betsy/Betty) TERRELL 1756 – 1820;

"Elizabeth, called Betty, or Betsy, daughter of Timothy and Mary (Martin) Terrell, was b. in Orange County, N. C. 10 June 1756, d. at Gaffney, near Spartanburg, S. C. 25 Dec. 1820, m. 1768 William Wilkins, b. 14 May 1746 in Virginia, d. 1807. (Bible record.)

They and most of their children are buried in a family cemetery near their home, all graves are marked.

It is tradition that William Wilkins and Betty Terrell ran away and married when she was in her thirteenth year, and he was twenty-two.

Timothy Terrell, in his will 1763, named his daughter, Betty.

It is said that they resided in Chatham County, N. C. for a while but later moved to S. C. near Spartanburg where William Wilkins on 8 Dec. 1774 was granted 200 acres of land between Pacelot River and Thickerty Creek. Other grants were issued to him on later dates. Their old home was still standing a few years ago. [Before 1953]

William Wilkins was a citizen of high standing in his community and was a Revolutionary soldier. The records in the SC Archives show that he served as private horseman in Captain Mapp's Company n 1782.

It is a family tradition that William Wilkins and Adam Goudelock were noted for being intrepid Indian fighters. William and Betsy Wilkins reared a large family, being the parents of sixteen children, all but two living to be grown and married. A list of the children follows, a Bible record of births: . . . "TERRELL GENEALOGY by Emma DICKEN.

The birthplace of Elizabeth "Betsey" Terrell, b. June 10, 1756, wife of William WILKINS is almost surely Orange County, NC. Her father, Timothy Terrell moved from Virginia to NC in the early 1740's. Her older brother, Simon Terrell was b. in Orange Co. in 1755, and her younger brothers, Moses and Aaron (twins) were born in Orange Co., NC. I suspect Betsey and William WILKINS married in North Carolina, not Virginia. Howard GRANTHAM - Houston, Texas; hgrantham@aol.com

William WILKINS served in the Revolutionary War, enlisted on 08/12/1779 in Capt. Thomas BALLARD'S company, 10th N C Regt. under Col. Abraham SHEPARD. He was made a lieutenant in 1780 and later a captain in the militia. According to family traditions he was also an Independent Ranger and Indian fighter with Adam GOUDELOCK. After the end of the Revolutionary War, he took up a large acreage of land in Spartanburg County, SC, but in his old age, he returned to Rutherford County NC where his son was a member of the House of Representatives. OBITUARY

Carolina Spartan June 29 1887

Heaven never seems nearer to earth than when the spirit of some pure soul, loved one, has but recently taken its light "over there." Then it is, I sometimes think, but for over veiled eyes, "we should find heaven right around us lies." We but recently have been called upon to give back to the God who gave her, one of the purest, best women of our community.

Mrs. FRANCIS WILKINS was born in Spartanburg County, S.C. November 22nd, 1808, and died June 1st 1887 being in her 79th year. She joined the New Prospect Baptist Church in February 1840, and remained a constant, exemplary, and pious member to the day of her death which was caused by paralysis. Her maiden name was Foster. Her disease was such as to render her unable to talk during the last days of her life, but she had talked of it so often, and calmly and sweetly passed away doubtless willing to leave it all. She is with God her Father, whom she so much loved and so willingly served during her long life in this vale of tears and sorrow.

As a wife, she was faultless, a helpmate, and stay to her husband, who preceded her a number of years before. As a friend, she was ever ready with a smile of welcome, a tear of sympathy, a word of encouragement and a helping hand. She was really "a woman full of good works and alms deeds, which she did."

Sorrowing loved ones, the loss is all yours. I would point you to him who alone, can "bind up the broken heart," as comforter. Ask him to teach you with true submission, "he doeth all things well," and "what seems but sad funeral tapers, are Heaven's assistant lamps," trimmed by her loving hands, as a "light in the window for you."

"O, not in cruelty nor in wrath,
The Reaper came that day;
'Twas an angel visited the green earth,
And took our mother away."

M. M. LANDRUM

Dan,

I have several listings of the children of William WILKINS from online sites. From my own research I have none of the descendants of Frankie FOSTER.

Frankie Foster is shown on page 365 of LANDRUM's History of Spartanburg. I'm sure the M. M. LANDRUM who wrote the obituary of Frankie is a relative of Frankie 's family. Frankie FOSTER is the daughter of William FOSTER and Nancy YOUNG (my 4th grandparents.) Carolyn ccbceb@swbell.net

10. Nancy WILKINS (William¹) b. 3-17-1794; d. 5-1-1847 [b. 17 Mar. 1784, DICKEN] m. Joshua DRAPER, Sr. 1784 - 1857; Nancy WILKINS was born on 17 Mar 1784 in Spartanburg, Union, SC, USA, died on 1 May 1847, at age 63, and was buried in Alexandria, Calhoun, Alabama, USA; Nancy married Joshua DRAPER on 8 Feb 1803 in Spartanburg, Union, SC, USA.

1850 census Benton Co. AL Joshua 66 SC, and Nancy 57 NC. M432

From Pat Gilbert's email from the DRAPER Book:

Joshua was the only one of the DRAPER siblings to go to AL. Others went to TN, MO, or stayed in SC. Joshua DRAPER and family were pioneers of the Union Church Settlement in Benton Co., (now Calhoun Co.) AL. This Union Church still stands and is the Union United Methodist Church in Wellington, AL, per an article in the Anniston Star written by Bessie Coleman Robinson : "In the year 1845, the wheat crop of SC failed. The drought was so bad that the leaves fell from the trees and so a number of SC farmers decided to leave that state. To help the poorer people, those who were able, carried wagon loads of them into TN to settle and the owners of the conveyances returned to SC with their wagons loaded with corn. All classes of people left SC this year. From Spartanburg and Union Districts, the DRAPERS, WILKINS, KIRBYS and PHILLIPS came to AL with several families at a time, in wagons. (The first 3 of these surnames are part of my family genealogy).

The first party included Joshua DRAPER and his wife Nancy WILKINS Draper, their son Daniel and wife Caroline WOOD and their children. Mrs. Ida DRAPER Ledbetter recalls hearing her mother Caroline Draper tell of the trip which took 16 days from the Spartanburg District., SC to Benton Co. AL. A slave dealer came ahead of them and his darkies cut down trees to make camps and light the fires. This was in January 1846.

The Drapers settled in Alexandria Valley, close to the church which different denominations united to build and call Union. Their houses were temporary for they felt that fairer land could be found farther on and they took only as much land as their slaves could cultivate. During the heavy rains of 1847, Mrs. Nancy WILKINS Draper sickened and died. The weather prohibited taking her body to the lead mine cemetery beyond Jacksonville and therefore, she and a colored child who died at that time were buried in the Union church yard.

Joshua & Nancy DRAPER were old when they came to Benton, but they lived long enough to be known and deemed as people of fine character whose numerous descendants have made excellent citizens in the communities they lived."

ALFRED AUSTELL

By BERNARD SUTTLER in Men of Mark in Georgia, Vol. 3 edited by William J Northern, ex-governor, pub. 1907-1911; p. 358-365

No people in all history ever faced overwhelming disaster with higher courage than did the people of the Southern States at the close of the Civil War. Their property was swept away, their country was desolate, capital was nonexistent, political conditions were chaotic, a hostile party was in control of the government and the future was as black as all these dark clouds could make it. The vast majority of the people naturally struggled with desperation because the necessities of the case forced them to do it, but here and there was found a clearheaded man who with a profound insight into conditions foresaw that better days must come and planned accordingly. Among these far sighted men was General Alfred Austell of Atlanta. He, in the sixteen years succeeding the Civil War, was the foremost citizen of Atlanta.

General Austell was born near Dandridge, Jefferson County, in East Tennessee, on fourteenth day of January 1814. His father William AUSTELL, was a substantial farmer, highly respected in his community, and who gave to his children a good example as a citizen. His mother, Jane WILKINS, was an excellent Christian woman who contributed much to the formation of his character. The Austell family is of English descent.

On the paternal side they trace back to William de AUSTELL, who in the reign of Edward III was Governor and Sheriff of Cornwall and built the ancestral castle that can today be seen in ruins in the town of St. Austell, in Cornwall, England.

On the maternal side the family is also English and goes back to Fulk, Count of Anjou who first adopted the planta genesta as his emblem in the Crusades. He was the progenitor of the Plantagenet family, who ruled England for generations. General Austell's mother was born in Culpeper county, Virginia. When she was a child, her parents moved to Spartanburg, SC, and here William Austell met and married her. [We have not found any documentation to support that claim. DFB]

General Austell grew up in one of the most picturesque sections of our country and retained all during his life that love of the mountains which seems to be innate in all people born in the mountainous sections of our country. His early educational advantages were limited, but he grew into a man of fine physique and most impressive manners.

At the age of seventeen, spurred on by feelings of ambition, he left the farm and rode across the mountains to Spartanburg, SC, where an older brother, William W., was engaged, in business. The lad found his brother's affairs much involved owing to a heavy decline in cotton, with which he was loaded up. With an indebtedness of twenty thousand dollars it looked like bankruptcy, but even then the financial ability which was so largely displayed in later life was developing and, after three years of labor, the business was cleared.

The winter of 1835 was spent in New York, where he contemplated locating, but in 1836, being then twenty-two years old, he, with his brother, removed to Campbellton, Georgia, and engaged in the mercantile business. Soon after their arrival William died, leaving an invalid wife and three small daugh- ters as a charge upon the younger brother, a duty which was faithfully discharged.

In a short time Mr. Austell was the leading merchant and planter of his section and had more capital than was needed in the conduct of his mercantile business. This he invested in lands and Negroes, and in a few years was one of the extensive planters of the section. In 1853 he married Miss Francina CAMERON, of La Grange, an accomplished lady from one of the cultured towns of Georgia, who yet [1911] survives.

In those days there was a militia organization in the State and there were periodical musters. General Austell, a man of fine presence and a leader in the community, promptly became an officer in the militia and was promoted from one rank to another until he became a Brigadier-General in the Georgia State Militia.

After more than twenty years in Campbellton, with his usual business acumen he saw that Atlanta was the coming city of the State. He had already made considerable investments in the town, and in 1858 he closed out his business in Campbellton and moved to Atlanta, where he promptly became a leader.

General Austell was strongly opposed to secession. He was a pronounced Union man and believed that peaceful methods were far more to be desired than hostilities and that there was no serious menace to the interests of the South in the election of Lincoln, so long as the South contended for its rights under the Constitution. His frequent business visits to New York and the East had shown him what tremendous resources that section possessed and how heavily handicapped the Southern States would be in a struggle, against what would practically be the combined world. When the die was cast and hostilities began he, of course, cast his lot with his people. Being then a man well along in middle life, he did not take active part in the war, but rendered valuable services to the Confederacy along financial and commercial lines. During the battles around Atlanta he was temporarily in active service as member of the Home Guards under Colonel Z. A. RICE.

From the wreck of the war he saved something, but at the close of the Civil War, being then past fifty years old, he went to work with his usual industry and foresight to rebuild his shattered fortunes.

He had organized, prior to the war, the Bank of Fulton. This, of course, went down in the struggle. Laws had been passed protecting these broken banks in the South from having to redeem their notes, but Mr. Edmund W. HOLLAND, the president, and General Austell, vice-president of the Bank of Fulton, bought all of its bills, paying for them in gold, and then gathering them in a pile made a bonfire of them. It was said that., this was the only bank in the South which redeemed those bills, and no stronger testimony of the integrity of General Austell could be given than the statement of this fact.

He was an intimate personal friend of President JOHNSON, and the President called him to Washington and strongly urged him to accept the position of Provisional Governor of Georgia. General Austell declined the honor, knowing that his position would not be understood by his people should he accept a place from a Republican administration. Being desirous of serving his people, he asked as a personal favor that the President appoint John ERSKINE to the Federal Judgeship in Georgia. This request was promptly granted, and thus he secured for the people of his State in this important position, a man of integrity and ability and who was able to render the people splendid service in a most trying time.

In September, 1865, General Austell organized the first National Bank ever organized in the Southern States--the Atlanta National Bank--now in its forty-sixth year, which has stood unshaken through every financial convulsion, and today, with its dollars of resources, is a monument to the man who founded it and who for sixteen years stood at the helm. It went through the panic of 1873 without a tremor and in that terrible year General Austell was the only man in the State able to command money to move the cotton crop, his Eastern correspondents having telegraphed him that they would send him one hundred thousand dollars a day until the crisis was over.

In the meantime, he had founded with William H. INMAN in New York the cotton firm of Austell and Inman, which afterwards developed into the great cotton house of Inman, Swann and Company, which for nearly a generation was one of the foremost cotton houses of the world. The mercantile firm of Austell and Mangum in Atlanta was also formed by Austell.

The banking and the cotton business having had due attention, General Austell concentrated a large share of his energies upon the building up of the railroad interests. It was clear to a man of his business sagacity that the South must have more railroads and that Atlanta, in order to work out its destiny, must be put in a better position as to transportation facilities.

With Colonel BUFORD, of Richmond, as president, and himself as vice-president, they built the Atlanta and Charlotte Air Line, thus forming a direct connection with Washington. Remembering the beauties of the mountain section which he had traversed as a lad from Jefferson county, Tennessee, to Spartanburg; in the early seventies, with W. H. INMAN, of New York, and R. Y. MC ADEN, of Charlotte, he purchased the Spartanburg Union Railroad, and extended it to Asheville, making the connection with the Air Line, and making the first railroad connection between the beautiful country now known as the "Land of the Sky" and the outside world.

He became an active director and large stockholder in the Georgia Pacific, running from Birmingham to Atlanta, and in the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, running from Atlanta to Rome. The small station eighteen miles from Atlanta, which is the junction of these two lines, was named in his honor, Austell, and is now a prosperous town.

General Austell had given his entire time and energies to the building up of the material interests of the country and had steadily refrained from political action as far as any personal advancement was concerned, but when, in 1878, the Democratic Convention met in Atlanta to nominate a candidate for Governor, friends of General Alfred H. COLQUITT and Honorable Thomas M. NORWOOD, ex-United States Senator, became involved in a heated contest over the nomination. After several days of balloting and no result being achieved, a compromise committee was appointed to agree upon a man, and this committee almost at once agreed upon General Austell as the best possible candidate, and with Colonel William SAFFOLD, of Columbus, as chairman, called upon him and tendered him the nomination. After carefully considering the matter for twenty-four hours, General Austell felt compelled to decline. This decision was due to his sense of responsibility to the people who had trusted the management of such large business interests to him, as he feared that his withdrawal result in their injury.

From the close of the Civil War until his death General Austell was the foremost financier of Atlanta. The morning after his demise, which occurred suddenly from a paralytic stroke, December 7, 1881, Henry W. Grady, in The Atlanta Constitution, said of him in part: "Wise, prudent, and sagacious, he carried the enterprises of which he was the head through storm and sunshine, amassing fortunes for those were connected with him, standing as a bulwark of Atlanta finances. Better than all this, General Austell died in the fullness of integrity, without a blot on his career, leaving to children the legacy of an honest and stainless name."

Men who knew General Austell intimately said he was an almost infallible judge of character. In innumerable cases he loaned money to men who were just starting, or who were involved, frequently without security, and in this way instrumental in building up many of the large private fortunes of some of Atlanta's best citizens, and it is said that very rarely did he make a loss, so keen was his insight into the characters of the men with whom he dealt. His personal integrity has already illustrated in the story of the redemption of bills in the Fulton Bank. This was carried into every transaction of his life.

Terrell Trails

Always a businessman, he cared little for politics, although he took an active interest in education and religion. Austell was reserved in manner, with a robust figure and massive face; he had an enormous capacity for work, unerring business judgment, and restless ambition tempered with integrity. Atlanta's financial success in the years after the Civil War rested primarily upon the thorough groundwork laid by the sound business leadership of this astute and farsighted banker.

He was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian Church always liberal in his contributions to that institution and to every church in the city of Atlanta of every creed and color. One of the most beautiful tributes paid him after his death was a mass meeting of the Negroes in Big Bethel Church, where resolutions of sympathy and regret were passed, and he was truly mourned as one of the black man's wisest counselors and most generous helpers.

He left four children: William W. and Alfred, Jr., the sons, are both highly educated, talented men. William W., was builder of the first modern office building in Atlanta, and organizer of the first refrigerating car service in the South. Of his two daughters, Janie married James SWANN, of Inman, Swann and Company, who was the able successor of General Austell as president of the Atlanta National Bank, and who has himself since passed away; Leila married A. E. THORNTON, business man and prominent manufacturer, his specialty being the cotton oil business--who after a most successful business career, died in 1907. (A sketch of Mr. Thornton also appears in this work.)

Such in briefest outline is the life record of one of the men who contributed much to the rebuilding of Georgia and of Atlanta after property values had been swept away by the destruction of war.

The ancestral lines of General Austell present some features strong interest. The name is a very rare one, and the founder of the family in our country appears to have been William AUSTELL, a member of a Cornish family of England--a captain in the Royal Navy who, moved by a spirit of adventure and a love of the wilderness, settled in the wilds of Western North Carolina and took up lands in the Big Yadkin district during the eighteenth century. His sons, Joseph, Amos, William and Samuel, inheriting the father's pioneer spirit, pressed on in the wilderness, going into Western North Carolina and East Tennessee, and their descendants were found in the van of those adventurous spirits who conquered the great Southwestern territory. The sons of Joseph went as far west as Arkansas and Texas. Stephen AUSTELL making a name for himself in the one Star State." Amos moved to Middle Tennessee, William moved to Spartanburg, SC, and later to East Tennessee. Samuel after becoming a famous Indian fighter in Alabama, migrated to South America

In Spartanburg William AUSTELL met and married Jane WILKINS, whose parents, William WILKINS and Elizabeth TERRELL, had moved with their family from Culpeper, Virginia. Elizabeth Terrell was a reigning belle and a woman of rare beauty. There were objections to the marriage by the ambitious parents, whose preference was for a richer suitor--and the young couple took the matter in their own hands and eloped. They crossed the mountains into the new State of Franklin which afterwards became Tennessee, and settled near the present site of Dandridge, Jefferson county, and there Alfred AUSTELL was born, January 14, 1814.

His mother was a woman of strong Christian character and although struggling with the adverse conditions of pioneer life, her strong family pride planted in her children the story of their rich inheritance. Her father was a descendant of Captain Richard WILKINS, of the Royal Navy, a Welshman by birth who became engaged in the West India trade, and whose sons, Andrew and John, settled in Virginia, where John patented thirteen hundred acres of land in the upper part of county on the second creek of Nansemond river. He brought with him twenty-five indentured servants, including his Negro slaves. Andrew's son, John, settled in Northumberland county where he married a daughter of Richard HAYNEY. John's son William, married Elizabeth TERRELL at Richland, in the plantation of Anthony HAYNEY, then a Burgess Northumberland county, and they moved to Spartanburg, SC.

. . . . Sir Timothy secured for his third son, Captain John TYRRELL, of the Royal Navy the holdings of the Earl of Shaftesbury in the Proprietary Rights of the Colony of Carolina. He thus became one of the Lords Proprietors of the most magnificent domains ever granted by a sovereign to individuals. Captain John was killed in 1692 at the battle of Newport, in Flanders, and never came to America to see his princely domain which included one-ninth right to both the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama and Mississippi as far west as the Mississippi river. His son, William, came to Virginia and settled in Hanover County in 1721. The line in America runs from William¹ of Hanover to Timothy²; to Robert³ of New Kent; to Robert⁴ of Orange; to Edmund⁵; to William⁶ of Culpeper; to Elizabeth⁷, who married William WILKINS and became the grandmother of the subject of this sketch.

Editor's Note: We now have a 4th theory of the father of William who m. Susannah. I can't say whether this theory is correct, but I am confident that there were not 7 generations in this family between 1721 and 1756 when Elizabeth "Betsy" TERRELL who m. William WILKINS was born. That mathematical impossibility casts doubt upon the entire ancestry record cited here. DFB

A similar and short biography of Alfred AUSTELL appears in: Dictionary of Georgia Biography VOLUME ONE; Edited by Kenneth Coleman and Charles Stephen Gurr; Pages 39-40. Smith and Sally DRAPER LIPSCOMB's 12 children are confirmed by the DRAPER book. Some personal papers of Smith LIPSCOMB say "I started the

Smith is buried in Union Cem., Wellington per several books but his name does not show in the cemetery records. Per Carolyn Boozer, A Wellington resident and Lucenda LIPSCOMB descendant, there is no marker, only a large rock.

1860 Smith apparently rode his horse Scott back to his home country in Spartanburg District based on a Dec 17, 1860 letter from Smith to wife Sarah. He writes reaching SC on the 13th. He visited Charlie Littlejohn, Uncle Richard Simmons, Sarah and Daniel Davis (m. to Sarah WILKINS, sister of Nancy WILKINS who m. Lucinda married James KIRBY on 26 Jan 1830 in Union, SC, USA.

1850 Census Benton Co. AL James 56, Lucinda 42, Nancy 19, Mildred 13, Joshua 14, Julia 11, Sarah 8, Adaline 5, Martha 3.

From Pat Gilbert's records: James' War of 1812 papers from National Archives in Wash. DC confirm his wife was Lucinda DRAPER, his death date when Lucinda applied for widow pension, but it gave their marriage date as Jan 28, 1827 rather than Jan 26, 1830? It confirmed they lived in Peeks Hill, Calhoun Co. AL and that Lucinda d. in Jacksonville, AL. The other question that arose was James Kirby's birth year. It said he would be age 78 in August and papers were dated July 1871. This would make his birth 1793, which also what the 1850 census infers. 1870 census though confirms the 1791 which is also on his headstone. Per an article in the Anniston Star years ago, James KIRBY was one of the early settlers of Union Community i.e., place where Union United Methodist Church still stands today in Wellington, Calhoun Co. From an internet query 11/01 from tw littlejohn twlj@knology.net

I show father as Ignatious LITTLEJOHN b. 1777 d. 1840's. I have mother as Mary MOORE who moved with sons to Benton Co. (now Calhoun Co. AL in 1847. Died in home of daughter-in-law, Vianna DRAPER, in Calhoun Co. AL in 1870's. This person gave me most of the info of this family.

Charles and Vianna lost five sons during the Civil War. Their sons William, Chester, Daniel Draper, and Robertson all served in Company D "The Dudley Snow Rangers" of the 51st Alabama Cavalry "Partisan Rangers" Regiment, CSA. Chester and Robertson enlisted as Privates on May 27, 1862 at Oxford, Calhoun County, Alabama. They were recruited by their uncle Robert Wilkins DRAPER (1820-1894) who was the Captain of the company. Dudley SNOW, a local pioneer, was instrumental in the Company's organization. The Company assembled and camped on Mr. SNOW's land while training. The regiment was organized at Oxford on August 11, 1862. The regiment was commanded by Colonel John T. MORGAN of Dallas County, AL. The regiment was ordered to TN to join the Army of the TN CSA. It was placed in the Brigade of Brigadier General James HAGAN. HAGAN's brigade was in Brigadier General Nathan B. FORREST'S Cavalry Corp of the Army of the Tennessee C. S. A. The Fifty-first arrived in the wake of BRAGG'S abortive offensive into Kentucky and experienced its first action on November 5, 1862 near La Vergne, TN where they fought well in a Confederate victory. Robertson was killed in action on June 27, 1863 at the Battle of Shelbyville in TN. Chester was captured on October 7, 1863 during an engagement with Union forces at Farmington, TN. He was held at Nashville, TN until October 14, 1863. He was then transferred to the Military Prison at Louisville, KY. The next day, October 15, 1863, he was sent on to the Prisoner of War Camp called Camp Morton. Camp Morton is located near Indianapolis, IN. Chester d. of pneumonia on February 1, 1864 at the Camp. He is buried in the Green Lawn Cemetery near Indianapolis. Charles d. on October 13, 1868 near Cross Plains (now Piedmont), Calhoun County, AL. According to family tradition the loss of his sons broke his health. He is buried at the Littlejohn Cemetery near Piedmont. Vianna d. on October 4, 1877 near Cross Plains, Calhoun County, Alabama. She is also buried at the Littlejohn Cemetery.

From Pat Gilbert:

Aaron was the son of Moses WILKINS (1785-1845) and Salley LIPSCOMB (1795-1849). Aaron (1812-1879) d. 14 Mar 1879 Union Meth.Cem.Wellington, Calhoun Co. AL, at 66 years of age. Reference Josh Drap Project for a list of the 8 children of Elizabeth and Aaron. I have only input details for my direct line. Apparently Aaron and wife Elizabeth (DRAPER) WILKINS came to Benton/Calhoun Co. about the same time (1845) as Elizabeth's parents (Joshua and Nancy (WILKINS) DRAPER. This is consistent with Aaron and Elizabeth's first 4 children being b. in SC and then the latter four b. in AL beginning with Robert Milton WILKINS b. 1847.

Per an article on Early Settlers of Calhoun Co. in the Anniston Star (exact date unknown) by Bessie Coleman Robinson: " Aaron WILKINS, a kinsman of Nancy WILKINS DRAPER, and son of Moses WILKINS and Sally LIPSCOMB, of Spartanburg district, married Elizabeth DRAPER in 1836 and came to Benton Co. in 1847, settling near the Drapers at Union. they later moved near Alexandria. They took an active part in the community affairs. Mrs. WILKINS lived to an advanced age, an intelligent woman, much beloved by neighbors and friends. The WILKINS had a large family of children. Martha C. b. in Spartanburg district in 1837, married M. M. Price of Benton. Daniel D. married Susan Phillips and lived at Cedar springs. He was a member of Wheeler's Calvary. Harriet J. married Henry Weaver and Nancy Jane married H. C. Weaver. Joshua Moses was killed in Tenn. during the War. Bob lived with his daughter Mrs. Smith. John b. in 1849 was another son and William b. 1854 in Benton lived in Oxford." Birth and death dates for Aaron and Elizabeth are confirmed by the Cemetery records as well as the DRAPER Book. The Book states that Aaron was Elizabeth's cousin.

Those Were the Days before The Civil War!

p. 2 BIRMINGHAM POST APRIL 6, 1938

At 95, Mrs. Gorman Recalls The Time When She Was A Belle Of The Old South; But She Lost Her Pretty Dresses When Sherman Came Through

Photo Caption: "Mrs. J. M. Gorman plays the piano at 95 . . . Ophelia AUSTELL was the belle of the ball at 18"

Ophelia Austell was belle of many a ball in Georgia in the days when frothy masses of hoop skirts bobbed and whirled through a new dance, the Virginia Reel, and candlelight smoothed a soft sheen over bare shoulders and dancing clusters of curls.

Southern society was at its gayest when blond coquettish Ophelia was a favorite of circles in and around Atlanta, [GA.]

And now she is the widow of James M. GORMAN and three times a great grandmother. She celebrated her 95th birthday on Jan 12. [1938]

Today, the waxy transparence of age has supplanted the rosy bloom of her teens, but Mrs. Gorman is still fastidious about her appearance and pays much attention to the arrangement of her little black shawl as she used to pay to voluminous skirted frocks and beribboned parasols.

When Sherman Marched

She has lived for 10 years with her daughter, Mrs. S. J. Stroock at 5300 fifth Ave South for she can no longer run the household of her family estate near Atlanta.

Largely isolated from the world by failing eyesight and almost total deafness, she finds comfort in memories.

"I was 18 when the war started," she begins, her voice quavering but her words unflinching.

"I was just out of a very fine ladies finishing school and had the biggest wardrobe of pretty dresses you ever did see. But when SHERMAN came through Georgia and we all had to refugee, I lost a trunk load of them. I always wondered what became of my pretty dresses."

Still Plays Piano

Dimity and organdy and crinoline she recalled gave way to homespun dresses when the Confederacy's last stand necessitated emergency measures. Ophelia made her own dresses and decorated them with buttons made from pieces of gourd shell.

"We knitted socks and made shirts for the boys," she continued. "We sent them fruit too and gave concerts to raise money for them."

Mrs. Gorman sang at those concerts. She played the piano too – songs like "The Girl I Left Behind Me," "Brown's March," and "Dixie."

And she can still play the piano too. One hand is partially paralyzed and her little gold-rimmed spectacles are not much help when it comes to distinguishing the ivory keys, but determination to demonstrate her ability keeps her at it.

Yankee Died on Lawn

But she does this seldom now and lives mostly in the clearly recalled past, remembering when that handsome, young Yankee soldier mortally wounded, died on the front lawn of her family estate, and when she hid 200 hams from the Yanks under the apples in the garret, leaving but two on top for a decoy to make the invaders think they had exhausted the cache.

Memories and dreams are with her constantly. Family affairs sometimes tire her, and age makes her hypersensitive to unpleasant weather, but she steadfastly looks forward to reaching a century of living. [TT p. 96]

ALBERT EDWARDS THORNTON

By Bernard SUTTLER in Men of Mark in Georgia, Vol. 5 edited by William J Northern, ex-governor, pub. 1907-1911; p. 189--193

Albert Edwards THORNTON was born in LaGrange, Ga., October 3, 1853, and died at his residence in Atlanta, April 2, 1907. In his forceful personality, his superb physique and charming address, Mr. Thornton exhibited many traits of his long line of distinguished ancestry. His mother, Martha CULBERSON, was the granddaughter of Governor, Stephen HEARD. Through her he was connected with many of Georgia's most prominent families, and closely related to the CULBERSONS, father and son, who have for thirty years represented Texas in Congress and filled the gubernatorial chair of the Lone Star State.

Albert Edwards THORNTON
Father of TERRELL/AUSTELL

Through his Virginia father, he was connected with many of the best families of that State, notably CARTERS the LEES, the WASHINGTONS, and the THORNTONS.

The Thornton family is a very old one in England. There are at least twenty-nine places in that country which bear the name of which sixteen are in Yorkshire, which was the principal of the Thorntons. In the Domesday Book, these places were called Torentun. In the Hundred Rolls of 1273, the name was put down as de Thorneton in Yorkshire, and Thorntone in Cambridgeshire. The family is now most numerous in Northumberland, though largely represented in Yorkshire, Rutland, Lancashire and Leicestershire. The original meaning of the name was the "tun"-homestead enclosed-by or situated near hawthorns, and the surname was given to one who had his residence at such a "thorn tun."

About 1640, William THORNTON, Gentleman, of Yorkshire, England settled in York county, Virginia. He moved thence Glouchester county, and four miles northwest of Gloucester established his home, called "The Hills," after the ancestral home in England. He had large landed estates in Stafford county where he died at a ripe old age. He is buried in Stafford county, and his arms are emblazoned on his tomb.

He founded a large and influential family, destined to take a prominent part in the building up of the Old Dominion, and spreading over many of the Southern and Western States, notably Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Georgia, Alabama, and California, where they have ever stood as examples of the highest type of citizenship. His second son, Francis, married Alice, daughter of Captain SAVAGE. They had eight children. Their fifth child, Francis the second, born 1680, settled at Snow Creek, near Fredericksburg, in 1703. He was Burgess from Spottsylvania county, and father of the Fall Hill Thorntons. He married Mary TALIAFERRO. Their three sons, Colonel Francis the third, Colonel Reuben, and Colonel John, married respectively Frances, Elizabeth and Mildred GREGORY, daughters of Mildred WASHINGTON (aunt and godmother of the President) and Roger GREGORY. Colonel Francis the third was. Colonel in the Colonial Army in 1742, and a member of the House of Burgesses in 1745. He died at the age of thirty, leaving a family of six children. His eldest daughter, Mildred, married Charles WASHINGTON, youngest brother of the President, and his youngest son, John, married at Mount Vernon after the Revolution, Jane WASHINGTON, a niece of the President. William, son of Colonel Francis THORNTON the third and Frances GREGORY, his wife, married Martha STUART. Their son John married Miss LEE, of the Robert LEE family. Their son William married Mary CARTER, a descendant of Robert (King CARTER) and his wife Bettie Landon WIL-LIS. They moved to Washington, Wilkes county, Georgia; afterwards to Harris county. Their son Thomas THORNTON married Martha CULBERSON and moved to Troup county, where he became a leading citizen of LaGrange. He was the largest slaveowner in this wealthy county. Here his son Albert Edwards THORNTON was born, in 1853. He was named for his maternal uncle-in-law, Gen. J. W. B. EDWARDS, a distinguished soldier in the Mexican War.

Mr. THORNTON was educated at the University of Georgia, and was a member of the class of 1873. Upon leaving college he returned to his home at LaGrange and engaged in cotton planting. Even at that early day in his history, when barely twenty-one years old, he was attracted to the possibilities of cottonseed, the oil of which was then beginning to attract attention. His business judgment, so pronounced in later life, told him that there was a great field here for legitimate exploitation and he became enthused over the great wealth that could be added to the Southern States by the development of this part of the cotton crop which had been hitherto wasted.

He threw himself into the business with immense energy and mastered it in all its details. In 1882 he moved to Atlanta and built the first Atlanta oil mill. He became one of the pioneers in the cotton oil trade, and did as much towards the building up of that immense industry as any other one man, and possibly more. In addition to his interests in Atlanta, he became president of the oil mills at Elberton and Milledgeville, and for many years served as president of the Georgia State Crushers Association. He also became president of the Interstate Crushers Association, an organization which directs the entire industry and covers the large soap and packing interests of the United States and which, with its seven hundred and fifty members at the time of his death, represented a capital of one hundred million dollars. So great has been the development of this industry that it is now said if the entire seed output of the country could be utilized, it would represent a value equal to one-fourth the value of the lint cotton of the country. Even as it is, with the large reservations that have to be made for planting seed, the product of the oil mills of the country represent in their finished commercial state a value of about twenty per cent of the lint cotton crop, and it now means an addition of approximately one hundred million dollars a year to the cotton belt.

Succeeding as he did in his own peculiar industry, he naturally attracted attention of other capable business men with whom he came in contact, and on account of the capital which he commanded, and his business judgment, he was called upon to serve as a director of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, the Atlanta and West Point Railway, in the Atlanta Home Insurance Company, in the Georgia Railway and Electric Company, the Southern States Mutual Insurance Company, and the Atlanta National Bank. The last named institution, the oldest and largest bank in Atlanta, was served by him as a director and vice-president for a period of twenty-five years, and during its history the bank has never had a more highly valued member upon its directory nor one who gave it better service.

In 1881 Mr. THORNTON was married to Miss Leila AUSTELL, a daughter of Gen. Alfred AUSTELL, who was identified for many years with the early history of Atlanta, and during his life was regarded as the ablest financier in Georgia. Mr. Thornton's home life was ideal. His home was the center of culture and refinement. He was an unrivaled host, dispensing generous hospitality which, combined with his pleasant personality, his ready wit, his perfect tact and his rare gift as a raconteur, made a visit to his home one of delight to his guests. As a husband and father he was all that any man could be, illustrating an example of pure devotion to his family and upholding high ideals in every way.

He was a member of all the leading business and social organizations of the city. A charter member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Piedmont Driving Club, and the Capital City Club, serving as vice-president of the last named club when it was organized.

In business a strong man of the highest capacity, he was pleasant and courteous in all his dealings with every one, from the humblest up, and it is a matter of knowledge among those who knew him well that at no time would he have taken advantage of the needs or distresses of competitors, and it was one of the rules of his life to give everybody absolute justice in his business dealings.

Mr. Thornton's sound business judgment was not confined to his own business nor even to, the institutions with which he was connected outside of that. He found his greatest recreation in planting and clearly saw the need for an improvement in Southern methods of dealing with stock and for an increase in the live stock industry of the section. He studied Bermuda grass just as he had cotton seed, and became enthusiastic over the possibilities of that grass as a means of enriching the Southern farms and planters.

The destruction of his home by fire, with the exertion connected therewith, precipitated an attack of heart failure that resulted in his death on April 2, 1907. He left a widow and three children, two sons and a daughter, Alfred A., Albert E., Jr., and Jane THORNTON.

The Atlanta Journal of April 3 said editorially, "He is mourned by a host of sincere and devoted friends and there is not a walk in life in this progressive community which will not miss his kindly heart and, masterful hand." The Journal but expressed the truth in brief fashion, for everyone who knew Albert E. Thornton will bear testimony to the kindness of his heart, the strength of his hand in every enterprise he undertook, and soundness of his judgment. He was truly one of the great developers of Georgia, who served his generation well.

Dan,
Very sorry to learn of your recent illness and certainly hope you are completely recovered. Severe illness is certainly no fun and we have the experience to support that opinion.

Just received the Fall 2005 issue of Terrell Trails. Very good as usual. There is one item that suggested to me that some information I have may be of interest to some of the members. I have been involved with DNA projects for PONDER and THAMES and have done some research and work on the subject.

As you may remember my Grandmother THAMES was a TERRELL before marrying Samuel Eli THAMES. The Thames-Tims Family Association has an ongoing DNA project that has provided considerable information for many members. One of the most important results has been proof that the THAMES, TIMS-TIMMS, and TIMBS families are descendants of separate family lines. Anyone researching any of these names must look at any record of any of the spellings because of the errors of clerks and census takers who created most of our early records. Many times 2 or 3 of the spellings will appear in a single deed or will. It has long been a question whether all were of a single origin or separate families. The DNA project has clearly proven that the THAMES and the TIMS are separate and distinct families. Time and some more participants will determine whether TIMS, TIMMS and TIMBS are the same or separate families.

Anyone interested in the information on this project should go to <http://www.Thames-Tims.org>. Click on DNA Project on the left side. This page will be of interest but after reading it one should click on Go to the Charts and Lineages Page then after reviewing that go back to the DNA Project page and click on Go to the FTDNA Project Page. Between the two are found results of individual DNA tests and lineage charts with a narrative explanation. The information should be of considerable interest to any Terrell and particularly those with spelling variants.

I hope you will find this of interest and help to members.

born to them after that!! I assume that they all had children -- and perhaps large families which would grow my TERRELL family tree quite a bit.

I hope someone from the family reads this note and can connect me up with a descendent of them to be able to give me more recent data. and in exchange, I can give them more ancestry on the TERRELL side back from my g-grandfather. Regards, Debbie; we3nelsons@sympatico.ca
