Courses in the New KBI Forensic Science Center

As part of the new B.S. (Bachelor of Science) in Anthropology (Forensics Concentration), some of the Anthropology courses will start being held in our classroom/lab space Spring 2016 semester in the new KBI Forensic Science Center here on campus. In addition to the classroom/lab space, we also have a dig site directly outside of the classroom/lab. The classroom/lab and dig site will allow more hands-on activities for the courses.

The first Anthropology courses that will be held in the classroom/lab are listed below.

AN114A Introduction to Archaeology	TR	9:30am-10:45am
AN114B Introduction to Archaeology	TR	11:00am-12:15pm
AN114C Introduction to Archaeology	M	5:30pm-8:00pm
AN312A Medical Anthropology	MWF	11:00am-11:50am
AN316A Forensic Anthropology	MW	1:00pm-2:15pm

As the semester ends, so does Dr. Margaret Wood's time at Washburn University. Dr. Wood began her time at Washburn University in the Sociology/Anthropology Department in 2002.

Dr. Wood energetically began building up the archaeology portion of Anthropology. Later she offered the first two department study abroad opportunities by leading students on a study abroad in the Yucatan of México to study the Mayans.

Dr. Wood will start her next adventure in January at the University of Colorado, Denver. We wish her well and know that she will be missed here at Washburn.

Congratulations to Mr. Chris Conner! Mr. Conner successfully defended his dissertation at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV) on November 23rd. So what does this mean? He has completed his Ph.D.!!!! In other words - Mr. Conner will soon be Dr. Chris Conner!

SOCIOLOGY/ANTHROPOLOGY CLUB

The Sociology/Anthropology Club , held a Grad School Panel on November 17th. The panel consisted of Dr. Childers, Dr. Blank, and Mr. Conner. They provided information about applying to graduate schools and about graduate schools. They also answered questions that students attending had about the process of applying and about grad school.

Club members and guests enjoyed an evening of socializing at Buffalo Wild Wings on November 11th. It was fun to have the opportunity to get to know each other better and discuss all kinds of things from school to things happening in life.

The club will have a meeting on Wednesday, December 2nd, from 3:00pm-5:00pm in Henderson Room 208 (HC208). The meeting is being held in order to game plan events for the Spring 2016 semester. The club had a very successful and active fall semester and would like to keep the momentum going through the spring semester. The meeting is open to both members and non-members of all majors.

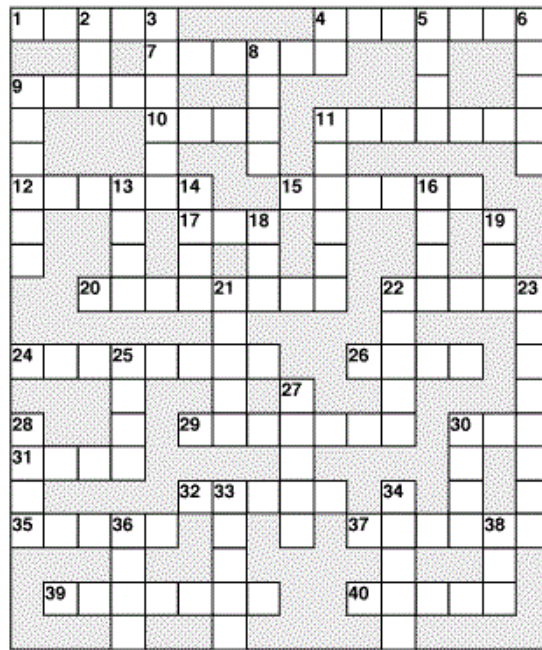

Membership Dues Reminder:

Membership dues for the Sociology/Anthropology Club is $5.00 per semester. Dues will be due in January for those who would like to continue or become a member. Benefits of membership includes voting rights and discounts on SO/AN Club merchandise and SO/AN Club event fees.
