Harris & Harris Group likes to think small. The business development company invests mostly in startup firms developing so-called "tiny technology" — microsystems microelectromechanical systems and nanotechnology used in applications in such sectors as electronics medical devices pharmaceuticals semiconductors telecommunications and clean technology. The company seeks out small thinly capitalized firms lacking operating history or experienced management. Harris & Harris has made more than 80 venture capital investments since 1983; its current portfolio consists of interests in some 30 firms including Nanosys and NeoPhotonics.

Cutting out the middleman — that's how 21st Century Insurance grew in the 20th century. The company's primary subsidiaries provide inexpensive auto and personal umbrella insurance for customers by selling directly rather than through brokers which eliminates the cost of agents and commissions. 21st Century Insurance limits sales of its auto policies to preferred-risk applicants (good drivers). The company has historically been most active in California but has been actively expanding into other states including Texas. 21st Century Insurance is part of the Farmers Group of Zurich Financial Services.

Trading on its century-old name Abercrombie & Fitch (A&F) sells upscale men's women's and kids' casual clothes and accessories — quite a change from when the company outfitted Hemingway and Teddy Roosevelt for safari. A&F trades under two main brands the eponymous Abercrombie & Fitch and Hollister which targets teens and is actually the larger of the two; it also sells intimates under the Gilly Hicks brand and kids clothing under abercrombie kids. Its 860 stores are found mainly in the US but also in Europe the Asia/Pacific region and the Middle East while A&F ships globally online. Its carefully selected college-age sales staff and All-American models imbue its stores with an upscale fraternity-house feel.

Accelerate Diagnostics (formerly Accelr8 Technology) wants to speed up your lab results. Using its ID/AST system the company is working on quicker methods for identifying bacterial infections. The system is being designed for use in clinical settings to provide bacterial identification within two hours. If successful it will be an improvement over existing methods that depend upon identifying bacteria in a culture grown over two to five days from a patient sample. Instead ID/AST will look directly at the sample itself sort through the tens of thousands of bacterial cells to identify any pathogenic bacteria and determine if any are resistant to antibiotics. Investment group Crabtree Partners owns a controlling stake in the firm.

Acceleron Pharma is ready to accelerate the treatment of cancer. The biopharmaceutical company is developing protein therapies to treat certain types of cancer and rare diseases such as the blood diseases beta-thalassemia and myelodysplastic syndromes (MDS). It has collaboration agreements with pharmaceutical giants Alkermes Celgene and Shire but its work with Celgene shows the most promise. The two companies are developing sotatercept and ACE-536 to treat anemia and associated complications in patients with other blood diseases. Acceleron Pharma raised $83 million in its 2013 IPO which it will use to fund clinical trials for its drug candidates.

Accuray gets an A not a C for accuracy. Its radiosurgery CyberKnife system uses precisely aimed high-dose radiation and improves upon older radiosurgery systems that have limited mobility and are mostly used to treat brain tumors. Doctors can use CyberKnife to treat tumors anywhere in the body; the system tracks and adjusts for movement in real time allowing for patient and tumor movement. Accuray also offers the TomoTherapy systems which allow doctors to change the intensity of the radiation beam to adapt to the shape location and size of a tumor. Together the two products have an installed base of more than 700 units in about 40 countries.

For patients with acute pain a slip of the tongue could be a useful thing. AcelRx is developing the Sufentanil NanoTab PCA System which administers pain medication sublingually or under the tongue. Designed for patients with post-operative pain the system administers measured doses of the opioid sufentanil in the form of tiny tablets which quickly dissolve and are absorbed into the body through the lining under the tongue. Currently in late-stage of development its NanoTab system is also being developed to treat cancer-related pain or provide sedation and pain relief to patients having procedures at doctors' offices. Founded in 2005 AcelRx went public in 2011 through a $40 million IPO.

Biopharmaceutical company Opexa Therapeutics wants to develop chronic remedies for chronic diseases. Specializing in autologous treatments (those which use the patient's own tissue and cells) Opexa is developing Tovaxin a T-cell vaccine used for the treatment of multiple sclerosis which is caused when the body's immune system (T-cells) attacks the nervous system. Currently in late stages of development Tovaxin works by lowering the levels of harmful T-cells in the body. Opexa was also researching its adult stem cell technology with the goal of developing treatments for diabetes and other chronic diseases but it sold rights to the stem cell technology to Novartis in 2009. Opexa is being acquired by Acer Therapeutics; the combined firm will focus on developing treatments for serious rare diseases.

Seven score and a few years ago ACNB Corporation's fathers brought forth a small-town bank. Now ACNB is dedicated to the proposition of being the holding company for Adams County National Bank operating more than 20 branches in the Gettysburg and Newville areas of Pennsylvania. It is altogether fitting and proper that the bank offers traditional retail banking services. The world may long note and remember that the bank also provides residential mortgage (about 60% of the portfolio) commercial real estate consumer and business loans. In addition ACNB gives a full measure of devotion to insurance products; provides trust services; and hopes that community banking shall not perish from the earth.

Acura Pharmaceuticals is working to provide accurate dosages of powerful drugs while preventing drug abuse. The company has developed a technology to add abuse-deterrent agents to commonly abused pharmaceuticals. If a drug with these agents (what Acura calls Aversion Technology) is crushed and inhaled certain ingredients will cause nasal irritation and if an abuser attempts to dissolve the powder it will form a non-injectable gel. Its Impede Technology works with pseudoephedrine to disrupt the process used to turn the decongestant into meth. Acura's approved products include prescription Aversion oxycodone and over-the-counter Nexafed (pseudoephedrine with Impede ingredients).

ADM Tronics has had its own Industrial Revolution. While the company previously focused on the making of medical devices ADM has shifted its main focus to water-based chemical products for industrial use. These products include coatings resins primers and additives primarily for the printing and packaging industries. The firm licenses many of its medical products which include the Sonotron line of devices (used to treat osteoarthritis and inflammatory joint ailments with radio waves). Its Pros-Aide unit makes adhesives used in professional makeup products. ADM spun off Ivivi Technologies in 2006 but still owns about a third of the company. The founding DiMino family owns nearly half of ADM Tronics.

Advanced Photonix Inc. (API) senses more with light. The company makes devices that detect light and radiation including photodiodes photo detectors and optoelectronic assemblies which are used by manufacturers in analysis and imaging equipment for applications ranging from missile guidance and satellite positioning to baggage scanning and blood analysis. API's large-area avalanche photodiodes (LAAPDs) are used to sense low levels of light and radiation. Its FILTRODE technology applies optical coatings to photodiode chips to filter out bright background light. About 25% of its sales are to federal government contractors.

Advaxis is making a bad bacteria do good. A clinical-stage biotechnology firm it is developing vaccine therapies using its proprietary Lm Technology that modifies the infectious microorganism known as Listeria monocytogenes (commonly associated with food poisoning) to activate the immune system to fight various cancers. (Listeria is thought to be an unusually strong stimulator of the immune system.) Advaxis' lead candidate axalimogene filoliscab targets HPV-associated cancers and is being tested for the treatment of cervical head and neck and anal cancer. Other candidates in development target prostate cancer and solid tumors. The company announced a restructuring (including cutting a quarter of its workforce) in mid-2018 after it placed axalimogene filoliscab on clinical hold.

With a high-flyin' inventory AeroCentury leases used turboprop aircraft and engines to domestic and foreign regional airlines and other commercial customers. The company buys equipment from an airline and then either leases it back to the seller buys assets already under lease and assumes the obligations of the seller or makes a purchase and then immediately enters into a new lease with a third-party lessee (when it has a customer committed to a lease). Typically lessees are responsible for any maintenance costs. AeroCentury owns over 40 aircraft mainly deHavilland and Fokker models. Almost 90% of the company's lease revenues come from airlines headquartered outside the US.

They say it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure this out. But in the case of Aerojet-General it actually did. Founded by a professor and his colleagues at Caltech the company today develops and manufactures propulsion systems for defense and space applications including tactical missiles and space launch vehicles. It is the largest provider of propulsion systems in the US serving the likes of the US Army the Missile Defense Agency (MDA) and NASA. Aerojet in fact is the only domestic supplier of all four propulsion types: solid liquid air-breathing and electric. The company is the primary operating subsidiary of GenCorp.

If you've got an iffy driving record or let your insurance lapse can you still get auto coverage? This company answers in the Affirmative. Affirmative Insurance Holdings through its subsidiaries writes nonstandard auto insurance policies — that is coverage for drivers in high-risk categories due to their age driving records and other factors. It sells its policies through about 5300 independent agents in seven southern and mid-western states. Affirmative sold its nearly 200 company-owned retail locations (including A-Affordable Driver's Choice InsureOne and USAgencies stores) in late 2013. Investment firm J.C. Flowers controls more than half of the company.

Affymax is training peptides to give red blood cells a pep talk. The biotechnology firm is researching and developing drugs based upon peptides which can help regulate biological processes. Its leading drug candidate Omontys (peginesatide) was approved by the FDA in 2012 as a treatment for anemia due to chronic kidney disease. Affymax believes Omontys which was developed and commercialized through a partnership with Japan's Takeda Pharmaceutical will prove to be cheaper and longer lasting than the EPO stimulants currently used on dialysis patients. However the product was recalled in 2013 due to adverse reactions to the drug.

Agent Information Software (AIS) seeks to organize information on your behalf. A holding company AIS owns two niche information management software subsidiaries: Auto-Graphics and AgentLegal. Auto-Graphics which primarily serves public libraries offers hosted software used to manage share (e.g. interlibrary loans) and search library resources. On the other hand AgentLegal's software caters to law firm professionals including firm CFOs looking to manage the cost of search resources; law librarians and IT departments who manage and protect information; and researchers who gather information. AIS was formed in 2009 to take over Auto-Graphics' stock.

Cancer and other diseases had better beware — Agenus (formerly Antigenics) is packing heat. The firm develops heat shock proteins which are related to the immune system's response to disease. Its patient-specific vaccines work on the theory that each person's cancer has a unique signature that can be derived from the tumor after it has been removed. The company refers to these vaccines as its Prophage Series the lead drug candidate in the series Oncophage is the first personalized cancer vaccine to receive FDA fast track status and is being developed to treat kidney and skin cancers. Agenus is also developing viral vaccines and QS-21 Stimulon an improved vaccine adjuvant to make vaccines more effective.

The expenses involved in equipping and operating a farm add up quickly which is where AgFirst Farm Credit Bank comes in. AgFirst is one of a half-dozen members of the Farm Credit System a federally chartered network of agricultural and rural lending cooperatives. Boasting $30 billion in assets the bank provides financing to 19 farmer-owned agricultural credit associations. The associations in turn offer mortgages and loans to some 80000 farmers agribusinesses and rural homeowners through 280 branches in 15 eastern states and Puerto Rico. They also offer crop insurance credit-related life insurance and financial planning services. Instead of accepting deposits AgFirst raises money by selling bonds and notes on the capital markets.

Agios Pharmaceuticals wants to say "adios" to cancer. The biopharmaceutical company is developing metabolic treatments for certain types of cancer and rare genetic diseases. Its lead drug candidates AG-221 and AG-120 are oral tablets that apply cellular metabolism to treat patients with cancers that harbor certain mutations. Agios has a development collaboration agreement with Celgene for its cancer metabolism program. Another drug candidate AG-348 would treat a form of hemolytic anemia known as pyruvate kinase deficiency or PK deficiency. Agios went public in 2013 raising about $106 million in its IPO which it plans to use to further fund clinical development for its drug candidates.

AGNC Investment (formerly American Capital Agency) is taking on the rocky real estate market. The real estate investment trust (REIT) was created in 2008 to invest in securities backed by single-family residential mortgages and collateralized mortgage obligations guaranteed by government agencies Fannie Mae Freddie Mac and Ginnie Mae. The Maryland-based REIT is externally managed and advised by American Capital AGNC Management a subsidiary of US publicly traded alternative asset manager American Capital which spun off American Capital Agency in 2008 but retained about a 33% stake in the REIT.

Who loves you a bushel and a peck? South Dakota Wheat Growers may; it is an agricultural co-op comprising some 6800 member-farmers. It provides a grain warehouse along with grain marketing services intended to compete with big food and ag companies. In addition to storage and drying Wheat Growers offers agronomy spreading and spraying and transportation. It supplies feed fertilizer chemicals and other farm-related provisions for members in and around counties in North and South Dakota. Wheat Growers generates more than half of its revenues through marketing some 160 million bushels of grain (corn wheat and soybeans) each year. Remaining revenues are made through agronomy and retail sales and services.

Air Lease doesn't really lease air unless of course you include the air inside the cabins of its fleet of airplanes. An aircraft leasing company Air Lease buys new and used commercial aircraft from manufacturers and airlines and then leases to airline carriers in Europe the Asia-Pacific region and the Americas. It owns a fleet of almost 240 aircraft comprised of 181 single-aisle narrowbody jet aircraft 40 twin-aisle widebody jet aircraft and 19 turboprop aircraft. In addition to leasing Air Lease also offers fleet management services such as lease management and sales.

It's a bird it's a plane ... it's an ambulance! With a fleet of more than 400 medically equipped aircraft mainly helicopters Air Methods is the largest provider of emergency medical air-transportation services in the US. The company operates through three divisions. A community-based operating segment which represents roughly 85% of revenues offers transportation and in-flight medical care from hubs in some two dozen states. It also provides tourism operations around the Grand Canyon and Hawaiian Islands. The smallest division United Rotorcraft designs manufactures and installs aircraft medical-transport products. In 2017 Air Methods was acquired by a private equity firm.

There's nothing illicit about the underground activities of the Alameda Corridor Transportation Authority; in fact the agency's mission — to facilitate efficient rail transportation of containerized cargo in Southern California — is strictly above-board. The Alameda Corridor Transportation Authority maintains 20 miles of freight rail lines between the ports of Long Beach and Los Angeles and the main rail terminals near downtown Los Angeles. The agency's system known as the Alameda Corridor includes the Mid-Corridor Trench a 10-mile section of railroad constructed 30 feet underground.

Having failed to strike gold and feeling lost Alanco Technologies is looking for a new business venture. The company once made pollution control systems owned gold mines and made unsuccessful forays into both the data storage and restaurant fryer businesses. It also made radio-frequency ID (RFID) tracking devices for correctional facilities through its TSI PRISM subsidiary until that line of business was sold in 2010 to Alabama-based Black Creek Integrated Systems for about $2 million in cash. Alanco then offered subscription-based GPS tracking data services for the refrigerated transport industry through StarTrak Systems (acquired for $15 million in 2006) but sold that business to ORBCOMM in 2011.

The fifth-largest airline in the US Alaska Air Group ferries more than 46 million passengers each year to nearly 120 destinations through its two carrier brands Alaska Airlines and Horizon Air. It completes an average of 1200 flights per day from the US Canada and Mexico. The group's primary hub is Seattle (accounting for around three-quarters of passengers) but it also flies out of key markets such as Portland Oregon; Los Angeles; and Anchorage Alaska. Alaska Airlines' fleet comprises about 160 Boeing 737 and about 40 Bombardier Q400 turboprops. Alaska Air Group expanded in 2016 with the acquisition of Virgin America and wasted no time integrating the company and eliminating the Virgin America brand.

Call it the incredible shrinking grocery chain. Albertson's LLC runs about 190 Albertsons supermarkets in Arizona Arkansas Colorado Florida Louisiana New Mexico and Texas. That's all that remains of what was once the nation's #2 supermarket operator with about 2500 stores. Stung by competition the firm sold itself to a consortium that included rival grocer SUPERVALU drugstore chain CVS investment firm Cerberus Capital Management and Kimco Realty for about $9.7 billion in 2006. SUPERVALU and CVS cherry-picked the company's best supermarket and drugstore assets. Subsequent closings and divestments including 132 stores in Northern California and most of its Florida locations further shrunk the firm.

Alexion Pharmaceuticals can't suppress its enthusiasm for treating immune functions gone awry. The firm develops drugs that inhibit certain immune system functions that cause rare hematology nephrology neurology and metabolic disorders. Its primary product monoclonal antibody Soliris is used to treat two rare genetic blood disorders — paroxysmal nocturnal hemoglobinuria (PNH) and atypical hemolytic uremic syndrome (aHUS). In 2017 it was approved in Europe Japan and the US for the treatment of the ultra-rare disease refractory generalized myasthenia gravis (gMG) in certain adults. Soliris is also being tested as a treatment for other conditions. The firm's newer products include enzyme replacement therapies Strensiq (the first approved treatment for hypophosphatasia or HPP in children) and Kanuma.

Alexza Pharmaceuticals has found that its inhalation technologies can lead to swifter drug absorption. That is the basis for the company's primary product Staccato inhalers which it is developing to treat central nervous system (CNS) disorders. The inhalers contain a heating element coated with a thin layer of medicine. Before use the patient triggers the heating element which vaporizes the medicine allowing the patient to inhale it. The medicine is then rapidly absorbed through the lungs at a rate typically faster than oral and intravenous applications. Alexza Pharmaceuticals targets neurological disorders including addiction and anxiety.

Alfred University was a progressive bastion of learning from the start. A private university in Western New York the small non-sectarian school serves about 2400 students. Its academic programs range from the liberal arts and sciences to engineering business and art and design with degrees from a bachelor's to a Ph.D. The school also houses the New York State College of Ceramics. The student-faculty ratio is 12-to-1. The university was founded as the Select School in 1836 providing a coeducational environment from the school's beginnings. Alfred University (and the village it's in) is named for Alfred the Great ninth-century ruler of southern England. Its mascot is of course the Saxons.

Alico is bullish on cattle but citrus generates more revenue. The agribusiness company which owns more than 130000 acres of farm land in Florida dabbles in sugarcane citrus and sod and native plant production as well as land leasing and conservation. Alico's citrus is packed or processed with fruit from other growers through produce marketer Ben Hill Griffin. It has a breeding herd of approximately 8700 cows and bulls and it sells stock primarily to meat packing and processing plants. Alico's sugarcane is sold through a pooling agreement with a nearby sugar mill; sod is marketed through a US wholesaler. Alico is majority owned by the New York investment firm 734 Agriculture LLC and the Arlon Group.

Alimera Sciences wants to see clear into the future. The biopharmaceutical develops prescription ophthalmic medicines particularly those aimed at treating ocular diseases affecting the retina. Alimera's first commercialized product Iluvien is an injectable insert — smaller than a grain of rice — that slowly releases a corticosteroid to the back of the eye to treat diabetic macular edema (DME). DME a retinal disease affecting diabetics can lead to severe vision loss and blindness. Iluvien is approved in the US (where it became commercially available in 2015) and in about 20 nations in Europe. Alimera is investigating another group of drugs as potential treatments for macular degeneration and diabetic retinopathy.

Allegro MicroSystems' chips don't need touch to make contact. The company is one of the world's top makers of Hall-effect sensors which reduce mechanical wear by using magnets to produce contactless sensors. Automakers use these specialized components — named after an electromagnetic phenomenon called "the Hall effect" — in braking steering suspension and other systems. Allegro also makes power integrated circuits (ICs) used in printers and portable electronics along with driver controller and power interface ICs used in a variety of applications. The company is a subsidiary of Sanken Electric.

For Allen & Company there's no business like financing show business. The investment bank serves variously as investor underwriter and broker to some of the biggest names in entertainment technology and information. Viewed as something of a secret society the firm has had a quiet hand in such hookups as Seagram (now part of Vivendi) and Universal Studios Hasbro and Galoob Toys and Disney and Capital Cities/ABC. The notoriously secretive firm's famous annual retreat in Sun Valley Idaho attracts more moguls than a double-black ski run (Warren Buffett Bill Gates Rupert Murdoch and Oprah Winfrey have attended). Brothers Herbert and Charles Allen founded the company in 1922.

All that glitters is not gold; some of it's silver. That's the story at Allied Nevada Gold a mining company that produces gold primarily and silver as a by-product from its property in Nevada. Its wholly owned Hycroft Mine sitting on 96 sq. mi. has proven and probable mineral reserves of about 3 million ounces of gold and nearly 50 million ounces of silver. The company is conducting feasibility studies for a mill on the property that would process sulfide and other high oxide ores. Allied Nevada Gold also explores for gold silver and other minerals on more than 100 properties in the state. The company was spun off from Vista Gold in 2007 when it acquired its former parent's Nevada mining operations.

Ally Bank is on your side when it comes to banking. Formerly known as GMAC Bank Ally Bank (which is a subsidiary of government-backed Ally Financial) offers savings and money market accounts as well as traditional and no-penalty CDs. The online bank also offers interest checking accounts. The bank offers its services online and over the phone; it operates no physical branch locations. Clients also can use any ATM in the US and Ally will reimburse any fees charged by other banks. Ally Bank was revamped and renamed in 2009 in the midst of GM's (very public) financial difficulties. Predecessor GMAC Bank had been in operation since 2001.

Like a genetic linebacker Alnylam Pharmaceuticals runs interference with RNA to prevent the forward progress of disease. RNA interference (RNAi) technology developed by the biotech firm can selectively shut off harmful genes. The company is developing a pipeline of candidates both individually and through collaborations with other drugmakers. Its disease targets include neurological ailments hypercholesterolemia and hemophilia. In mid-2018 the FDA approved the firm's patisiran drug for the treatment of neuropathy (nerve damage); it was the first RNAi-based therapy to gain approval in the US. Alnylam has additional partner-based programs in clinical or development stages including candidates targeting respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) infection and liver cancers.

The crude oil refinery of Alon USA Partners doesn't exactly stand alone seeing as how it's situated right in the middle of the West Texas oil patch. Located in Big Spring with a capacity of 70000 barrels per day it powers the company's petroleum products refining and marketing business. The refinery mainly produces gasoline and diesel and jet fuel along with asphalt and petrochemicals and the company markets them in Arizona New Mexico Oklahoma and Texas. In 2012 Alon USA Partners was spun off by Alon USA Energy which in turn is majority-owned by Alon Israel Oil. The same year the company went public through an IPO that raised $184 million.

The alpha and omega of Alpha Natural Resources is coal mining. One of the top coal producers in the US the company produces steam and metallurgical coal at 60 active mines and 22 coal preparation plants primarily in central and northern Appalachia and the Powder River Basin in Wyoming. Alpha's sales are split between low-sulfur steam coal used mainly for electricity generation and metallurgical coal used primarily for steelmaking. The company produces about 84 million tons of coal per year. Alpha controls about 4 billion tons of proved and probable coal reserves. Faced with increasing debt and tightening federal regulations the company entered into Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in August 2015.

Unlike most people the folks at Alseres Pharmaceuticals (formerly Boston Life Sciences) want to get on your nerves. The biotechnology company is developing therapies and diagnostics related to nervous system conditions such as spinal cord injury Parkinson's disease and attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). Its lead candidate is Altoprane a molecular imaging agent for diagnosing Parkinson's disease and ADHD. Another candidate Cethrin aims to repair nerve damage caused by spinal cord injury; Alseres licensed Cethrin from Canadian firm BioXone Therapeutic in 2006.

When Altair Nanotechnologies paints the town its pigment of choice is titanium dioxide (TiO<sub>2</sub>). The company produces titanium dioxide particles used in paints coatings and sensors. Altair intends to create new applications and products with its nanocrystalline technology. Its major development thus far has been its nano lithium-titanate battery materials which offer superior performance the company says to other rechargeable batteries. In 2011 Canon Investment Holdings through a subsidiary purchased a 49% share in Altair for $57.5 million. The deal includes the transfer of Altair's lithium-titanate manufacturing process for producing battery cells to Canon's Energy Storage Technology (China) Group.

Amarillo — home to cattlemen prairies and...interferon? Amarillo Biosciences hopes its low-dose interferon alpha (IFNa) which modulates the immune system will help those suffering from a range of maladies including viral and autoimmune diseases. The company's interferon technology which uses a low-dose dissolving tablet potentially offers effective treatment with fewer side effects than injectable forms of the drug. Amarillo Biosciences is developing its interferon technology as a treatment for flu oral warts in HIV patients and chronic cough. Through research partners it is also investigating the drug in relation to Behcet's disease (a severe inflammatory disorder) and hepatitis C.

Ambac has scaled back in a major way. Holding company Ambac Financial operates through subsidiaries including its flagship unit Ambac Assurance Everspan Financial Guarantee and Ambac Assurance UK. The businesses offered financial guarantees and related services to customers around the world. Ambac Assurance guaranteed public finance and structured finance obligations but it has stopped offering new business and placed its existing business in run-off (meaning it still accepts premium payments due on existing policies and pays out claims as it can).

Ambarella's technology helps capture crisp clear digital images in cameras designed for sports autos drones and security. The company designs and markets video processing semiconductors for taking high-definition video and still images. It combines its system-on-a-chip semiconductor designs with proprietary software to create both industry and consumer products. The hardware/software combo helps cameras compensate for motion as a skier swoops downhill or a drone sweeps over a mountain. In security applications Ambarella's video chips can gather high-def images in low light. The company designs its chips which are made by contractors for small form factors and to run on low power.

Ambient hopes its smart grid technology will stand out not blend in. The company develops technology that allows power lines to serve as high-speed data communications networks. Ambient's products — including nodes couplers and network management software — utilize Broadband over Power Line (BPL) and other technologies to create advanced power grids (also known as smart grids) with two-way communication capabilities. Its systems are designed to be used by utility companies for such applications as demand management direct load control meter reading and real-time pricing. Ambient has landed deals with Con Ed and Duke Energy to develop and deploy its technology.

AMC Entertainment shines when the lights go down. The company whose initials once stood for American Multi-Cinema is the #1 movie theater chain in the US and the world. It owns partially owns or operates about 660 theaters with 8200 screens most of which are in megaplexes (units with more than 12 screens and stadium seating). It also has a significant presence in Europe through London-based subsidiary Odeon & UCI Cinemas Group. AMC also owns about 25% of MovieTickets.com. Chinese investment firm Wanda Group bought AMC in 2012 and took the company public again in 2013. AMC acquired Odeon and Carmike in 2016 and has agreed to acquire Nordic Cinema Group which will swell its total theater pool to over 1000.

Ameriana Bancorp may sound merry but it takes business seriously. It's the parent of Ameriana Bank which has about a dozen offices in central Indiana. The bank offers standard deposit products including checking savings and money market accounts; CDs; and IRAs. It focuses on real estate lending: Residential mortgages account for about half of its loan portfolio and commercial real estate loans represent about 30%. The company sells auto home life health and business coverage through its Ameriana Insurance Agency subsidiary. Another unit Ameriana Investment Management provides brokerage and investment services through an agreement with LPL Financial.

There's a thin line between employment and unemployment and that line might just be on one of American Bio Medica's drug-testing kits. The company's Rapid Drug Screen products indicate within minutes the presence in a urine sample of such illegal substances as marijuana cocaine amphetamines and opiates. Used by employers law enforcement agencies hospitals schools and other institutions the tests offer up to 10-panel options (each panel tests for different substances). The company's Rapid One is a line of single-drug specific tests; its Rapid Tec and Rapid TOX products detect multiple drug classes on one panel. American Bio Medica also offers saliva-based tests for law enforcement customers.

American Campus Communities (ACC) actually does most of its business off campus. The self-managed real estate investment trust (REIT) owns and operates student housing properties located at or near colleges and universities in more than 25 states. The company leases the ground for on-campus properties from the schools which in turn receive half of the net cash flow from these properties. ACC also works with schools to develop new properties and renovate existing housing and provides third-party leasing and management services for other student housing owners. In all the REIT manages about 206 properties (with some 133,000 beds) at more than 90 schools in the US and Canada.

The philosopher Socrates once said "I am that gadfly which God has given the state." While the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) might have a quarrel with the "God" part the group has at times proved a stinging critic in its efforts to defend individual rights. It acts as a legal and legislative advocate in matters related to civil liberties and the Bill of Rights. The ACLU has participated in such cases as the 1925 Scopes trial (challenged a ban on teaching evolution) Brown v. Board of Education (school desegregation) Roe v. Wade (abortion rights) and Romer v. Evans (gay and lesbian rights). The group which has more than 500000 members has offices throughout the US. It was founded in 1920.

Talk about spending a long time in labor: The AFL-CIO (American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations) has been focused on the task for more than a century. The AFL-CIO is an umbrella organization for more than 55 autonomous national and international unions. Altogether the AFL-CIO represents more than 12 million workers — from actors and airline pilots to marine engineers and machinists. It fights to improve wages and working conditions. The organization charters 50-plus state federations and about 500 central labor councils. Union members generally receive about 30% higher pay and more benefits than non-members. The AFL-CIO was created in 1955 by the merger of the AFL and the CIO.

The recycled fiberglass molding to be made by American Fiber Green Products will come in more colors than green. American Fiber Green Products announced plans in 2008 to build the first fiberglass recycling plant in the US. Its subsidiaries including American Leisure Products and Chariot Manufacturing will incorporate the recycled resin products into their manufacturing process to build such products as picnic tables park benches trailers boats and vehicle bodies for replicas of vintage cars. American Fiber Green Products is working on other uses to circumvent fiberglass away from landfills. Company president and CEO Dan Hefner also holds those positions for American Commerce Solutions.

As far as this company is concerned Angus beef is as American as apple pie. American Restaurant Group owns and operates the Black Angus Steakhouse chain with about 45 locations in half a dozen western states. The upscale casual dinnerhouses offer a menu of Black Angus steaks and prime rib along with chicken seafood and pasta dishes. Some locations also offer happy hour specials. In addition to dine-in seating the chain provides drive-up take-out service at many of its units. Rancher and entrepreneur Stuart Anderson opened the first Black Angus restaurant in Seattle in 1964. The chain was acquired in 2009 by affiliates of private equity firm Versa Capital Management.

Ameriflight takes flight across the Americas delivering time-sensitive packages for banks and for other air cargo carriers. The company serves some 200 communities primarily in the western US but also elsewhere in the US and in Canada and Mexico. Managing 75000 packages a day it operates a fleet of about 170 aircraft consisting of small jets and turboprops from several manufacturers from about a dozen hubs. The company serves other air cargo carriers by meeting their larger air freighters at major airports and distributing cargo to markets not easily served by big aircraft. Ameriflight is owned by its management team.

Amicus Therapeutics develops drugs that treat rare genetic diseases known as lysosomal storage disorders. Unlike other treatments which replace defective enzymes Amicus uses small molecule pharmacological "chaperones" which bind to a patient's own defective proteins and restore their functions a process it calls Chaperone-Advanced Replacement Therapy (CHART). Its lead drug candidate Galafold was approved by the FDA in mid-2018 for the treatment of Fabry disease. Other candidates are in development to treat Pompe disease. The company is also researching treatments for neurodegenerative diseases including Parkinson's.

Amos Press (also known as Amos Publishing) is something of a hobby horse. The company publishes more than 15 niche titles that provide news information and entertainment pieces for collectors. Initially a daily newspaper publishing company Amos expanded into the collectibles business in 1960 with its launch of Coin World a weekly national news magazine for coin collectors. It later acquired Linn's Stamp News a weekly periodical serving stamp collectors and Cars & Parts a publication designed for automotive fans with a focus on authentic collector cars. In 1984 Amos bought Scott Publishing Company another publisher of content for stamp collectors. Amos Press was founded by James Amos in 1876.

Atlantic Methanol Production Company (AMPCO) must have adopted "Waste not want not" as its motto. It tries not to waste the natural gas that is a by-product of its parent companies' production processes. A joint venture between Noble Energy (45% ownership) Marathon Oil (45%) and SONAGAS the National Gas Company of Equatorial Guinea (10%) the company operates one of the largest methanol plants in the world. The plant off the coast of Equatorial Guinea produces about 1 million tons of methanol annually — 2% of the global market. AMPCO also distributes using three vessels and five terminals in Europe and US where it sells most of its production.

Midstates Petroleum Company knows there's much more to Louisiana than Creoles crawfish and alligators. An independent oil and gas exploration and production company Midstates operates on some 64700 net acres in the central Louisiana portion of the Upper Gulf Coast Tertiary. The company's assets consist primarily of mature oilfields discovered in the 1940s and '50s that continue to show production potential when developed with modern techniques. The company routinely uses such techniques and technologies to produce oil including hydraulic fracturing and 3D seismic data. In 2013 Midstates reported proved reserves of 127.8 million barrels of oil equivalent. If filed for bankruptcy protection in 2016.

AmpliPhi Biosciences (formerly called Targeted Genetics) is amping up the fight against bacterial infections. The drug developer focuses on anti-bacterial (bacteriophage) therapeutics. It was after the 2011 acquisition of Biocontrol that AmpliPhi reorganized itself; going from being focused on developing DNA-based gene therapies to encourage (or sometimes inhibit) the production of proteins associated with disease to its current focus of treatments for antibiotic-resistant bacterial infections. The field for anti-infective treatments is receiving great attention these days with the spread of antibiotic-resistant infections such as the deadly methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus aka MRSA.

Anacor is hardcore about curing skin conditions. The company is developing boron-based drug compounds for use as topical treatments of bacterial fungal and inflammatory conditions. Its lead candidates aim to treat onychomycosis (a kind of toenail fungus) psoriasis and hospital-acquired bacterial infections. Anacor has focused on topical treatments for the time being because they are relatively easy to develop and market but it believes its boron chemistry can produce drugs in therapeutic fields such as viral and parasitic infections and rare infectious diseases. The company went public in 2010.

ANADIGICS makes chips that cook with GaAs. The company makes gallium arsenide (GaAs) radio-frequency integrated circuits for cellular wireless WiFi and infrastructure applications. GaAs ICs may be costlier than silicon but their physical properties allow the compound materials to be used for chips that are smaller and faster or more energy-efficient than silicon chips. ANADIGICS' power amplifiers switches and other chips can be found in the cable modems set-top boxes wireless devices and other gear of companies including Samsung Huawei and ZTE. The majority of customers come from Asia.

Los Angeles' other baseball team actually resides in Anaheim California. Angels Baseball owns and operates the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim professional baseball franchise. The team originally owned by cowboy actor Gene Autry joined Major League Baseball as an expansion franchise in 1960 and has boasted such Hall of Fame talent as Rod Carew and Nolan Ryan. However Angels fans had to wait until 2002 for the team to win its first American League pennant and World Series title. Phoenix businessman Arturo Moreno who has owned the team since 2003 was the first Hispanic to own a major sports franchise in the US.

It's good to look before you leap - and even before you make. That's why ANSYS helps designers and engineers see how their ideas play out even before a prototype is built by simulating designs on a computer. The company's software analyzes the models for their response to combinations of such physical variables as stress pressure impact temperature and velocity. Ranging from small consulting firms to multinational enterprises its customers come from a broad range of industries and have included Delphi Airbus Invenys and Plexus. ANSYS generates about 60% of revenue from outside the US with Japan and Germany among its leading international markets.

Antares Pharma understands antagonism towards needles. The company develops needle-free systems for administering injectable drugs. Its Medi-Jector Vision system for instance injects a thin high-pressure stream of liquid eliminating the need for a needle. The Vision system is used primarily for the delivery of insulin and of human growth hormones (hGH) and Vibex disposable pen injectors carry epinephrine and other products. The products are available in the US and overseas. In addition to its needle-free systems the company develops other drug-delivery platforms including topical gels orally administered disintegrating tablets and mini-needle injection systems.

Anthera Pharmaceuticals is involved in some very complicated sounding (not to mention hard to say) drug development. Its lead product varespladib methyl is in late stage clinical trials to treat acute coronary syndrome. Other candidates include A-623 to treat lupus and varespladib sodium to treat acute chest syndrome. Varespladib is designed to inhibit an enzyme called sPLA 2 that is implicated in a variety of acute inflammatory conditions such as cardiovascular disease sickle cell disease and coronary artery disease. Since its founding in 2004 Anthera's operations have consisted primarily of research and development activities. The company went public in early 2010 in an IPO worth about $37 million.

Narcotics are the name of the game for Aoxing Pharmaceutical which makes Naloxone and oxycodone products. Opioids are relatively new to China and the company has one of the only government-sanctioned manufacturing facilities; it is also the largest. Like many pharma companies Aoxing operates through many joint ventures and partnerships including a JV with pharmaceutical ingredient maker Johnson Matthey Plc and strategic alliances with American Oriental Bioengineering QRxPharma and Phoenix PharmaLabs. In addition to narcotics the company offers OTC pain relievers some based on traditional Chinese medicine. Aoxing which traces its roots to 1600 became a public company in 2006 through a reverse merger.

Apex Global Brands (formerly Cherokee Global Brands) owns several trademarks including Cherokee Liz Lange Sideout Tony Hawk and Everyday California and licenses them to retailers and wholesalers of apparel footwear and accessories. The main idea behind Apex's business is that large retailers can source merchandise more efficiently than individual brand owners and that licensed brands can sell better for retailers than private labels. In addition to licensing its own brands Apex helps other brand owners gain licensing contracts. Target the company's largest customer accounts for more than half of Apex's revenue; other licensees include Tesco and TJ Maxx. The company changed its name from Cherokee Global Brands to Apex Global Brands in 2019 to reflect its expanded brand portfolio marketing and design services.

When they're not out enjoying the scenery Virginians and West Virginians count on Appalachian Power to keep indoor temperatures stable. A subsidiary of American Electric Power Appalachian Power serves about 960,000 residential and business customers in southwestern Virginia and southern West Virginia and a small portion of northwestern Tennessee. The electric utility operates about 53,300 miles of distribution and transmission lines. It operates coal-fired gas-fired and hydroelectric plants that give it about 8,020 MW of capacity and it markets power to wholesale customers in the region.

Applied Minerals (formerly Atlas Mining) develops the Dragon mine in Utah. The 230-acre site contains a deposit of halloysite clay a substance used as an intermediate ingredient in chemicals manufacturing as well as in making bone china fine china and porcelain. The mine is believed to be the only source of halloysite clay in the Western Hemisphere suitable for large-scale commercial production. In addition to halloysite the Dragon mine contains other clays including kaolinite illite and smectite as well as iron oxide ores such as hematite goethite and manganese. The Dragon property contains a measured resource of nearly 600,000 tons of clay and more than 2 million tons of iron ore.

Natural selection doesn't happen fast enough for Applied Molecular Evolution (AME). The biotech firm uses its AMESystem technology to customize antibodies and proteins for medical uses. Employing what AME calls directed evolution the company adjusts a protein's amino acids one at a time until the protein acquires the desired therapeutic characteristics. AME's biopharmaceuticals have increased the potency of MedImmune's anti-tumor drug Vitaxin (which AME helped develop). The system has also been used to customize a protein which may ultimately help lymphoma patients who otherwise don't respond to Rituxin. The company is a subsidiary of Eli Lilly

Money doesn't grow on trees so Arbor Realty Trust invests in real estate-related assets. The real estate investment trust (REIT) buys structured finance assets in the commercial and multifamily real estate markets. It primarily invests in bridge loans (short-term financing) and mezzanine loans (large and usually unsecured loans) but also invests in discounted mortgage notes and other assets. The REIT targets lending and investment opportunities where borrowers seek interim financing until permanent financing is attained. Arbor Realty Trust is managed by financing firm Arbor Commercial Mortgage though in early 2016 the REIT agreed to buy Arbor Commercial Mortgage for $250 million to expand into the government-sponsored multi-family real estate loan origination business.

ARC Group puts a modern twist on making old-fashioned parts. The company makes industrial parts for aerospace automotive and medical uses with a 3D manufacturing process. The 3D process reduces times to prototype and make a part and helps the customer get its product to market faster. ARC offers more traditional manufacturing processes such as metal injection molding plastic injection molding and metal stamping. Those processes are ARC's biggest moneymaker accounting for more than four-fifths of revenue. The US is by far the company's biggest market. It has added to its portfolio of manufacturing processes through a series of acquisitions.

ARCA biopharma is using genes to treat your heart. The biopharmaceutical company's lead candidate Gencaro is a beta-blocker being developed to treat chronic heart failure and other cardiovascular diseases. Having identified common genetic variations in the cardiac nervous system ARCA biopharma believes those variations may help predict how well patients will respond to Gencaro. Pending regulatory approval Gencaro may be marketed directly by the company or through partnerships. If approved it will be the first genetically-targeted heart failure treatment. ARCA biopharma is also collaborating with LabCorp to develop a companion genetic diagnostic test for Gencaro.

It is difficult to arch around the name of Arch Coal when it comes to coal mining. One of the world's largest coal producers by volume Arch Coal controls a 2.1-billion-ton reserve base of both metallurgical and thermal coal coming from some 10 active mining complexes spread across all the major coal basins. Each year it sells almost 100 million tons to electric power generation companies (thermal coal) and steel producers (metallurgical coal). In 2016 Arch Coal voluntarily filed for (and emerged from) Chapter 11 bankruptcy successfully reducing its debt burden.

If it were that easy to treat ADHD Alcobra would wave a magic wand and say "Abracadabra!" Instead the Israeli company is developing a new type of drug to treat ADHD (Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder). The drug candidate MG01CI differs from traditional pharmaceuticals prescribed to manage ADHD in that it is not a stimulant like its well-known counterparts Adderall and Ritalin. MG01CI aims to be a safer alternative for patients who cannot tolerate the side effects such as insomnia and high blood pressure associated with stimulants. Alcobra plans to merge with private biotech Arcturus Therapeutics the combined firm will focus on developing RNA medicines to treat rare liver diseases non-alcoholic steatohepatitis (NASH) cystic fibrosis infectious diseases and other therapeutic areas.

Steel is important to China's growth and iron ore is important to steel. That's where China Armco Metals comes in. The company imports ores for sale to steel mills and other heavy industry. Its iron copper chrome and nickel ore as well as coal come from South America and Asia. Armco's largest customers include Lianyungang Jiaxin Resources Import & Export Sundial Metals and Minerals and China-Base Ningbo Foreign Trade together about two-thirds of sales. The company also imports and recycles scrap metal a cheaper replacement for iron ore in steel production. Armco was incorporated in 2001 in China as Armco & Metawise; it went public in 2008 through a reverse merger with US firm Cox Distributing.

Armstrong Energy is strong on coal. The company produces coal from Kentucky's Illinois Basin with proved and probable reserves of 319 million tons; it sells about 7 million tons of coal per year to utilities. In addition to six mines the company also owns three coal processing plants along the Green River with access to river rail and truck transportation. Armstrong Energy uses a variety of coal seams and processing techniques to deliver custom blends to its energy plant customers. The company leases the land its mine are on from its sister firm real estate management company Armstrong Resource Partners. Both are owned by investors Yorktown Partners which filed in late 2011 for both to trade publicly.

Paraphrasing the Army's longtime recruiting slogan buy all that you can buy at the PX (Post Exchange). The Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) runs about 3100 facilities including PXs and BXs (Base Exchanges) at US Army and Air Force bases in 30-plus countries all 50 US states and five US territories. Its presence includes some 180 retail stores and more than 1000 fast-food outlets (brands like Burger King and Taco Bell) as well as convenience stores/gas stations movie theaters and beauty shops. AAFES — which serves active-duty military personnel reservists retirees and their families — also sells goods online. Although it's a government agency under the DOD it receives less than 5% of its funding from the department.

Despite its name A ©ropostale is more mall-based than mail-based. It operates more than 800 mostly mall-based stores under the A ©ropostale and P.S. from A ©ropostale (for kids) banners in 50 US states Puerto Rico and Canada. It stocks the usual teen outerwear (jeans T-shirts accessories) mostly under the A ©ropostale and A ©ro names. The retailer designs and sources its own merchandise so that it can quickly respond to trends but has been struggling in a competitive environment in the aftermath of the US recession. In 2016 A ©ropostale filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

Arrowhead Pharmaceuticals develops drugs that silence disease-causing genes in the body. Its RNA interference (RNAi) platform named Targeted RNAi Molecule or TRiM reduces the messenger RNA in charge of producing proteins tied to diseases. The company's ARO-HBV drug is in clinical trials for the treatment of hepatitis B. Arrowhead has other RNA assets that are being explored to work in combination with ARO-HBV to treat various diseases. In late 2016 the company stopped developing its intravenously delivered dynamic polyconjugate delivery vehicle programs in order to focus on its TRiM technology.

With the wave of a wand ArthroCare can make tissue disappear. The company's proprietary Coblation technology (one of several of its technologies) uses bipolar radiofrequency energy to remove and shape cartilage and tendons and other soft tissues. Its specialized wands focus the energy and minimize damage to nearby healthy tissue simultaneously sealing small bleeding vessels. First used in arthroscopic procedures to repair joints the electrosurgery system line now includes equipment used in a wide range of minimally invasive surgeries. The company also makes ligament repair spinal stabilization and wound-care products.

Ascent Healthcare Solutions is banking on the idea that one doctor's trash could be another doctor's treasure. The company is out to help hospitals with the three "R"s — reduce reuse and recycle. Ascent focuses on reprocessing disposable medical devices for health care facilities (from small rural providers to surgery centers and group purchasing organizations). Its OR-based systems permit the collection of thousands of tons of devices marketed as "single-use" as well as a range of recyclable materials. After collecting the used devices it cleans sterilizes tests and then returns them from its centers in Florida and Arizona. The company is part of the MedSurg division of medical products maker Stryker.

As long as that sun keeps ascending in the eastern skies every day there will be ventures trying to tap its enormous energy resources. Ascent Solar Technologies is a development-stage company working on photovoltaic modules for use in consumer applications as well as satellites and spacecraft. The firm aspires to make such gear smaller lighter and more flexible than existing solar cells for use in space by utilizing a thin-film absorbing layer on top of a polyimide substrate. The thin-film layer on top of the high-temperature plastic is made up of copper indium gallium and selenium which is why the technology is called CIGS. Norsk Hydro has a 39% stake in the company.

ASTAR USA helps DHL take on delivery giants FedEx and UPS on their own turf. Hiring the carrier's fleet of some 8 aircraft enables DHL and other customers including the US Air Force Department of Defense and the United States Postal Service to achieve overnight delivery of virtually any kind of cargo. ASTAR's service includes scheduled as well as chartered flights. In early 2009 ASTAR suffered a blow to its business when — in order to cut costs — DHL was forced to shut down its US express delivery operations. ASTAR and other carriers continue to operate DHL's international shipping services to and from the US albeit at a reduced level. An investment group led by CEO John Dasburg controls ASTAR.

It's all about connections for Atlantic Southeast Airlines (ASA). Operating as a Delta Connection regional carrier ASA flies to smaller markets on behalf of Delta Air Lines primarily from Delta's hubs in Atlanta and Cincinnati. The carrier serves about 110 destinations mainly east of the Mississippi in the US but also in western states and in Canada Mexico and the Caribbean. ASA maintains a fleet of about 160 aircraft all of which are Canadair regional jets (CRJs) made by Bombardier. Founded in 1979 ASA is a subsidiary of SkyWest which bought the company from Delta in 2005. In late 2010 SkyWest boosted its capacity by acquiring rival ExpressJet via ASA establishing ExpressJet as a subsidiary of ASA.

Suffering from a fiscal near-death experience? Let Atlanticus Holdings help resuscitate you. Subprime is the strategy for this company. Formerly named CompuCredit until November 2012 it traditionally issued unsecured Visa and MasterCard credit cards to customers with low credit scores and charged them more for the risk. The economic downturn compelled the firm to close most of its active credit card accounts. However Atlanticus continues to collect on portfolios of credit card receivables underlying now-closed credit card accounts. The company current portfolio offers Credit and Other Investments; and Auto Finance.

Aura Systems is charging ahead with its AuraGen electric generator which can produce 8500 watts of power from an idling car engine. Companies in the telecommunications utilities and oil and gas industries use the AuraGen to generate mobile power; the military version of the AuraGen is marketed as the VIPER. RV maker Country Coach announced plans in 2004 to install the AuraGen on its Prevost model. Aura Systems also is entitled to royalties from Daewoo Electronics for use of electro-optical technology found in projection TVs. The company gets about 80% of its sales in the US.

Automotive Finance Corp. (AFC) is where auto dealers go to make a deal. The firm finances floor planning or inventory purchases for independent used car dealers that buy vehicles from sister company ADESA Auctions as well as independent auctions auctions affiliated with other networks and non-auction purchases. Through more than 80 North American offices (about half of which are located at ADESA sites) AFC provides short-term (30- to 60-day) loans; it sells most of its finance receivables to subsidiary AFC Funding Corp. which then sells them to a bank conduit facility. Proceeds from the revolving sale of receivables are used to fund new loans. AFC is a subsidiary of KAR Auction Services.

AutoNation wants to instill patriotic fervor in the fickle car-buying public. The brainchild of entrepreneur Wayne Huizenga (Waste Management Blockbuster) AutoNation is the #1 auto dealer in the US (ahead of Penske Automotive Group and Sonic Automotive). The firm owns more than 370 new-vehicle franchises in 15 states and it conducts online sales through AutoNation.com and individual dealer websites. It sells 35 new brands of new vehicles. AutoNation acquires local retail brands and transitions them to the AutoNation name. In addition to auto sales AutoNation provides maintenance and repair services sells auto parts and finances and insures vehicles which together account for the majority of profits.

Auvil Fruit Company's products are "auvilly" tasty. The company grows apples in the US's cool misty Northwest whose climate would do Johnny Appleseed proud. Auvil markets its crops under the brand names Elite Gee Whiz and Topaz. Granny Smith Fuji Gala and Pink Lady apples are grown on one of three Auvil ranches (some 1350 acres) and sold at grocery stores throughout the US and Canada. Auvil also sells Rainier and Bing cherries. Its retail food customers include Raley's and Stop & Shop. The company was founded in 1928 by Grady Auvil who introduced the Granny Smith apple to state of Washington.

Rather than fly commercial Avantair offers a little privacy. The company sells fractional ownership interests in piloted aircraft coupled with fleet maintenance. Pricier than commercial flights but cheaper than owning a jet a fractional interest allows travelers to schedule their own flights generally from smaller airports. Ownership can be purchased in increments beginning with a 1/16th share equating to 50 hours of flight time a year. Avantair also sells charter flight-cards for 15 or 25 hours and an Axis Club membership for a three-year term. Its fleet includes 55 aircraft which operate on the East and West coasts. Service extends across the US as well as Canada Mexico and the Bahamas and Caribbean.

Avaya Holdings Corp. is the holding company that owns enterprise communications equipment and services provider Avaya Inc.. Spun off from Lucent Technologies in 2000 Avaya was a publicly traded company until 2007 when it was taken private by Silver Lake Partners and TPG Capital for more than $8 billion. After four years of unprofitable private ownership its investors are looking for an exit and Avaya Holdings Corp. was created to make a second bid for listing on a US stock exchange filing for an initial public offering in 2011. The IPO is on hold however and Avaya has been expanding its business and product line through acquisitions.

AVEO Pharmaceuticals' models don't pout strut or even turn heads — unless you're a cancer drug researcher. Operating as AVEO Oncology the biotech firm develops cancer models to uncover how genes mutate into tumors and how tumors progress through additional mutations. AVEO then builds genetic profiles of such tumors and applies them to antibody (protein) drug candidates in preclinical and clinical development to help predict actual human responses. In addition to its own pipeline of potential drugs AVEO has partnered with other pharmaceutical developers to apply its Human Response Platform to their drug candidates.

Aviv REIT sees a healthy future in health care-related real estate. The self-administered real estate investment trust (REIT) invests in and owns nursing homes that provide post-acute (short-term stays) and long-term assisted living care. Its portfolio includes more than 250 properties in some 30 states. (Texas is home to about 60 facilities and California about 35.) Aviv REIT doesn't run the facilities — it leases them to more than 35 local regional and national operators including Daybreak Venture Saber Healthcare and Sun Healthcare. Aviv REIT is trying its hand at the IPO market again. It first filed an IPO back in 2008 but withdrew it a year later. The company then filed a second IPO in December 2012.

AXSUN Technologies takes the ax to bulky optoelectronic subsystems. Its Axsun Packaging Platform is a suite of components and manufacturing techniques that reduce the size of photonic assemblies used in optical networking systems. The platform combines specialized lenses microelectromechanical system devices and other components into packages much smaller than the usual printed circuit boards; these units can be tailored for many combinations of active and passive optical chips. The company was founded in 1999 by optical industry veterans. In early 2009 Volcano Corp. acquired AXSUN for $21.5 million in cash.

For applications in which plain silicon would get the ax AXT offers fancier fare. AXT makes semiconductor substrates from compounds such as gallium arsenide (GaAs) and indium phosphide (InP) and from single elements such as germanium. Manufacturers use AXT's substrates to make high-performance semiconductors for products — including fiber-optic devices satellite solar cells and wireless handsets — for which standard silicon microchips are not adequate. Most of its customers — and its employees — are in China. International customers include Soitec of France and IQE Group of the UK.

C. R. Bard has been in the medical device business for more than a century — it introduced the Foley urological catheter (still one of its top sellers) in 1934. Its products fall into four general therapeutic categories: vascular oncology urology and surgical specialties. Among other things the company makes stents catheters and guidewires used in angioplasties and other vascular procedures; catheters for delivering chemotherapy treatments; and urology catheters and products used to treat urinary incontinence. Its line of specialty surgical tools made by subsidiary Davol includes devices used in laparoscopic and orthopedic procedures and for hernia repair.

Although Shakespeare might appreciate the curriculum Bard College is not named for the Bard of Avon but for founder John Bard. The institution of higher learning is an independent nonsectarian residential coeducational four-year college of the liberal arts and sciences. Bard's total enrollment of 1900 includes some 600 graduate students. First-year students are required to take a three-week Workshop in Language and Thinking that emphasizes the connection between expression and thought. Students must also complete a year-long senior project that is reviewed by faculty members.

Barnes & Noble does business by the book and the NOOK. As one of the largest bookstore chains in the US it operates some 630 Barnes & Noble superstores in all 50 states and Washington DC. Stores range in size from 3000 sq. ft. to 60000 sq. ft. and stock between 19000 and 143000 book titles. It also sells books and other media online. The company's digital subsidiary NOOK Media develops supports and creates digital content and products for the digital reading and digital education markets. The struggling company has been restructuring for several years having spun off its education division among other initiatives; in 2018 Barnes & Noble announced a strategic review that could result in the sale of the company.

Barbecue made this Dave famous. Famous Dave's of America operates and franchises about 185 barbecue restaurants in some 35 states primarily Minnesota Illinois California and Wisconsin. The eateries serve St. Louis-style ribs Georgia chopped pork and Texas brisket. Most of the restaurants are designed to resemble 1930s-era roadhouse shacks complete with antique items and Americana touches. Other units try to recreate the feeling of a hunting lodge or a Chicago-style blues club featuring live music. The company also distributes barbecue sauce seasonings and prepared meats through grocery stores and other retail outlets. Famous Dave's owns and operates about 50 of its restaurants and franchises the rest.

Beth Israel Lahey Health (formerly Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center or BIDMC) is a Boston-based health system with 13 hospitals across Massachusetts. Its flagship location is the hospital for Major League Baseball's Red Sox but it's perhaps best known for being a teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School. The facility has about 675 beds and provides general medical and surgical care as well as outpatient services at its facilities. The health system traces its roots to Deaconess Hospital founded in 1896 and Beth Israel Hospital established in 1916. In 2019 BIDMC merged with Lahey Health to create a stronger rival to Massachusetts' largest system Partners HealthCare.

Why call it Big Y? Big Y Foods began as a 900-sq.-ft. grocery at a Y intersection in Chicopee Massachusetts. It now operates some 60 supermarkets throughout Massachusetts and Connecticut. Most of its stores are Big Y World Class Markets offering specialty areas such as bakeries and floral shops as well as banking. The rest consist of Big Y Supermarkets and a single gourmet food and liquor store called Table & Vine in Springfield Massachusetts. Some Big Y stores provide child care dry cleaning photo processing and even propane sales and their delis and food courts offer to-go foods. Big Y is owned and run by the D'Amour family and is one of New England's largest independent supermarket chains.

Beef and ice cream is an unbeatable combination for this restaurant company. Formerly The Steak n Shake Company Biglari Holdings is a multi-concept dining operator with two chains operating under the names Steak n Shake and Western Sizzlin. Its flagship concept encompasses about 680 company-owned and franchised family dining spots in more than 25 states mostly in the Midwest and Southeast. The diners open 24-hours a day are popular for their Steakburger sandwiches and milkshakes as well as breakfast items and other dishes. About 415 of the units are company-owned while the rest are franchised. Western Sizzlin meanwhile oversees about 60 franchised steak buffet restaurants in about 15 states. The company also has operations in insurance and media.

You don't have to be one of the world's richest men or know one to make a difference with your charitable gifts — but it helps. Established by the chairman of Microsoft Corporation and his wife the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation works in developing countries to improve health and reduce poverty and in the US to support education and libraries nationwide and children and families in the Pacific Northwest. With an endowment of about $33.5 billion the foundation is the largest in the US distributing more than $26 billion in total grants since 1994. Investor Warren Buffett plans to give the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation about $30 billion worth of Berkshire Hathaway stock in installments.

The idea behind Billing Services Group (doing business as BSG Clearing Solutions) is simple: Leave the bills to someone else. The company provides outsourced bill processing and settlement to telecommunications companies around the world. Its technology platform tracks direct long-distance calls as well as operator-assisted and calling-card calls and enables authentication invoicing collection and settlement. Originally a subsidiary of U.S. Long Distance the company (then Billing Concepts) was spun off as a public company in 1996. ABRY Partners took the company private in 2003 and merged it with ACI Billing Services the next year to form parent Billing Services Group which is domiciled in Bermuda.

BIND Therapeutics believes it's bound on a path and to products that will lead to a breakthrough in the treatment of certain cancers. The company designs nanoparticles with a prolonged circulation in the bloodstream called Accurins that target tumors at the tissue cellular and molecular levels. Its lead candidate BIND-1014 which seeks out prostate tumors and lung cancers is in Phase 2 clinical trials. The company also aims to produce Accurins to treat non-oncological ailments such as cardiovascular disease and autoimmune disorders and is collaborating with Amgen AstraZeneca and Pfizer to develop such products. BIND founded in 2006 went public in September 2013 raising more than $70 million.

Clogged drains? Nothing at all! Backed up pipes? Pshaw! Diesel tank empty? No problem for the guys at Bio-Solutions Manufacturing (BSM). The company has two divisions: a Cleaning Division and a Bio Diesel Division. The Cleaning Division's products make use of microbes and enzymes that can be used to treat sites contaminated by such pollutants as hydrocarbons grease hydrogen sulfide and ammonia. In addition Bio-Solutions' micro-organisms can clean up oil spills and contaminated groundwater by literally eating the contaminants. The Bio Diesel Division turns many of the waste products the company collects into biodiesel fuel. BSM distributes its products through subsidiary Bio-Solutions Franchise.

A healthy ticker really makes BioCardia (formerly Tiger X Medical) tick. The biopharma and diagnostics firm is exploring a stem cell therapy system to treat heart failure. Its CardiAMP therapy derived from a patients' bone marrow is in phase III clinical trials for the treatment of those who have already had a heart attack. The therapy is enabled by BioCardia's Helix delivery system through which treatments are injected into the walls of the heart. The firm has other regenerative biologic therapies under development for cardiovascular disease. The biotech was established in October 2016 after private company BioCardia conducted a reverse merger with publicly traded medical device shell company Tiger X Medical.

The concept at Biocept is to make cancer tumor identification quicker and more accurate. The company's products detect circulating tumor cells (CTCs) in a standard blood sample. Only one test is in production OncoCEE-BR for breast cancer. Its pipeline contains tests for lung gastric colorectal prostate and skin cancers; it plans to launch five new tests by 2017. Biocept collaborates with doctors and researchers at The University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center and the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. The company was formed in 1997 and went public in 2014. It raised $18.8 million that it plans to use for sales and marketing R&D and development of tests and scaling up its production capabilities.

BioDelivery Sciences International (BDSI) isn't inventing new drugs but it is looking for better ways to administer them. The development-stage firm takes already approved drugs that are normally delivered intravenously and reformulates them into buccal (absorbed by the inner cheek) and oral treatments. Drugs delivered via its BEMA (BioErodible MucoAdhesive) and Bioral systems focus on the areas of pain management and addiction management. Its BEMA fentanyl product ONSO-LIS is a buccally delivered polymer film used for the treatment of cancer pain. Recent FDA-approved candidates include BUNAVAIL for the treatment of opioid dependence (2014) and BELBUCA for chronic severe pain management (2015).

Bioject Medical Technologies wants to give the medical community a shot in the arm. Its Biojector 2000 jet injection system delivers injectable medication without a needle (and thus without needle-associated risks) by using a fine high-pressure stream that goes through the skin; the injector is powered by CO2 disposable cartridges or tanks. The accompanying vial adapter device allows the Biojector system to be filled without a needle. The company also markets Vitajet a spring-powered needle-free self-injection device that has been cleared for administering injections of insulin and Merck Serono's human growth hormones. Investment firm Signet Healthcare Partners and affiliates own one-third of Bioject.

BioLase is causing dentists to drop the knife and pick up the laser. The company develops manufactures and sells laser-based systems for use primarily in dental applications. BioLase's surgical cutting system Waterlase uses laser pulses to turn water droplets into high-speed particles that can cut both hard and soft tissues and bones in the mouth. Waterlase is used in procedures traditionally performed with dental drills and scalpels. The company's Diode laser systems are used to perform soft tissue and cosmetic dental procedures as well as non-dental procedures. BioLase markets its products in more than 60 countries.

Wanted: business opportunity for former investment firm. Contact BKF Capital Group. BKF is evaluating strategic alternatives including a possible merger acquisition or other business combination. The company has no operations and only a small revenue stream (more like a trickle) from its days as an asset manager and broker dealer; it is no longer a registered investment advisor and has also surrendered its broker license. Its primary subsidiary is BKF Asset Management but as the company itself points out it has no operations either. BKF Capital's search for a new raison d'être was put on hold when it was named in a class action shareholder lawsuit but the suit was dropped in 2007 and the search resumed.

Chalk up Blackboard's success to the Internet. Blackboard develops software that lets schools create Internet-based learning programs and communities. Its applications connect teachers students parents and administrators via the Web enabling Internet-based assignments class websites and online collaboration with classmates. The software also includes a content management system for creating and managing digital course content. Other modules include transaction community and payment management tools that enable students to use their college IDs for meal plans events and tuition payments. In 2011 Blackboard was acquired by Providence Equity for about $1.64 billion.

With video stores going the way of the dinosaurs (and record stores) movie rental chain Blockbuster has seen its business take a Hollywood-sized hit. With a library of more than 125000 movie and video game titles Blockbuster has struggled to transform its store-based distribution system to a multi-channel content delivery model. The company's customers can either download movies to their home or mobile devices order them by mail or visit one of a dwindling number of Blockbuster stores. Amid rapid technological change and competition from Netflix and Redbox Blockbuster filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in 2010 and was sold to satellite TV service provider DISH Network.

Blue Buffalo Pet Products is converting pet parents into what it refers to as "True Blue Believers" with its wholesome pet food offerings. The company makes natural dog and cat food using whole meats fruits and vegetables with no by-products or artificial ingredients; some products are also grain-free. By riding the wave of people forking over big bucks for natural and wholesome food for themselves and their families Blue Buffalo has positioned dogs and cats as members of the family and has risen to be the #1 brand in the Wholesome Natural pet food market segment. The company sells its products internationally but the majority of net sales remains in the US. Bill Bishop started the company when his dog Blue developed cancer but recovered after eating food he formulated. Cereal giant General Mills bought Blue Buffalo in 2018.

Blue insurers prefer to sing a happy healthy tune. Health plan providers affiliated with the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association (BCBSA) — known as "the Blues" — serve some 106 million members nationwide. The association is a federation of about 40 independent health insurance companies who license the Blue Cross and Blue Shield brand names. Member companies own the rights to sell Blue-branded health plans within defined regions. BCBSA coordinates some national programs such as BlueCard which allows members of one franchisee to have coverage in other service areas and the Federal Employee Program (FEP) which covers more than half of federal government employees retirees and their families. The company traces its roots back to 1929.

Bluebonnet Electric Cooperative's mission has echoes of the late Lady Bird Johnson's quest to spread bluebonnets and other wildflower seeds along Texas' highways. In this case the cooperative spreads power to homes and businesses in rural central and southeast Texas. One of the largest power distribution cooperatives in the state Bluebonnet Electric serves more than 81000 customers in 14 counties (a service area of more than 3800 square miles). The member-owned company which was formed in 1939 operates approximately 11000 miles of transmission and distribution lines and 19 substations. It purchases its wholesale power supply at 21 Lower Colorado River Authority-owned substations.

After trying out a variety of businesses and settling on one that serves the energy market BNS is shutting down. The company is selling North Dakota Sun Well Services a work-over rig service for oil and gas exploration companies to Steel Excel for about $85 million. BNS had acquired Sun Well Services for some $51 million in 2011 after selling its 80% stake in bus maker Collins Industries (purchased in 2006). Once BNS sells Sun Well Services its operating subsidiary it will liquidate and distribute its assets pro rata to its stockholders. Affiliates of private equity firm Steel Partners own about 85% of BNS and 40% of Steel Excel.

Bolt Technology's action is technology the kind used to map out oil and gas discoveries. Its product suite consists of the key components needed by seismic exploration vessels to acquire seismic data: an energy source (air guns); synchronization (controllers); and communication (cables) linking the guns and the controllers. Its marine air guns help produce 3-D seismic maps for oil and gas exploration by firing high-pressure air into the water producing elastic waves that penetrate deep into the earth. These waves create a "map" of the subsurface geography. The company also operates a fleet of remotely operated vehicles (ROVs). Bolt Technology's major customers include CCG-Veritas and Schlumberger.

Age wasn't enough to protect Bon-Ton Stores from major shifts in the department store industry. Founded in 1898 by the Grumbacher family the company filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in early 2018 and later that year sold its inventory and assets to liquidators. All of its stores will close. Amid a decline in mall traffic and overall harsh retail environment Bon-Ton struggled with falling revenue and debt which limited its ability to invest in all-important e-commerce operations.

Bonanza Creek Energy searches for a treasure of black gold. The independent oil and natural gas company has exploration and production assets in Arkansas California Colorado and Texas. Unlike many in the industry it operates nearly all of its projects and has an 89% working interest in its holdings. The company reported a 32% increase in proved reserves in 2013 to 69.8 million barrels of oil equivalent resulting primarily from the development of the Wattenberg Field in Colorado. Most of the company's proved reserves are in its Rocky Mountains (Niobara oil shale) and Arkansas (Cotton Valley sands) holdings. Bonanza Creek Energy filed for and emerged from Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in 2017.

Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) keeps the lights on in the Pacific Northwest. The US Department of Energy power marketing agency operates a transmission grid (with more than 15200 miles of high-voltage lines) that delivers about 30% of the electrical power consumed in the region. The electricity that BPA wholesales is generated primarily by 31 federal hydroelectric plants (operated by the US Army Corp of Engineers) and one private nuclear facility. BPA also purchases power from other hydroelectric gas-fired and wind and solar generation facilities in North America. Founded in 1937 BPA sells power to more than 140 primary customers mainly public and investor-owned utilities in the Pacific Northwest.

You might say this team is now a curse on the other clubs in Major League Baseball. Boston Red Sox Baseball Club operates one of the oldest and most storied sports franchises. Founded as a charter member of the American League in 1901 the team owns seven World Series titles but at one time suffered through an 86-year championship drought popularly attributed to "The Curse of the Bambino." Boston broke The Curse in 2004 and then won its seventh championship three years later. Red Sox fans root for their home team at venerable Fenway Park the oldest pro baseball stadium in the country. Businessman John Henry leads a group that has owned the Red Sox franchise since 2002.

If you want to venture out for some live music but are not in the mood for rock or pop then a performance by The Boston Symphony Orchestra (BSO) might strike the right chord with you. Featuring compositions by composers like Beethoven Mozart and Stravinsky the BSO performs more than 100 concerts during the regular season at Symphony Hall. The BSO also performs during the summer at the Tanglewood music center; other BSO-related performances are given by the smaller and lighter Boston Pops orchestra. One of the more prominent orchestras in the US the BSO was founded in 1881 by businessman Henry Lee Higginson. Current music director James Levine is the BSO's first America-born conductor.

Vical counts DNA as its main ally in tackling disease. The biopharmaceutical firm researches and develops vaccines based on its DNA delivery technology which uses portions of the genetic code of a pathogen to induce an immune response. Faced with a number of failed trials Vical announced cut around half of its workforce in early 2018. Later that year it abandoned its lead program a vaccine candidate for HSV-2. It then announced plans to focus on the development of antifungal candidate VL-2397 but put those plans on hold when it had problems finding trial participants. The company is now exploring its options including possibly selling itself or its assets.

After the federal government closed the military facilities at Brooklyn Navy Yard in 1966 the property on the East River was taken over and converted into commercial real estate by The City of New York. Brooklyn Navy Yard Development Corporation is in charge of the management and development of the old Navy Yard which contains about 4 million sq. ft. of leasable office and industrial space. Located near the Brooklyn Bridge the Navy Yard is home to about 250 tenants including small businesses, high-tech startups and film and television studios. Since 2006 the company has been managing a Mayor Bloomberg-sanctioned expansion of the yard including some 1.7 million sq. ft. of new industrial space.

Bruce Foods was Cajun long before Cajun was well hot. The company's Original Louisiana Hot Sauce is a top-selling hot sauce nationwide (alongside rival McIlhenny's Tabasco brand hot-pepper sauce). Louisiana-brand hot peppers — for brave souls — are available too. The company makes and markets less incendiary offerings including Tex-Mex products and traditional Southern favorites — canned yams and sweet potato pancake muffin bread-pudding and biscuit mixes. Cajun King seasonings Casa Fiesta Mexican foods Cajun Injector marinades and Mexene chili seasonings round out the company's portfolio of products. Bruce Foods was founded in 1928; the Bruce family still owns and manages the company.
