INTRODUCTION

Within the UN system, UN Women is mandated to lead, promote and coordinate efforts to advance the full realization of women's rights and opportunities. The UN General Assembly has called on all parts of the UN system to promote gender equality and the empowerment of women within their mandates, and to ensure that commitments on paper lead to progress on the ground.

In 2012, the United Nations agreed on the landmark UN System-wide Action Plan on Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women, or UN-SWAP, to implement the gender equality policy of its highest executive body, the UN Chief Executives Board, chaired by the Secretary-General. Spearheaded by UN Women, the UN-SWAP for the first time assigns common performance standards for the gender-related work of all UN entities, ensuring greater coherence and accountability.

One of the UN-SWAP indicators within capacity development is the implementation of capacity assessment. In line with UN Women's mandate to coordinate and support the UN System in achieving gender equality, the UN Women Training Centre has developed this easy to use tool for all agencies in carrying out gender equality capacity assessments.

What is gender equality capacity assessment?

Gender equality capacity assessment is a means of assessing the understanding, knowledge and skills that a given organization and individuals have on gender equality and the empowerment of women, and on the organization's gender architecture and gender policy. Capacity assessment refers to the process through which the information is gathered and analyzed and also to the results of this analysis. These results are conveyed in a report that outlines the ways forward for a training or capacity development strategy or action plan.

When assessing the capacity of individuals, attention is paid to the knowledge, skills and attitudes that each person has regarding gender equality and the empowerment of women and the integration of these to their daily work. The information that will be gathered entails how much they know and understand about particular concepts (for example, gender equality, women's empowerment, etc.), policies (such as organizational gender strategy, gender mainstreaming strategy) and procedures (how gender equality should be reflected in procurement or recruitment processes, among others), as well as how capable they are of implementing all these and other processes.

To assess the capacity of individuals some commonly used tools are questionnaires and surveys, individual tests, focus groups, and interviews.

Capacity assessment at an organizational level evaluates what policies, strategies and procedures are in place to ensure that gender equality and the empowerment of women can adequately be included in the agency's mandate. The Participatory Gender Audit, a methodology developed by the ILO, is a systematic, participatory and gender-sensitive methodology for analyzing how gender is mainstreamed within an organization or a part of it.

CAPACITY is the “ability of people, organizations and society as a whole to manage their affairs successfully”.

CAPACITY DEVELOPMENT is commonly used to refer to “the process whereby people, organizations and society as a whole unleash, strengthen, create, adapt and maintain capacity over time.”

TRAINING FOR GENDER EQUALITY According to the UN Women Training Centre “it is a transformative process that aims to provide knowledge, techniques and tools to develop skills and changes in attitudes and behaviours. It is a continuous, long-term process that requires political will and commitment of all parties (decision makers and participants) in order to create an inclusive, aware and competent society to promote gender equality.”

What is the UN Women Training Centre Gender Equality Capacity Assessment Tool? Who is this tool for?

The UN Women Training Centre has developed and is making available to all agencies a simple and easy to use questionnaire to assess the capacity of individuals i.e., staff. To make it easier to implement within large organizations, the questionnaire is general. However, it can and should be adapted according to the context and mandate of each agency.

The Capacity Assessment Tool is meant to support Gender and Human Resources specialists in each organization and contains guidelines for implementation, gathering of information, consolidation and analysis of data, development of reports and follow up.

As previously mentioned, this questionnaire is only one tool or means of taking stock of individual staff capacity. The information gathered with this tool can be complemented with more qualitative methods such as interviews, focus groups, and systematic observation.

WHY DO A GENDER EQUALITY CAPACITY ASSESSMENT?

- It provides information on the capacity that an organization or its staff has to include gender equality in its programmes and operations. It is the first step and provides key information for planning a larger capacity development strategy that features training for gender equality as one of its components.
- It will result in a baseline against which future capacity development efforts, including training for gender equality, can be measured.
- All UN System staff and agencies are mandated to enhance their capacity to advance gender equality and the empowerment of women. Knowing where the strengths, weaknesses and needs lie is the first step towards improving the overall UN System capacity to advance gender equality and the empowerment of women.

GENDER EQUALITY CAPACITY ASSESSMENT QUESTIONNAIRE

Dear colleague/staff,

Thanks so much for taking the time to complete the Gender Equality Capacity Assessment Survey. Questionnaire responses are anonymous and confidential and will gather important information to take stock of individual capacity related to gender equality and the empowerment of women within the agency. Your responses will provide very useful information which will be used to determine future training activities. The information gathered through this survey will only be used for this purpose. We thank you for responding honestly and in the most complete way possible.

You will have an opportunity to include your comments and suggestions at the end of the questionnaire but you can also send comments to “xyz.”

Guidelines and useful tips for implementation

In this section you will find some tips to bear in mind when preparing and sending out the questionnaire, analyzing the information gathered and preparing the report.

Make sure everybody knows about the capacity assessment

Before sending the questionnaire, it is important to send a general e-mail to all staff informing that a capacity assessment will be undertaken and explaining its objectives, the methodology and how the results will be used. Be clear in communicating that the information gathered will not have any impacts on staff assessment and that they will be used solely to guide training and capacity assessment. This will help in improving the quality of responses as well as the response rate.

Ensure institutional endorsement

Ensure that the capacity assessment is seen as part of the organizational policy rather than the initiative of a unit or group of individuals.

Gender equality policies, as other policies, need to be seen as part of the organizational policies oriented towards becoming more successful. In the case of a capacity assessment, this could mean a higher response rate to the questionnaire and better quality responses. You can achieve this by asking the corresponding senior manager to send the initial explanatory email and the email with the tool, as well as a friendly reminder, if needed.

Adapt and prepare the questionnaire to be completed

This is a general questionnaire that can be adapted to the particular needs of each agency. Please make reference to specific mandates, names of policies, strategies, units and web portals and intranet if necessary. Start the questionnaire with an introduction which explains the objectives of the capacity assessment and how the information will be used. Use this opportunity to motivate staff to complete the questionnaire and thank them for their time. Don't forget to provide information on the follow up process: how the information will be consolidated and analyzed. This will promote involvement and ownership of staff.

Within this booklet you will find the questionnaire with explanations about each part. You will also find a Word Document version in Annex 1. You can use this version to adapt it to your own needs and to create an online questionnaire using systems such as Survey Monkey. These systems can help you consolidate and analyze the data. In certain cases, responding to an online questionnaire might be more difficult. In these cases you will need to send questionnaires in PDF format to be printed, completed and returned in a more traditional way. The results of these questionnaires will need to be introduced manually to your database.

Send the questionnaire to staff

Send the questionnaire to all staff and advise them on the deadlines for completion. This period should not be longer than 1.5 or 2 months. Extending this period too long could make the information less reliable.

Follow up to completion

Send periodic friendly reminders and monitor the response rate to ensure a high response rate within the allotted time. Be creative and positive in motivating staff to complete the questionnaire.

Consolidating the results

After the questionnaire has been completed, the results need to be consolidated in a database. Survey Monkey can help you analyze the results as well.

You will see that questions are numbered continually throughout all the sections of the questionnaire. This might seem odd but it makes it much easier to consolidate and analyze the information afterwards.

Analyze the results

The results of the questionnaire can be complemented by basic demographic data of the organization: number of male and female staff, age and positions held.

Prepare the report

Use the data to prepare a report. This should be short and easy to read. It should highlight strengths, achievements but also mention weaknesses. It should also outline ways forward and remedial actions that can be included in a capacity development or training strategy.

Disseminate the report

Ensure that the results of the capacity assessment are known by all respondents (this will contribute to higher response rates on future occasions) and that a follow up capacity development or training plan is drafted, discussed and implemented. This plan should include monitoring and evaluation. The capacity assessment presents a baseline for measuring progress.
