How to Complete Guide

It is important that you read the Glastir Woodland Creation (GWC) 2020 Version 9 booklet to understand the changes that have been introduced to the GWC application process.

These instructions will give you step-by-step guidance on how to complete your Glastir Woodland Creation Plan.

The Welsh Government produces this Guide in Welsh and English as required under the Welsh Government Welsh Language Scheme. Should you require a copy of this guide in Welsh, you can access it from gov.wales/glastir by selecting the language switcher at the top of the page and re-opening the document.

If you are encountering problems or are unable to access our website, please contact the RPW Online Helpdesk on 0300 062 5004.

Introduction - Getting Started

Once the Expression of Interest (EOI) has been processed and selected, a letter confirming selection and contract offer will be sent to the customer along with an Annex to accept or decline the contract offer. These documents will be sent online via the customer's RPW Online account, which will be accessible by the customer or their agent.

If the offer of contract is accepted and the required Annex is signed and returned to the Welsh Government within 14 days, the customer will engage a registered woodland planner to complete their Woodland Creation Plan.

Using information contained within the GeoPDF map, the scheme rules and following a site survey, the planner will need to annotate the GeoPDF and complete the Glastir Woodland Creation plan, using the following guidance.

All sections must be completed to support the capital works that are in the Woodland Creation Plan and to demonstrate their eligibility for inclusion in a Glastir Contract.

6. Consultation and Public Participation

Consultation

Organisation	Date contacted	Date of Feedback	Their Response	How does the consultation response impact on the GWC plan?	Your Action

In line with Glastir Scheme rules, and UKFS Forest & People Good Forest Practice 7, this section must include a short report about the public consultation that has been carried out as part of the woodland creation plan. This will include neighbours, the local community or parish council and other interested parties. The type of local stakeholder response should be proportionate to the case. For larger schemes, a greater degree of consultation will be necessary. As part of any public or neighbourhood consultation, the planner needs to say when the applicant consulted the public and stakeholders, how they were consulted (i.e. public event, flyers, door to door), how long the consultation ran and who responded.

Taking a proactive approach to engagement can promote understanding of the vision for a new woodland. This can lead to higher levels of interest and active support within woodlands when opportunities arise, e.g. volunteering or open days. Early engagement with a community can also help reduce the likelihood of negative reactions to your plans and activities within the local community due to a lack of communication or poor understanding of woodland creation.

Natural Resources Wales might request further information during the verification process, so it is important that you keep a record of any discussions you have with stakeholders, details of notifications you provide and responses you receive.
