Blind Test Study – 93% Positive

15 people compared Guy Dance Water to untreated Reverse Osmosis water during July – October 2007 with no knowledge of which sample was energized (blind test). Fourteen out of fifteen test subjects identified the Guy Dance Water as having better energy. The remaining test subject explained she was not sensitive to energy, and said the taste of the water was the same.

Instructions – How to Connect up

Use with any under sink water filter, such as a reverse osmosis filter. These filters have a standard ¼ inch plastic pipe from the output of the filter to the tap. Simply cut this ¼ inch pipe and insert the Guy Dance Water processor in the ¼ inch tube from the output of the filter.

1 Reverse Osmosis Filter before adding Guy Dance Processor

2 Cut the water out tube to the tap

3 Insert the Processor into the cut tube

Inline Valve (on)

Fitting - push tube in to connect

Gently pull to test connection

Push ring in, and pull to disconnect

How it works

The Guy Dance Water Structure Energizer evolved from my search for the highest quality drinking water over the last decade. Experimenting with making and drinking colloidal silver, alkaline water, distilled water, ormus / orme / monatomic elements (www.halexandria.org/dward471.htm), I wanted to have water which would support and enhance my state of health. I also read about the research on emotions and frozen water patterns by Masaru Emoto (www.life-enthusiast.com/twilight/research_emoto.htm).

I have been a vegan since 1985, practiced yoga since 1979, and chi gong since 1996, and regularly fast; I knew that water having the best energetic quality was vital to support this lifestyle.

The Guy Dance Water processor takes water through a two foot long $\frac{1}{4}$ inch food grade tube, which has been twisted into a spiral, between a total of ten rare earth magnets. The spiral twist in the tube causes the water to vortex, as its surface tension causes the water to follow the twist in the tube.

By placing the magnets in a symmetrical pattern right outside the tube, the greatest magnetic flux density (field strength) is felt by the water as it vortexes down the tube. The key to the clearing of the original homeopathic memory of the water, as well as the structuring of the water, is the placement of the magnets right next to the flow of the water.

This photo shows that the magnets in the processor are strong enough to hold up a pair of scissors. The ¼ inch tubing is small enough to focus a very strong magnetic field from the ten rare earth magnets on the water flowing through the tube.

The Guy Dance Water processor can have water flowing through it in either direction, as the magnets are placed symmetrically.

One simple way to check for water structure is to see how long it takes for a glass of water to be absorbed in your stomach. If the water is hexagonally structured, it does not sit in your stomach, so you can immediately exercise after drinking it. Unstructured water, from a filter or bottled water, sits in your stomach for 20 minutes or longer; it is thought this is because the body must convert it before being able to use it. I find that Guy Dance Water is absorbed very quickly after I drink it.

The ormus or orme (room temperature superconducting monatomic elements such as rhodium) is concentrated in the Guy Dance Water processor by vortexing between magnets. The orme is responsible for the flow of chi through the water. Reverse osmosis water is referred to as being “dead”. After passing through the Guy Dance Water processor, it feels smooth and energized. The chi flowing in the treated water is stronger, and helps the body heal itself.

Water is the most necessary substance for maintaining life after breathing, and we slowly dehydrate as we age. Babies are 90% water, and we are around 60% water when we die; the average adult is around 70% to 75%. Because fat cells do not hold much water, obese people can be as little as 40% hydrated. Water must be able to enter our cells, and clear out metabolic waste products through the kidneys. Otherwise, even if we drink a lot of water, it is quickly removed from the blood by the kidneys as clear urine, without entering and hydrating our cells.

Recent work about structured water (www.upliftingpress.com) hypothesizes that water molecules aggregate in one of two forms, either in a pentagonal (5 sided) or hexagonal (6 sided) arrangement. It is said that only hexagonally structured water can easily cross the cell membrane. More recent research has discovered that water molecule pass through small tubes of molecular size which cross the cell wall. This also requires correctly structured water.

However, the water we usually drink from bottles, filters, springs, as well as the tap, is pentagonal. It is further suggested that pentagonal water sits in the stomach until it is converted to the hexagonal form.

Design History

In the summer of 2006, I bought a miracle water processor, as I was able to clearly tell the energy difference between miracle water and other water I had made over the years. The energetic quality was clear. Including spare filters, I paid about $3500 for it, but I wanted to try this water for myself and my friends. In summer of 2007, Ron Talmage, the inventor of the Miracle water processor died, and his company ceased operating. I use his processor for comparison as I found it was the water with the best energy available when I bought it.

I had a lot of trouble with the filters in the processor – the 1 micron prefilters only lasted a week or two. I replaced the water pipe from the road to my house without improving the water coming to the processor. I was also concerned with the increased water usage, because the processor used 80 gallons of water to produce one gallon of reverse osmosis water, wasting 79 gallons.

I researched the miracle processor, and found that it was based on a $249 puregen reverse osmosis processor (www.puregen.com), with two additional stages. These additional units cleared the homeopathic memory of the water, and then (using the “infinity synthesizer”) added intention to the water, using words like “gratitude”, which Masaru Emoto had shown in his book Message From Water to give beautiful microscopic patterns when frozen.

My next step was to isolate the last two stages, and buy good quality reverse osmosis water from my local water store, and pass that water through the energizing final two stages of the miracle processor.

I wanted to build a similar system for my house in Thailand, which has a well, and a three stage filter for drinking water. I used the Miracle Water infinity synthesizer after this filter, but the energetic quality was the same as without the infinity synthesizer.

I like to use my daily chi gong practice to meditate and receive guidance, as well as to clear my energy and set my intentions for the day. Based on my internet research, I was guided to see a way to perform homeopathic memory clearing of water using powerful magnets. I made the prototype processor on my trip to Thailand in spring of 2007. Both I and my Thai girlfriend, Muay, were clearly able to feel the energetic quality improvement when I added the magnetic processor to the filter.

Returning to California in May 2007, I meditated further on how to build a simple and cost effective water energizer.

The solution I came up was to combine the homeopathic memory eraser and water structurer with a method for setting intention. The first water I made, passing the same reverse osmosis water from the store through the Guy Dance Water Structure Energizer, had a wonderful energetic quality.

The name "Guy Dance Water" is to thank and acknowledge the guidance I received in bringing this water energizer into being. It took a year to come in the right form, and I am grateful to my friends and my reiki group for supporting me and encouraging me. My intention is that by making the Guy Dance Water postprocessor simple and inexpensive, more people will have the energetic quality of water our bodies deserve and cherish.

Rather than couple the Guy Dance Water postprocessor to a particular water filter, users are free to pass any type of water through it. Some may chose to post-process an in-home filter system. Others may prefer to use distilled water. I have a $100 distiller (www.wholesalewaterdistillers.com) which I used for a year, and was very effective. One of my clients is using the Guy Dance Water postprocessor inline with a Japanese alkali water generator. I could feel the energy from the alkali water after it had been through the Guy Dance postprocessor, but not from the original alkali water. Another option is to buy reverse osmosis water from a water store.

Testimonials

Joie Dawson, of the San Francisco East Bay Area, who has been drinking and selling miracle water since 2005, tested the Guy Dance Water on July 21, 2007. Her comments were:

“The Guy Dance Water is like velvet. There is no comparison with miracle water. The water is smooth like silk, it has a gentle energy. My tongue feels like it is absorbing the water directly.”

Dawn Mazur has been involved in many forms of energy work since the 1980s. She is a highly sensitive lightworker. She tested the Guy Dance Water on July 27, 2007. She later checked the water in her QXCI biofeedback tester. The QXCI machine showed that Miracle water was only 15% beneficial to her cells. The Guy Dance water tested as 100% beneficial, and she has repeated this finding with some of her clients, using alkali water as well as Miracle water. She commented:

“The difference between the water is fantastic! The Guy Dance water makes me salivate when I drink it – I have never had this before, It must have orme in it as I can feel the energy coming up through the roof of my mouth. The energy light channels to my ears are opening up and buzzing because of the water – it is similar to high Sierra’s mountain water. It is also affecting my lymph glands; they are starting to pulse and flow.”

Comparison Summary Chart

Guy Dance Water Postprocessor	Miracule water processor
Low cost - $250 with free shipping	High cost – over $3000
No replacement parts	Expensive filters, up to $500 p.a.
10 rare earth magnets	No magnetic field detectable
Processes any water	Only cheap reverse osmosis
Simple to set up	Requires plumbing and drain
Zero wasted water	Wastes 80 gallons to make 1 gallon
Total Dissolved Solids Test = 0ppm	Total Dissolved Solids Test = 20+ppm

(NOTE - Total Dissolved Solids test was performed on samples of processed water and tap water. The instrument is calibrated against parts per million of dissolved NaCl [salt]. A reading of 0 indicates there are no remaining impurities in the reverse osmosis water. My tap water measured in the same range as the miracule water, from 15ppm to 25ppm).
