Cycles

REVISION NOTES

A. Life Cycles of Animals

1. What is a cycle?

A cycle is a pattern of change that repeats itself. An example is the cycle of day and night.

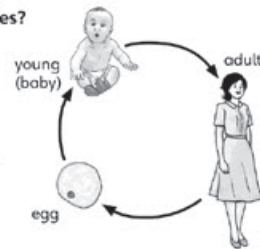

2. What is a life cycle?

All the stages of an animal's life make up its life cycle. The life cycle ensures that its kind will always be around on Earth.

3. What are some examples of animal life cycles?

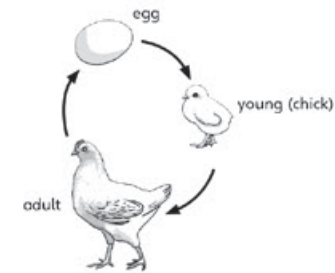

The life cycle of a human

- The life cycle of a human has three stages — egg, young (baby) and adult.
- An egg develops into a baby inside the mother's body.
- The baby is born and looks like the adult.
- The baby grows into an adult who is able to reproduce.

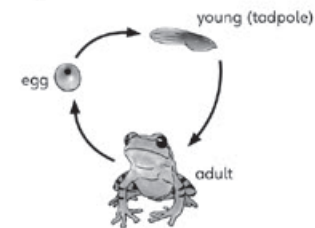

Cycles 87

The life cycle of a chicken

- The life cycle of a chicken has three stages — egg, young (chick) and adult.
- The egg is laid on land by a female chicken called a hen.
- A chicken egg has a hard covering called an eggshell which protects the young animal growing inside.
- The egg hatches into a chick, which looks like the adult.
- The chick grows into an adult which is able to reproduce.

The life cycle of a frog

- The life cycle of a frog has three stages — egg, young (tadpole) and adult.
- The female frog usually lays eggs in water. The eggs are covered in a jelly-like coating.

38 CHAPTER 1 Global Tourism

GATEWAY 2 Why has tourism become a global phenomenon?

Learning Outcomes:

- Describe the trends of both domestic tourism and international tourism.
- Describe the changing nature of global tourism.
- Explain the growth of global tourism.
- Explain why tourism is subject to fluctuations.

In what ways is tourism changing?

- Tourism has been evolving in terms of destinations as well as the nature and purpose of tourist travel.
 - Destinations: People are traveling to new destinations that were not previously accessible.
 - Nature and purpose: People are undertaking new reasons for travels, such as ecotourism and medical tourism.

Trends in the global tourism industry

- Trends in the global tourism industry is changing in terms of:
 - Destinations.
 - Country of origin.
 - Tourist dollars.
- These changing trends are evident in both international tourism and domestic tourism.

1. International tourism

- Since the 1980s, international tourism has become increasingly diverse in its origins and destinations. One major trend is that the Asia Pacific region has increased in popularity as a tourist destination.
- Fig. 2.1 shows the changing trends in international tourism.

Describe the trend of international tourism:

- Before the 1980s, most of the tourist destinations were in developed regions.
- By 2010, North and South America as well as Europe were still among the main tourist-receiving regions. These regions received 65% of all international arrivals in 2010. However, this was a decrease from 81% in 1980 and 96% in 1950.
- On the other hand, the Asia Pacific region has shown an impressive growth in tourist arrivals, from 7.3% in 1980 to 22.7% in 2010.
- Since 2003, Asia Pacific has overtaken North and South America. After Europe, it is the second most visited region.

Fig. 2.1 The changing trends in international tourism.

CHAPTER 1 Global Tourism 39

1.1 Tourist origins and destinations

- The origins and destinations of tourists are unevenly distributed throughout the world.
- Fig. 2.2 shows a flow line map which illustrates the world's major international tourist movements in 2010.

1 Introduction to Accounting

At the end of this chapter, you should be able to:

- Understand the difference between bookkeeping and accounting. (1.1)
- Understand who a steward is and explain how the stewardship role of accounting results in the creation of an accounting information system. (1.2)
- Name the stakeholders of a business. State the financial information of a business that stakeholders are interested in and the decisions they make based on this information. (1.2)
- Understand why it is important for accountants, bookkeepers and others who are preparing, communicating or using financial information to have integrity and be objective. (1.3)
- Understand trading and service businesses and their differences. (1.4)
- State the differences between a sole proprietorship and a company. Explain the advantages and disadvantages of sole proprietorships and companies. (1.4)

1.1 What is accounting?

Accounting is the process of recording, summarising, analysing, interpreting and reporting the financial information of an organisation. The financial information is important for making business decisions.

Distinguishing accounting from bookkeeping

Accounting is a language used in businesses. It is often mistaken for bookkeeping.

Bookkeeping involves only the recording of business transactions. As shown below, bookkeeping is only one part of the accounting process.

Accounting involves more than just the recording of business transactions. It also includes summarising, analysing, interpreting and reporting financial information in the form of financial reports. These reports are used to communicate to the stakeholders of a business the financial results of the business and the uses of its resources.

Students who aspire to become professional accountants can look forward to exciting possibilities in the business world.

activity

Find out the job description of an accountant, and the qualifications and qualities needed. You may search the classified pages of the newspapers or the internet, or talk to someone who is an accountant or knows what an accountant is.

look it up!

Some examples of financial information are: the amount earned from selling goods, the amount of cash the business has and the expenses paid.

connect

Refer to Section 1.2 to learn more about stakeholders. Financial reports are also known as financial statements. Two such statements are covered in Chapters 9 and 10.

Map It!

Apply It!

1. The diagram below shows an eclipse occurring. During the eclipse, a shadow forms on the earth.

- What property of light allows shadows to form?
- Does the above diagram show an eclipse of the sun or the moon? Explain.
- During the eclipse, some areas of the earth become completely dark while others are only partly dark.
 - On the diagram above, identify these areas.
 - Copy the diagram and draw lines (to represent rays of light) to show how these two areas are formed. [optional]

[analysing, predicting, elaborating]

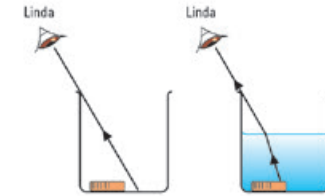

- A student stands in front of a plane mirror.
 - How does her image appear?
 - The student stands 4 m in front of a plane mirror. How far behind the mirror does her image appear to be?

(c) She notices that the image of a non-digital clock in the mirror states that it is 7 pm. What is the actual time?

[elaborating, inferring]

- Yangming's magic trick
Yangming places a coin in a cup as shown. Linda looks into the cup but is unable to see the coin. Yangming then pours some water into the cup. Now Linda can see the coin.

- What process allowed Linda to see the coin?
- Will the coin appear to be higher or lower when under water?
- << (c) What happens to the speed of light as it passes from the water to the air? >>
