- 1. "Accept what you are able to do and what you are not able to do." (p.18)
- 2. "Accept the past as past, without denying it or discarding it." (p.18)
- 3. "Learn to forgive yourself and to forgive others." (p.18)
- 4. "Don't assume that it is too late to get involved." (p.18)
- 5. Find someone to share your heart, give to your community, be at peace with yourself, try to be as human as you can be. (p. 34)
- 6. "Love always wins." (p.40)
- 7. "The culture we have does not make people feel good about themselves. And you have to be strong enough to say if the culture doesn't work, don't buy it." (p. 42)
- 8. "So many people walk around with a meaningless life. They seem half-asleep, even when they're busy doing things they think are important. This is because they're chasing the wrong things. The way you get meaning into your life is to devote yourself to loving others, devote yourself to your community around you, and devote yourself to creating something that gives you purpose and meaning." (p. 43)
- 9. "...if you really want it, then you'll make your dream happen." (p.47)
- 10. "The most important thing in life is to learn how to give out love, and to let it come in." (p. 52)
- 11. "Love is the only rational act." (p. 52)
- 12. "I don't allow myself any more self-pity than that. A little each morning, a few tears, and that's all . . . . It's horrible to watch my body slowly wilt away to nothing. But it's also wonderful because of all the time I get to say goodbye." (p. 57)
- 13. "Sometimes you can't believe what you see; you have to believe what you feel." (p. 61)
- 14. "What if today were my last day on earth?" (p. 64)
- 15. "Once you learn how to die, you learn how to live." (p. 82)
- 16. If you accept you are going to die at any time, then you might not be as ambitious as you are. (p. 83)
- 17. There is no foundation, no secure ground, upon which people may stand today if it isn't the family. (p. 91)
- 18. "Don't cling to things, because everything is impermanent." (p. 103)

Literary Terms

Alliteration: the repetition of sounds at the beginning of words. Example: More Mischief and Merriment.

Aphorism: a short statement, sometimes humorous, that attempts to state a general principal about human behavior. Example: "Three people may keep a secret if two of them are dead."—Ben Franklin

Figurative Language: words and phrases that have meanings different from their usual ones in order to create a poetic and/or literary effect. Examples: Love certainly has its own seasons; crumbling cities made of matches.

Flashback: a scene that interrupts the ongoing action in a story to show an event that happened earlier. Example: The movie, Citizen Kane, tells its story almost exclusively through the memories of its characters, who all knew Kane before his death.

Foreshadowing: the use of hints or clues in a story to suggest what action is to come. Foreshadowing is frequently used to create interest and build suspense. Example: Two small and seemingly inconsequential car accidents predict and hint at the upcoming, important wreck in The Great Gatsby.

Imagery: the use of words to evoke impressions and meanings that are more than just the basic, accepted definitions of the words themselves. Example: The quotation, "Get thee to a nunnery," from Hamlet implies that Ophelia must regain her purity and chastity and does not simply mean that she needs to go to a convent.

Irony: a perception of inconsistency, sometimes humorous, in which the significance and understanding of a statement or event is changed by its context. Example: The firehouse burned down.

- Dramatic Irony: the audience or reader knows more about a character's situation than the character does and knows that the character's understanding is incorrect. Example: In Medea, Creon asks, "What atrocities could she commit in one day?" The reader, however, knows Medea will destroy her family and Creon's by day's end.
- Structural Irony: the use of a naïve hero, whose incorrect perceptions differ from the reader's correct ones. Example: Huck Finn.
- Verbal Irony: a discrepancy between what is said and what is really meant; sarcasm. Example: A large man whose nickname is "Tiny." Juxtaposition the placement of two dissimilar items, people, thoughts, places, etc., next to one another to emphasize the differences or heighten the similarities. Example: In The Pearl, the main character instinctively touches the valuable pearl and his knife at the same time.

Metaphor: a comparison of two things that are basically dissimilar in which one is described in terms of the other. Example: The moon, a haunting lantern, shone through the clouds.

Motif: a situation, incident, idea, or image that is repeated significantly in a literary work. Examples: In Hamlet, revenge is a frequently repeated idea. In The Catcher in the Rye, Holden continually comments on the phoniness of people he meets.

Point of View: the position or vantage point, determined by the author, from which the story seems to come to the reader. The two most common points of view are First-person and Third-person. Examples: First-person point of view occurs in The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn; the reader receives all information through Huck's eyes. An example of third-person point of view is Dickens' Hard Times, in which the narrator is not a character in the book.

Repetition: repeating of a word or phrase for stylistic effect. Example: "When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child." - - I Corinthians 13:11

Rhetoric: the art of eloquent speech or writing, which employs various techniques in order to persuade one's audience. Example: Congressional speeches.

Simile: a comparison between two different things using either like or as. Examples: I am as hungry as a horse. The huge trees broke like twigs during the hurricane.

Subjective: first-person narration in which the author is recording action from a character's point of view.

Example: Huckleberry Finn tells his story from his own viewpoint, which is prejudiced, limited, and opinionated.

Symbol: an object, person, or place that has a meaning in itself and that also stands for something larger than itself, usually an idea or concept; some concrete thing which represents an abstraction. Example: The sea could be symbolic for "the unknown." Since the sea is something that is physical and can be seen by the reader, and also has elements that cannot be understood, it can be used symbolically to stand for the abstraction of "mystery," "obscurity,"

Literature Circle Roles

- *Discussion Director: Your roles demands that you identify the important aspects of your assigned text, and develop questions your group will want to discuss. Focus on the major themes or big ideas in the text and you reaction to those ideas. What interests you will most likely interest those in your group. You are also responsible for facilitating your group's discussion.
- *Illuminator: You find passages your group would like to/should hear read aloud from the reading. These passages should be memorable, interesting, puzzling, funny, or important. Your notes should include quotations but also why you chose them, and what you want to say about them. You can either read the passage aloud yourself or ask members of your group to read roles.
- *Illustrator: Your role is to draw what you read. This might mean drawing a scene as a cartoon like sequence, or an important scene so readers can better understand the action. You can draw maps or organizational trees to show how one person, place, or event relates to the others.
- *Connector: Your job is to connect what you read with what you study in this or other classes. You can also connect the story with events in your own life or the world outside the classroom as depicted in the news or other media. Another valuable source of connections is books you've already read this year. Connections should be meaningful to you and those in your group.
- *Word Watcher: While reading the assigned section, you watch out for words worth knowing. These words might be interesting, new, important, or used in unusual ways. It is important to indicate the specific location of the words so the group can discuss these words in context.
- *Summarizer: Prepare a brief summary of the day's reading. If it helps you to organize the information, consider making a numbered list or a timeline.
