Since the Enlightenment, France has been known as a nation that values free speech and the freedom of expression. This liberté, however, has not always existed in practice. Presenter: Annie de Saussure, Foreign Language & Literature

- Natural Sciences: Would You Eat the Last Giant Panda?

Controversy in conservation biology emerges all the time about how to best use limited resources and funds to prevent extinction of species and protect ecosystems. One conservation biologist even claimed he'd "eat the last panda if the money could be spent on more sensible things." In this short Pard-Talk, we will analyze several approaches to prioritizing investments to maximize biodiversity conservation.

Presenter: Megan Rothenberger, Biology

- Interdisciplinary: Will Cities Rule the World – Or Do They Already?

For the first time in human history, the majority of the world's population live in urban areas. This quiet, but monumental, economic, social, and political change is already profoundly shaping domestic and international politics. We'll be talking about why global urbanization has accelerated and what it means for our lives as we navigate a world of increasingly connected global cities.

Presenter: Caleb Gallemore, International Affairs

- Social Sciences: Biases in Decision Making

We all make mistakes. Yes, that includes you. This talk will address a few of the many biases leading us to make bad decisions. Learning about epistemic rationality, and the ways we deviate from that ideal, will help us understand why we do what we do and how to do it better.

WILLIAMS CENTER GALLERY—WILLIAMS CENTER FOR THE ARTS

corner of Hamilton & High St.

Tsukioka Yoshitoshi: Japanese Prints from the Taubman Museum of Art's Permanent Collection

Twenty-four woodcuts by Japanese artist Tsukioka Yoshitoshi (1839–1892)—widely recognized as the last master of Ukiyo-e, a genre of woodblock prints and paintings that flourished in Japan from the 17th through 19th centuries—showcase the artist's superb skill and imagination.

Friday: 11 a.m.–5 p.m.

Saturday and Sunday: Noon–5 p.m.

GROSSMAN GALLERY—WILLIAMS VISUAL ARTS BUILDING •

243 N. Third St.

Kim Altomare: New Work

Informed by the historical lineages of surrealism, Kim Altomare's painted relief works use psychological reflexivity to reveal unconscious formulations of the self in the form of biomorphic abstraction. Projection, transference, hatred, sadness, love—all of these messy things get casted upon the work by you and me. Funneled through the pressure of coherence, intangible states become forms of embodied knowledge. The way a drawn line sits on the wall or how paint drips onto the floor indicate something more than just the optical—a haptic sensation gets lodged in the body, filling it up from head to toe.

Friday and Saturday: 11 a.m.–4 p.m.

REFERENCE COMMONS—SKILLMAN LIBRARY

Forbidden Stories: Installation and Photographs by Xiaoze Xie

Skillman Library features works by artist Xiaoze Xie, Professor of Art at Stanford University. Xie's paintings, photographs and installations focus on themes of reading and censorship, and the Skillman show will highlight his photographs of ancient banned books
