LIFE OF THE (BLACK) IMAM IN SOUTH AFRICA

It was in 2010 that I arrived in the Republic of South Africa. I left for greener pastures and a better life but when I arrived here things soon turned sour. My first town was Pietermaritzburg, where I worked with different people of different races and religions. I was doing some small jobs with different people while I hoped that one day things will be better. I applied for jobs with different Islamic organizations.

Fortunately I was called to be the Imam in Durban by a big, rich family. They were millionaires Durban but they told me that my salary will be R1,300-00 per month. My main job was to be the Imam but unfortunately I was ordered to also wash the cars and clean their beautiful houses up and downstairs.

I worked only for a month then I was offered another Imam position in Pietermaritzburg. When I reached there they informed me that according to the Islamic certificates that I had the management was pleased to offer me the Imam and the Madarassah teacher positions. Allah be my witness, they told me that they will be giving me R800-00, not only that but also I have to use the same money to rent and buy food. I could not complain & I just accepted the offer because I had nothing to do but also nowhere to go. I worked for two weeks as an Imam residing outside the masjid complex and received R400-00 as my fortnight wage.

Then I was offered work with a popular Islamic organization which offered me R2,000-00 a month with a house to stay. Alhamdulillah under all circumstances. In nutshell most of the black imams in the South Africa are under paid even though they do more than five peoples jobs. Some of the jobs that we do as imams include cleaning the masjid and toilets, giving adhan and leading daily salat, teaching madarassah and visiting the muslim community, washing the deceased and conducting nikahs. In spite of the fact that these Imams do so much they always receive limited salaries.

We have no allowances nor bonuses. The Imams salary can take upto two or more years to be increased yet life is becoming more expensive day by day. Trustees and bosses expect the Imams to produce wonders and miracles from the children and the community at large.

Most Imam have no access to internet, don't own houses, have no vehicles yet the masjids and organizations that they work for collect huge amounts of donations.

Condition are even worse when it's a foreign black imam because he will not be allowed to apply for a work permit incase he will ask for a higher salary.
Allahul Musta'an

What must I do for me as a foreign black imam to be regarded as a human being?????

That is the question that always comes to my mind. Most of the black imams are always given houses but the houses have only one or two rooms. Does this mean imams should not have children or what?????

May Allah put love and care in our hearts for any human being regardless of the gender, race and religion.
Aameen
