1. INTRODUCTION

- 1.1 These style guidelines have been developed to ensure uniformity in respect of “look and feel” in all law modules on any qualification offered by the IIE.
- 1.2 This style guide must be followed in respect of all law modules by developers, students, lecturers, editors, etc.
- 1.3 Law students must also follow these style guidelines in all assignments unless the context indicates otherwise for all “pure law” modules. The normal IIE style guidelines are to be used for all other modules in the degree, e.g. Business Management, Economics, etc.
- 1.4 These guidelines apply to the text and footnotes, unless otherwise indicated.
- 1.5 Footnotes are therefore to be applied in law subjects: Short cut key: Ctrl+alt+f.
- 1.6 An example to serve as a guideline as to what the referencing should look like:

Section 10 of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (the Constitution) provides for the right to dignity.<sup>1</sup>

In the matter of S v Makwanyane<sup>2</sup> (the Makwanyane case or matter) the concern was whether “everyone” has the absolute right to dignity.

When referring to the principle of huur gaat voor koop, the Constitutional Court had to decide in the matter of Abner v Pretorius<sup>3</sup> ..... “if the owner of the property’s constitutional right to property may be limited due to him or her not upholding their contractual obligations of paying rent as agreed.”<sup>4</sup>

Therefore, by considering what was decided in the Makwanyane case, everyone has a right to be protected, however not every right is absolute and therefore not without limitations.<sup>5</sup>

Van der Merwe, Roos, Pistorius, Eiselen, & Nel<sup>6</sup> (Van der Merwe et al) provide an explanation of the limitation clause by providing that “everyone may have the right to equality, dignity and fairness, however you will almost certainly always have an opposing right which should also be taken into consideration.”<sup>7</sup> This can be seen in legislation such as the Labour Relations Act<sup>8</sup> (the LRA) which provides for the right to strike,<sup>9</sup> but such strike will only be protected should the trade union or employees have followed the correct procedure: should this procedure not have been followed, the employer may dismiss such employees.<sup>10</sup>

<sup>1</sup> The right to dignity, it has been argued, also includes the right to equality. Section 9(1) of the Constitution of South Africa, 1996 (the Constitution), also referred to as equality clause, states: “Everyone is equal before the law and has the right to equal protection and benefit of the law”.

<sup>5</sup> The Makwanyane case at 689B-D refers to the limitation clause, being s 36 of the Constitution. Section 36 of the Constitution provides that rights may be limited by applying the test which concerns ...

NB all work in assignments and ICE tasks MUST have BOTH intext referencing AND a bibliography.

2. GENERAL INFORMATION

2.1. SPELLING

- 2.1.1. Use UK/SA spelling where possible. This means that words ought to be spelt with an “s” as opposed to a “z” where appropriate. For example, cognisance as opposed to cognizance; realisation as opposed to realization, etc. The only exception to this rule is in the case of technology/IT law; it is standard across the globe to use American spelling, e.g. program as opposed to programme, email as opposed to e-mail, etc.
- 2.1.2. Where appropriate “u” must be used after an “o”. For example, favour instead of favor; colour instead of color, which is American spelling.
- 2.1.3. Programme ends with “me” (as afore stated) unless one refers to a computer program in which case the American spelling has been adopted as the norm. This rule applies to almost all words related to technology.
- 2.1.4. Only use capitalisation in the middle of a sentence if it is customary to do so, e.g. High Court of South Africa; Bill of Rights, etc.
- 2.1.5. “Law” is not to be capitalised in the middle of a sentence unless it is absolutely necessary.
- 2.1.6. Names in general are not capitalised e.g. the high courts, but the High Court of Johannesburg refers to a specific institution.
- 2.1.7. When referring to legislation in general, it is not capitalised e.g. the legislator had an act in mind to resolve... But the Act refers to a specific statute which may be the Labour Relations Act.
- 2.1.8. Lowercase is used for “state” and “parliament”.
- 2.1.9. Where possible, use gender neutral language. If it is not possible, use she/he, s/he, her/his, etc.
- 2.1.10. When referring to a juristic person refer use “it” e.g. The employer applied the rule it distributed to its employees....
- 2.1.11. When referring to “The Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996”, no reference is made to an Act number.
- 2.1.12. “Section” is only written out if it is at the beginning of a sentence. If it is in the middle of a sentence, you may use “s”; plural “ss”; articles: art or arts; foot notes: fn.
- 2.1.13. Remember the paragraph reference is always in italics; e.g. s 1(2)(d).
- 2.1.14. In all assessments the name of the applicable piece of legislation must be written out in full each time that you use it in a different question.
- 2.1.15. Where more than one paragraph is referred to: paras. 27-31.

- 2.1.16. Quotation marks must be avoided and used sparingly. Quotes must be accurate (all editing must be copied exactly as is in the original source); use double quotation marks (“...”).
- 2.1.17. Quotations shorter than three lines are not indented.
- 2.1.18. Should words need to be removed, three dots are to be used e.g. “... the rule of law provides for...”.
- 2.1.19. Do not write in the first person and do not use emotive words e.g. My (first person) opinion is that I (first person) approve (emotive word) of the outcome of this case because the judge used poetic language (emotive words)

2.2. NUMBERS

- 2.2.1. When a monetary amount is written, there is no space between the “R” and the first numeral. For example, R100.
- 2.2.2. Leave a space between every thousand, e.g. R1 000 000.
- 2.2.3. Please use hard spaces between the numerals by pressing shift+ctrl+space bar simultaneously.
- 2.2.4. Do not use or indicate cents, e.g. R100.00 should read R100 unless it is crucial to indicate cents, in which case it should read R100.45.
- 2.2.5. If a student is required to do any calculation, e.g. averaging, please use whole numbers and not cents.

2.3. ABBREVIATIONS

- 2.3.1. Standard abbreviations may be used without having to write out the full word/phrase initially.
- 2.3.2. Use full stops sparingly unless the standard English abbreviation requires a full stop.
- 2.3.3. For non-standard abbreviations the word/phrase must be written out in full the first time in a chapter or learning unit where after the abbreviation may be used if given in brackets. For example, Labour Relations Act 66 of 1995 (LRA).
- 2.3.4. Some of the common abbreviations that are used include:

AJ	Acting Judge
AJA	Acting Judge of Appeal
CJ	Chief Justice
ch	Chapter
ed	Edition/editor

GG	Government Gazette
GN	Government Notice
J	Judge
JA	Judge of Appeal
JP	Judge President
n	Footnote
para	Paragraph
Proc	Proclamation
Reg	Regulation
s	Section/s

2.4. ACRONYMS

- 2.4.1. The first time that an acronym is used in a chapter or learning unit it must be written out in full where after the acronym may be used, e.g. the South African National Blood Services (SABS) ...
- 2.4.2. If the acronym is pronounced as a word, the first letter is capitalised, and the rest of the letters are in lower case, e.g. Unisa. If, however, the letters of the acronym are pronounced separately, e.g. SANBS, the acronym is written in capital letters in full without full stops.

2.5. APOSTROPHES

- 2.5.1. An apostrophe denotes possession. As such when the plural of a term is used, no apostrophe is used. For example, DVDs (correct) as opposed to DVD's (incorrect).
- 2.5.2. If the word ends on an "s", the apostrophe is used after the "s", e.g. Jo Smiths' words ... and not Jo Smiths's words ...

2.6. DATES

- 2.6.1. Use the traditional South African method – day, month, year and not the American method (month, day, year). So, dates are written as follows: 11 March 2017. Where necessary make use of hard returns.
- 2.6.2. The American method may only be used if the use thereof has become the norm, e.g. 9/11, which refers to 11 September.

2.7. EMPHASIS

- 2.7.1. In today's electronic environment underlining denotes hyperlinks only.
- 2.7.2. Prior to the advent of personal computers, lawyers used to underline for foreign words, which are now typed in italics, or emphasis. However, as one is able to use italics or bold on the computer, no underlining is to be used, unless you put in a hyperlink.
- 2.7.3. For emphasis, use bold.

2.8. FOREIGN WORDS/PHRASES

- 2.8.1. All foreign words/phrases which are not common to, or which have not been adopted into, colloquial English need to be italicised, e.g. pro non scripto, supra, etc.
- 2.8.2. When foreign words/phrases are used in a heading or section that is already in italics, these words/phrases should be changed to normal font.
- 2.8.3. Numbers zero to ten are always written out and numerals are not used. Numerals are used from 11 and more.
- 2.8.4. Only use capitalisation in the middle of a sentence if it is customary to do so, e.g. High Court of South Africa; Bill of Rights, etc.
- 2.8.5. "Law" is not to be capitalised in the middle of a sentence unless it is absolutely necessary.
- 2.8.6. Only use generally accepted abbreviations, including Latin abbreviations (e.g. id.) where necessary.
- 2.8.7. Generally full stops are only used in abbreviations if the letter of the abbreviation is not the same as the last letter of the word that has been abbreviated. In the latter case, one does not use a full stop. So, for example, id. ends with a full stop, as ibidem does not end on a "b" as with the abbreviation. So too does ibid.
- 2.8.8. One may, however, use abbreviations of Acts, terms/phrases commonly used in law.
- 2.8.9. Where possible, use gender neutral language. If it is not possible, use she/he, s/he, her/his, etc.
- 2.8.10. Note that when a source reference is referred to more than once, the style in this document for that source e.g. case law or legislation should be maintained and therefore no use of "ibid", "infra" or "supra".

2.9. QUOTATIONS AND QUOTATION MARKS

- 2.9.1. Double quotation marks ("...") should be used, except where a quotation within a quote is made.
- 2.9.2. Where a sentence or paragraph is not quoted in full, every omitted part, regardless of its length, are indicated by three dots.
- 2.9.3. Changes and insertions in quotes are indicated by means of block brackets, for example "[I]n...; "there [has to] ..."
- 2.9.4. No more than 10% of the assignment may consist out of direct quotes.
- 2.9.5. Quotations must be used sparingly.

3. REFERRING TO CASE LAW, BOOKS, DISSERTATIONS

3.1. GENERAL

3.1.1. Shortcut key: ctrl+alt+f to create footnotes.

3.2. FOOTNOTES

3.2.1. The footnote is always inserted after the punctuation; never before. The footnote number is also always in normal font, i.e. not in bold, italics, etc.

3.2.2. Footnotes always start with a capital letter and end with a full stop.

3.2.3. Where possible and appropriate, use abbreviations.

3.2.4. If one refers to multiple sources, use a semi-colon between the sources.

3.2.5. The abbreviation or shortened reference of the case, article, textbook etc. must be placed in brackets after the full citation/reference but before the page number to which one is referring. For example: Van der Merwe, DP. Roos, A. Pistorius, T. Eiselen, GTS. & Nel, SS. Information and Communications Technology Law 2nd ed (2016) LexisNexis: Cape Town (hereinafter Van Der Merwe et al) 134; S v Makwanyane 1994 (4) SA 674 (W) (the Makwanyane case or matter).

3.2.6. Never include “p”; “pp”; “pg.”, etc. or an “on” before the page number.

3.3. CASE LAW

3.3.1. The names of the parties must be italicised, and the rest of the citation must be in normal font.

3.3.2. All cases must contain the full citation in the footnote only.

3.3.3. When referring to a paragraph in a case: Standard Bank v Neugarten 1999 (3) SA 695 (GSJ) 703 C-D.

3.3.4. Unreported case law

3.3.4.1. Whether in the text, in a footnote or as a heading of a case discussion: Berdene v Potgieter case no 49/9(C) (unreported); or if the case number is not available, but the date upon which the judgment was delivered is, Berdene v Potgieter 15-01-2018 (C) (unreported).

3.3.4.2. Subsequent references to case law may be, for example: In the Cohen case ...

When referring to unreported case law, the same rules apply as above, i.e. the same rules applicable to reported cases are relevant.

3.4. LEGISLATION

- 3.4.1. Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, 1996 (no act number is used for the Constitution).
- 3.4.2. When you use the name of an Act more than once in a text, put the abbreviation in brackets after the first use of the name of the Act, e.g. Employment Equity Act 55 of 1998 (EEA).
- 3.4.3. In the event that there are two Acts that have the same names, but different numbers/dates, you can make reference as follows: Labour Relations Act 28 of 1956 (1956 Act; or Labour Relations Act, 1956) and Labour Relations Act 66 of 1995 (1995 Act; or Labour Relations, 1995).
- 3.4.4. Avoid using “the Act” as reference. The use hereof is particularly confusing when one refers to more than one Act in a particular document.
- 3.4.5. The word “Section” is only written out if it is at the beginning of a sentence. If it is in the middle of a sentence, you may use “s”. (Remember the paragraph reference is always in italics; e.g. s 1(2)(d)).
