QUEST FOR THE BEST

NEIMAN MARCUS TAKES IT PERSONALLY—SCOURING THE GLOBE TO BRING YOU THE FINEST OF EVERYTHING, THAT IS. IN THIS ISSUE, IT'S BAGS, BAUBLES, AND BREAKTHROUGHS, AMONG OTHER BRILLIANT FINDS.

EMANUEL UNGARO

Peter Dundas, the new creative director of this venerable French fashion house, has a joie de vivre that is reflected in the beautiful new collections he's presented since arriving just over a year ago. "Ungaro stands for the best of Parisian couture," he says. "It's a great honor to contribute to such an exceptional heritage." Gown, 10,055.00. Couture Salon.

LEXUS

Never has a means of transportation been more deserving of a ceremonial launch than the new 2008 Lexus LS 600h L Launch Edition. The flagship of the Lexus line is available in limited quantities, and reserving one will be a definite reason to celebrate. As an InCircle member, you have the rare opportunity to purchase one first. From noon on April 20 until 8 p.m. on May 21, 2007, Eastern time, call toll-free 1-888-747-4504 to order yours.

This all-wheel drive, long-wheelbase luxury sedan with a sophisticated gas/electric hybrid system offers a host of technological amenities. The interior of the LS 600h L Launch Edition is exquisitely appointed, and the cabin has nearly 43 inches of rear-seat legroom. You'll also enjoy special Launch Edition floor mats and a matching custom-made three-piece Italian leather luggage set. Other features include an Advanced Parking Guidance System, the Mark Levinson® Reference Surround Sound Audio System, an advanced Pre-Collision System, four-zone climate control, and the world's first LED headlamps for night and low-beam use. Finally, two hallmarks are exclusive to the Launch edition: a rich Truffle Mica exterior and 19-inch, 15-spoke chrome-finished alloy wheels.

The LS 600h L Launch Edition showcases some of the most advanced thinking on the road—including the world's first full-hybrid V8 powertrain. This ingenious system combines a powerful 5.0-liter V8 gasoline engine with a compact high-output electric motor. During deceleration, the accumulated kinetic energy automatically recharges the vehicle's battery, eliminating the need to ever plug it in. In other words, the LS 600h L Launch Edition is designed to perform with the poise, presence, and innovative power you'd expect from a benchmark-setting Lexus sedan.

CHLOÉ

We love "it" bags that have room for more than just a lipstick and credit card. The roomy "Bay" is covered in zippers and pockets. The trick is to resist the urge to fill it to capacity—you'll only use a quarter of its space to carry everything you need, anyway. NM Exclusive tote, 1,860.00. Designer Handbags.

DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH®

Display your ability to envision possibilities by wearing a literal diamond in the rough. These precious rocks are completely natural and untreated, safely encased in pavé diamonds and 18-karat white gold. Since no two stones are alike, each necklace is one of a kind. 11,715-carat rough diamond and 4-carat pavé diamond necklace, 45,000.00. Precious Jewels Salon.

INVENTABLES

Its mission is to build a living showcase of what's possible to deliver inspiration and innovation to the dreamers of the world. A lofty goal, perhaps, but one that Inventables delivers. The founders set out five years ago to share their excitement for the almost limitless possibilities new technologies offer with the world's innovators—both corporations and individuals.

The company's team is composed of experts in mechanical, industrial, and design engineering, industrial design, and computer science. They research materials that have unexpected properties—for example, sand that doesn't get wet. They then take items demonstrating these innovations and, four times a year, send a collection of them (called DesignAid) to clients.

Give license to your own inner inventor with an Inventables Innovation Center for 5,000,000 InCircle points. It includes the most cutting-edge technologies, plus you'll have a brainstorming session in your home with the team to turn the invention you've always dreamed of into a product concept. Visit InCircle.com for more details and to redeem online.

JOHN LOBB

"They just don't make them like they used to" applies to many things but not handmade John Lobb shoes. That's because the craftsmen in the made-to-measure workshop pass on their skills from one generation to the next. Some designs even require more than 300 steps and six different crafts—and they're all created just like in the good old days. Cap-toe shoe, 1,440.00. Men's Shoes.

WHO LOVES YOUR BABY?

NEIMAN MARCUS DOES—AND WE HAVE THE GIFTS TO PROVE IT. WHEN IT COMES TO GIVING FOR LITTLE ONES, NM WILL STEER YOU RIGHT. FIND THESE PRESENTS AND MORE IN CHILDREN'S WORLD.

ABCs OF GIFTING

Giving a baby gift can be as simple as, well, child's play. If you're wondering what to give or when to give it, here are a few rules of thumb.

- If giving clothing, choose something in a size larger than 0-3 months. Since babies grow so quickly, the parents will be grateful in a few weeks for cute clothes that fit.
- If you're hosting a shower, schedule it one to two months before the due date.
- Indulge your creative side and consider gifts such as jewelry, picture frames, and diaper bags.
- If you're unsure of what to give, choose an NM Gift Card®—you select the amount, and it's good in stores and online—or let your sales associate create a custom gift basket.

MANDARIN ORIENTAL, MIAMI

Escape to a beach oasis right here in the States with a night at Mandarin Oriental, Miami. For 50,000 InCircle points, you can settle into a Deluxe Room overlooking Biscayne Bay. You'll also receive two 80-minute hot stone massages and continental breakfast at this Florida destination hotel.

Situated on Brickell Key, a 44-acre island, the property is just 20 minutes from Miami International Airport and 35 minutes from Fort Lauderdale Airport. As soon as you arrive, you'll be taken in by the serene atmosphere. Two-story floor-to-ceiling windows in the lobby offer dramatic views of the city's bay and skyline, while a 30-foot tropical black bamboo presides over one end. You'll find a number of unique works of art throughout the hotel, such as vases by Matt Janke and an impressive three-panel wall painting, Three Mysteries of the Sea, by local artist Fernando Ureña Rib.

A rare blue marble called azul bahia adorns the M-Bar, where you may choose from more than 250 different martinis. Other refreshment options include Café Sambal and Azul, where you'll discover cuisine from Chef Clay Conley.

The spacious guest rooms all feature airy balconies with views of the bay and offer a peaceful residential vibe. Contemporary elements of south Florida blend beautifully with tranquil Asian touches; for example, bamboo hardwood floors are paired with Spanish marble bathroom tiles.

Your respite continues in The Spa at Mandarin Oriental, Miami, a tri-level retreat with sweeping ocean views and 17 private treatment rooms—including six VIP suites, two designed for couples. Adjacent to The Spa is the Oasis Beach Club, where you can luxuriate in the famous Florida sunshine.

Dame Celia Lipton Farris served as Honorary Chair, with Tom Quick and Institute Trustee Michele Kessler acting as hosts. The store also welcomed special guest Oscar de la Renta, who presented a runway fashion show of his Spring 2007 collection. Guests were greeted upon arrival with cocktails and, following the show, savored a buffet dinner.

THE RETURN TO FEMME

GENTLEMEN, IT SEEMS, ARE HAPPY TO SEE WOMEN'S CLOTHES FOLLOWING A FEMININE TREND THIS SEASON.

BY GLENN O'BRIEN

"Ooh la la!" I love that expression. It conjures up a whole world. Ladies being very ladylike and classically feminine. Women being womanly. And I love that other delightful cliché of Hollywood's Paris: "Vive la difference!"

As a male animal, I know that a lot of our preferences and turn-ons come from early experiences. I was raised by women and realize that boys learn to adore ladies at an early age. So certain things grab my attention today, like how the tick of noon got Pavlov's dogs or a madeline seized Proust. I remember the exotic mystery of sitting on a ruffled lap.

Years later, certain triggers still resonate powerfully. The rustle and crunch of crinoline, the murmur of nylon stockings against one another, the click-clack rhythm of high heels on marble, the smell of Chanel N°5, Joy, Halston, or Grandma's White Shoulders, the touch of hair slightly stiff from hair spray, the brush of mink on one's cheek, the sight of a woman discreetly crossing her legs in a knee-length skirt, or the lovely geometry of a sigh in a décolleté dress. My senses are alert to these things the way a hunter's might be to the sound of a snapping twig. Women rule us without words or even intention, through the magic of our ingrained predispositions.

The delicious irony of how women's fashion works on us, of course, is that essentially women dress for one another and not us. Our excitement at their exotic plumage is the by-product of another system. Women must make their mark; they must establish their rank and status, their taste, and their desirability through this arcane system of fashion and beauty. Most men don't know who made the dress or how much those earrings cost. Women know everything about it. All we know is what we like—and how much we like it.

So sometimes fashion turns against us. Women are suddenly symbolically engaged in wearing the pants or demonstrating upper-body strength or flaunting their Jungian animus or disappearing in caftans. Somehow we manage to live through trends such as maxiskirts and power suits, recognizing that fashion is never forever and the moments we treasure will come again. Like now.

This season it's all coming back. Lace and ruffles sashay down the runway. Clinging jersey reminds us of hourglasses. Bombshell curves banish the flaunted flatness of the gamine. The pendulum swings away from stick-figure severe to supermodel swerve.

Vive Lacroix and feminine flounce and skirts up to there! Vive strapless evening gowns and bodices cut away to reveal the way a gal breathes! Vive bare shoulders and naked backs! Vive pink and gold and prints with stories to tell!

Vive Zac Posen and fabrics with movie-star sheen that recall Hayworth neglected! Vive tutu-length minis born to frug! Vive translucence saying, "Look closer!" Vive Hepburn pants, let's go off to Capri! Vive the bows that say, "It's a gift. Unwrap, if you please!"

And vive the great Oscar, the master of femme. Vive le chic that he's brought back once again. Vive the little black dress, the littler the better. Vive eyelet and lace, the subtlest of tease. Vive dresses that leave no doubt about knees. Vive the frills that still know how to bring men to their knees!

Vive la difference!

Noted sartorialist Glenn O'Brien pens "The Style Guy" for GQ and is susceptible to the wiles of women in fetching frocks.
