CD 39 Calculation of amount of dividend when property made available

How this section applies

- (1) This section applies to determine the amount of a dividend that arises under section CD 3 because a company makes property available to a person.

Amounts calculated quarterly

- (2) The amount of the dividend is calculated for each quarter during which the property is made available.

Date when amounts treated as paid

- (3) The amount of the dividend calculated for a quarter is treated as being paid by the company to the person and as being derived by the person 6 months after the end of the company's income year. However, if the company gives notice to the shareholder on an earlier date of the amount of the dividend for that quarter, the amount is treated as being paid and derived on that earlier date instead.

Using FBT rules

- (4) Unless the property made available is a loan, the amount of the dividend for each quarter is the value of the fringe benefit for that quarter calculated under the fringe benefit tax (FBT) rules as if—
- (a) making the property available were the provision of a fringe benefit by the company to an employee in relation to employment, despite anything in sections CX 6 to CX 38 (which relate to fringe benefits); and
  - (b) the company were not to choose to pay fringe benefit tax on an income year basis under section RD 60 (Close company option).

Using difference from benchmark rate

- (5) If the property made available is a loan, the amount of the dividend for each quarter is the excess, if any, of interest, calculated for the quarter on the basis of the daily balance of the loan and the benchmark rate specified in subsections (6) to (8), over the actual amount of interest accruing on the loan in the quarter. However, the company may choose instead to calculate the dividend as the excess of the benchmark interest rate amount over the amount of income accruing to the company in the quarter calculated under the yield to maturity method.

Benchmark rate: fringe benefit tax rate for certain loans

- (6) For the purposes of subsection (5), the benchmark rate of interest is the prescribed rate of interest if—
- (a) all amounts payable to the company for the loan are expressed in New Zealand dollars; and
  - (b) either the borrower is not a company or, if the borrower is another company, the company making the loan notifies the Commissioner that this subsection is to apply to the loan and the quarter.

Setting benchmark rate

- (7) For the purposes of subsection (5), the benchmark rate is the rate set by the Commissioner if—
- (a) all amounts payable to the company in relation to the loan are payable in a single currency other than New Zealand dollars; and
  - (b) the Commissioner has set a benchmark rate for that currency and the quarter; and
  - (c) either the borrower is not a company or, if the borrower is another company, the company making the loan notifies the Commissioner that this subsection is to apply to the loan and the quarter.

Default benchmark rate

- (8) For the purposes of subsection (5), if neither subsection (6) nor (7) applies, the benchmark rate of interest is a market rate determined at the end of the quarter for a loan made on the same terms between persons at arm's length.

Daily loan balance: certain repayments backdated

- (9) For the purposes of subsection (5), in determining the daily balance of a loan during a tax year, an amount repaid during the tax year is treated as having been applied in repayment of the loan at the start of the company's tax year or, if later, the day the loan was made, if—
- (a) the amount is repaid by applying any salary, wages, extra pay, dividends, or interest payable by the company to the borrower; and
  - (b) the amount payable by the company is income of the borrower in the tax year or an earlier tax year; and
  - (c) the amount payable by the company is payable without any amount of tax being withheld and paid under the PAYE rules, the RWT rules, or the NRWT rules.

Daily loan balance: company nominating amount

- (10) Subject to subsection (9), for the purposes of subsection (5), the daily balance of the loan for a tax year is treated as being equal to the notional balance chosen under subsection (11) by the company making the loan if—
- (a) the borrower is a company; and
  - (b) the loan is a variable principal debt instrument; and

- (c) the company making the loan notifies the Commissioner that this subsection applies for the loan and the tax year; and
- (d) the amount of the dividend calculated as a result for the loan, the borrower, and the tax year is no more than 30% greater or less than the amount that would be calculated if this section did not apply.

Notional balance options

- (11) The notional balance referred to in subsection (10) is whichever of the following is chosen by the company making the loan and notified to the Commissioner:
  - (a) the average of the outstanding balances of the loan at the end of each month in the company's tax year;
  - (b) the average of—
    - (i) the outstanding balance of the loan at the start of the tax year or the first time during the tax year at which the loan exists, whichever is later; and
    - (ii) the outstanding balance of the loan at the end of the tax year or the last time during the tax year at which the loan exists, whichever is earlier.

Notice generally by tax returns

- (12) Reference in this section to a company notifying the Commissioner is a reference to—
  - (a) a notice given to the Commissioner with the company's return of income for the relevant tax year; or
  - (b) if no return is required, a notice given by the date on which a return would be required to be filed for the tax year if a return had been required.

Attributed repatriation dividends

- (13) No amount of dividend arises under section CD 4 as a result of any difference between the interest, if any, payable by a person to a CFC in an accounting period of the CFC under a loan and the benchmark rate of interest specified in any of subsections (6) to (8) if—
  - (a) the outstanding balance of the loan at the end of the accounting period is taken into account under sections CD 46 to CD 52 in calculating the New Zealand repatriation amount of the CFC for the accounting period; and

- (b) as a result, the person derives a dividend under section CD 21.

When loan disregarded

- (14) Subsection (13) does not apply to the extent to which the loan is a loan to which—
  - (a) section CD 50(11) applies, meaning that the loan is disregarded for the accounting period; or
  - (b) section CZ 10(4) (Transitional relief for calculation of attributed repatriation dividends: 2 July 1992) applies, meaning that the loan is effectively disregarded for the accounting period.

Amounts written up

- (14) When a capital gain amount, a capital loss amount, or the cost of capital property is determined, the cost of the relevant capital property is increased to the extent to which—

- (a) salary or wages or an allowance, bonus, extra pay, or gratuity:
- (b) expenditure on account of an employee that is expenditure on account of the person:
- (c) the market value of board that the person receives in connection with their employment or service:
- (d) a benefit received under a share purchase agreement:

Defined in this Act: amount, expenditure on account of an employee, extra pay, income, salary or wages, share purchase agreement

Compare: 2004 No 35 s CE 1

CE 2 Value and timing of benefits under share purchase agreements

What this section does

- (1) This section determines the value of a benefit that an employee receives under a share purchase agreement and the allocation of the benefit to a particular income year. If restrictions apply to the disposal of shares received under a share purchase agreement, section CE 3 applies.

If employees acquire shares

- (2) If an employee acquires shares under a share purchase agreement, the value of the benefit to the employee is the amount by which the value of the shares when they were acquired is more than the amount paid or payable for them. The employee receives the benefit in the income year in which they acquire the shares.

If employees dispose of rights to non-associates

- (3) If an employee disposes of their rights under a share purchase agreement to a person who is not associated with them, the value of the benefit is the consideration for the disposal of the rights. The employee receives the benefit in the income year in which they dispose of the rights.

If associates acquire shares

- (4) If, following 1 or more transactions between associated persons, an associated person acquires the shares under a share purchase agreement, the value of the benefit is the difference between the value of the shares on the date of acquisition by the associated person and the amount paid or payable for them. If the difference is negative, the value is zero. The employee receives the benefit in the income year in which the associated person acquires the shares.

If associates dispose of rights to non-associates

- (5) If, following 1 or more transactions between associated persons, a person who is not an associated person acquires the rights under a share purchase agreement, the value of the benefit is the consideration paid for that disposal. The employee receives the benefit in the income year in which the last associated person disposes of the rights.

If shares transferred when employees end employment or die

- (6) The value of the benefit is zero if a share purchase agreement provides unconditionally that, when the employee ends their employment or service or dies, the shares must be transferred to the employer or to the person from whom they were acquired, either without consideration or for a consideration no more than that paid by the employee.

If benefits arise under approved schemes

- (7) The value of the benefit is zero if the benefit arises under a share purchase scheme.

Disposal of rights under share purchase option

- (8) For the purposes of subsection (3), a disposal of rights under a share purchase agreement includes the cancellation of a share option in return for a cash payment.

Reduction of value of benefit in circumstances relating to non-resident

- (9) The value of a benefit arising from a period of employment is reduced, from the value that the benefit would have in the absence of this subsection,—
- (a) if, when the employee acquires the shares under the share purchase agreement or disposes of the rights under the share purchase agreement, the employee is a transitional resident; and
- (b) by an amount calculated using the formula—
- $$\text{value before reduction} \times \frac{\text{period employed as non-resident}}{\text{period employed}}.$$

Defined in this Act: amount, associated person, employee, employer, income year, non-resident, pay, share, share purchase agreement, share purchase scheme, transitional resident

Compare: 2004 No 35 s CE 2

CE 3 Restrictions on disposal of shares under share purchase agreements

Effect of restrictions

- (1) When the benefit to an employee under a share purchase agreement is being valued, a restriction in the agreement on the disposal of the shares is taken into account only if the restriction is of a kind described in subsection (2) or (3).

First restriction

- (2) The first restriction is one that applies for a period that ends—
- (a) at least 8 years after the end of the tax year in which the employee receives the benefit; or
- (b) with the date of the employee's death.

Second restriction

- (3) The second restriction is one that—
- (a) applies for a period that ends—
- (i) at least 8 years after the end of the tax year in which the employee receives the benefit; or
- (ii) with the date of the employee's death; and
- (b) provides that an employee who ends their employment or service before the end of the period must unconditionally transfer some or all of the shares to the employer or to the person from whom the employee acquired them, either without consideration or for a consideration that is no more than that paid by the employee.

Transfers of shares under relationship agreements

- (4) If a share purchase agreement does not restrict an employee from transferring the shares under a relationship agreement, but the disposal of the shares by the person to whom the shares are transferred is restricted for a period that ends at least 8 years after the end of the tax year in which the employee would otherwise have received the benefit or after the death of the employee, then the restriction is treated as applying to the employee.

Defined in this Act: employee, employer, pay, relationship agreement, share, share purchase agreement, tax year, year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s CE 3

CE 4 Adjustments to value of benefits under share purchase agreements

The Commissioner may at any time adjust the previously determined value of a benefit under a share purchase agreement if the value is reduced because—

- (a) a restriction on disposal exists when the employee disposes of the shares that was not taken into account in valuing the benefit; or
- (b) further consideration is required for the shares; or
- (c) the shares are reacquired either without consideration or for a consideration no more than that paid by the employee.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, employee, pay, share, share purchase agreement

The Commissioner must classify the income by apportioning it under subsection (3) or by making a decision under subsection (4).

Apportionment

- (3) In apportioning the income, the Commissioner must make an appropriate apportionment of the value of the stock of products on hand at the start and end of the income year and must take into account the matters the Commissioner considers relevant and appropriate, including—

- (a) the capital employed, or the expenditure or losses incurred, in the mining operations, associated mining operations, and processing of the specified minerals or the use of the specified minerals in a manufacturing operation;

Record of reasons for, and distance of, journeys

DE 8 Logbook term

Meaning of logbook term

- (1) A logbook term is a period to which the proportion of business use of a motor vehicle established by the logbook applies. The term lasts up to 3 years and starts and ends as described in subsections (2) and (3).

Start of term

- (2) A logbook term starts on the date that is the latest of the following days:
- (a) the first day of the income year in which a person starts to keep a logbook;
  - (b) the day that a person acquires the motor vehicle, unless the vehicle is a replacement vehicle, which is dealt with in section DE 11;
  - (c) the day immediately after the last day of the previous logbook term;
  - (d) a day that a person specifies.

End of term

- (3) The logbook term ends on the date that is the earliest of the following days:
- (a) the day that a person disposes of the motor vehicle without replacing it;
  - (b) the day that is 3 years after the first day of the income year in which the logbook term started;
  - (c) a day that the Commissioner specifies under section DE 9;
  - (d) a day that a person specifies.

Defined in this Act: business use, Commissioner, income year, logbook term, motor vehicle, year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s DE 8

DE 9 Inadequate logbookNon-representative logbook proportion*

- (1) If the Commissioner considers that the proportion of business use recorded in a logbook does not, or does no longer, represent the average use of a motor vehicle for business purposes during an income year that falls within a logbook term, the Commissioner may,—
  - (a) within the logbook term, direct a person to keep a further logbook and specify another 90 day period in the logbook term for keeping the logbook; or
  - (b) treat a person as not having kept a logbook that applies to the logbook term.

Further logbook

- (2) If the Commissioner directs a person to keep a further logbook, and the proportion of business use calculated under that logbook is less by at least 20% than the proportion under the first logbook, the Commissioner may find that the first logbook—
  - (a) represented the average use of the motor vehicle for business purposes for only part of the logbook term; or
  - (b) did not represent that use at all.

Partly representative logbook

- (3) If subsection (2)(a) applies, the Commissioner may determine a date on which the application of the first logbook ended, and the further logbook applies to a new logbook term that starts on the day after that date.

Non-representative logbook

- (4) If subsection (2)(b) applies, the Commissioner may direct that the further logbook applies for the logbook term to which the first logbook applied.

Defined in this Act: business use, Commissioner, income year, logbook term, motor vehicle

Compare: 2004 No 35 s DE 9

DE 10 Variance during logbook term

If, in any month during a logbook term, the proportion of business use in that month is less by at least 20% than the proportion established by the logbook, and the proportion of business use recorded in the logbook no longer represents the average use of the motor vehicle for business purposes, the logbook term must end on the last day of that month.

Defined in this Act: business use, logbook term, motor vehicle

Compare: 2004 No 35 s DE 10

DE 11 Replacement vehicles

For the purpose of establishing the proportion of business use of a motor vehicle, a replacement vehicle is treated in the same way as the vehicle it replaces if—

- (a) the logbook is likely to be representative of the average travel for business purposes for the remainder of the logbook term; and
- (b) from the date of replacement, a person keeps a record of the total distance travelled by the replacement vehicle for each income year, or part of an income year, of the remaining logbook term.

Defined in this Act: business use, income year, logbook term, motor vehicle

Mileage rates

DE 12 Mileage rate method

Using mileage rates

- (1) If a person's business travel is 5,000 kilometres or less in an income year, they may use the mileage rate method to calculate the expenditure or loss on a motor vehicle that represents the proportion of business use of the vehicle.

Amount of deduction

- (2) Under the mileage rate method, the person must keep details of the business use of the motor vehicle and calculate the mileage travelled for business purposes for the income year. The amount of the deduction under this method is found by multiplying the mileage rate by the distance that reflects the proportion of business use of the vehicle for the income year.

Setting mileage rates

- (3) For the purposes of this section, the Commissioner must from time to time set and publish a mileage rate.

  - (b) non-specified livestock:
  - (c) high-priced livestock:
  - (d) bloodstock.

Defined in this Act: bloodstock, business, high-priced livestock, non-specified livestock, specified livestock

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 1

EC 2 Valuation of livestock

Valuation method

- (1) A person must determine the value of their livestock at the end of each income year by a method that is available under this subpart for them to use.

Use of value

- (2) The value determined under subsection (1) is—
- (a) the closing value of the livestock for the income year for the purposes of section CH 1 (Adjustment for closing values of trading stock, livestock, and excepted financial arrangements); and
  - (b) the opening value of the livestock for the next income year for the purposes of section DB 49 (Adjustment for opening values of trading stock, livestock, and excepted financial arrangements).

Defined in this Act: income year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 2

EC 3 Livestock valuation methodsSpecified livestock*

- (1) The value of specified livestock is determined under sections EC 6 to EC 27.

Non-specified livestock

- (2) The value of non-specified livestock is determined under sections EC 28 to EC 31.

High-priced livestock

- (3) The value of high-priced livestock is determined under sections EC 32 to EC 37.

Bloodstock

- (4) The value of bloodstock is determined under sections EC 38 to EC 48.

EC 4 Transfers of livestock within wholly-owned groupsWhen this section applies*

- (a) a group company (company A) originally acquires and holds the livestock; and

- (b) from the time it is acquired to the end of the income year, the livestock is held within the group by a company or companies that are resident in New Zealand; and
- (c) through transfers within the group, another group company (company B) holds the livestock at the end of the income year; and
- (d) company A and company B remain part of the group at the end of the income year; and
- (e) either—
  - (i) the income years of company A and company B end on the same date; or
  - (ii) they end on different dates, and the Commissioner has approved both dates as corresponding to the end of a business cycle and as necessary to avoid material distortion of net income that would occur if the income years ended on the same date.

Choice of treatment

- (2) Company B may choose to value the livestock at the cost of the livestock to company A.

When company stops being part of group

- (3) If the companies stop being part of the same wholly-owned group, company B is treated as disposing of and reacquiring the livestock for its market value at the time. If the market value of the livestock cannot be determined separately from other property, its market value at the time company B acquired it is treated as its value.

Defined in this Act: business, Commissioner, company, income year, net income, resident in New Zealand, wholly-owned group of companies

  - (a) no value, if the livestock is donated to the recipient;
  - (b) the value of the consideration provided by the recipient.

Treatment by recipient

- (3) The recipient must treat the livestock as having, on the day of the transfer of the livestock,—
  - (a) no value, if the livestock is donated to the recipient;

EC 8 Restrictions on use of herd schemeHerd scheme: first restriction on use of other method*

- (1) A valuation method other than the herd scheme is not available to a person, in an income year, for animals of a class for which they use the herd scheme if the animals remaining to be valued under the herd scheme would be reduced to a number smaller than the number of any animals of the class that the person valued under the herd scheme at the end of the previous income year.

Herd scheme: second restriction on use of other method

- (2) A person who values livestock of a particular type under the herd scheme must value all male breeding stock of that type under the herd scheme in an income year if, in the income year, they also value any livestock of that type under the national standard cost scheme or under the cost price method.

National standard cost scheme: second restriction on use of scheme

- (2) The national standard cost scheme is not available to a person to value specified livestock if, in the income year before the income year in which their election under section EC 7(2) is to apply, they have valued specified livestock under the cost price method, and have not given at least 2 income years' notice in the way described in section EC 11 to the Commissioner of their election to value specified livestock under the national standard cost scheme.

National standard cost scheme: third restriction on use of scheme

- (3) The national standard cost scheme is not available to a person to value a type of specified livestock in an income year if they have made specified livestock available to another person under a profit-sharing arrangement and, in the income year, the other person, or another person has also made livestock of the type available under the profit-sharing arrangement, values any livestock of the type under the cost price method.

National standard cost scheme: fourth restriction on use of scheme

- (4) The national standard cost scheme is not available to a person to value specified livestock in an income year if—

- (a) they have bailed the livestock to another person under a long-term bailment not made under a profit-sharing arrangement; or
- (b) they have leased the livestock to another person under a long-term bailment not made under a profit-sharing arrangement.

National standard cost scheme: fifth restriction on use of scheme

- (5) The national standard cost scheme is not available to a person to value specified livestock in an income year if a determination made under section EC 24 precludes the use of the national standard cost scheme for the livestock.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, cost price, income year, lease, long-term bailment, national standard cost scheme, profit-sharing arrangement, specified livestock, type

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 9

Cost price method: second restriction on use of method

- (2) The cost price method is not available to a person to value specified livestock if, in the income year before the income year in which their election under section EC 7(2) is to apply, they have valued specified livestock under the national standard cost scheme and have not given 2 income years' notice in the way described in section EC 11 to the Commissioner of their election to value specified livestock under the cost price method.

Cost price method: third restriction on use of method

- (3) The cost price method is not available to a person to value specified livestock in an income year if they have bailed or leased their specified livestock to another person, unless the livestock is bailed or leased under a profit-sharing arrangement.

Cost price method: fourth restriction on use of method

- (4) The cost price method is not available to a person to value specified livestock in an income year if they have bailed or leased their specified livestock to another person—
- (a) under a long-term bailment; or
  - (b) under a short-term bailment made between associated persons in which the consideration paid to the bailee is not a fair market value.

Cost price method: fifth restriction on use of method

- (5) The cost price method is not available to a person to value a type of specified livestock in an income year if they have made specified livestock available to another person under a profit-sharing arrangement and, in the income year, the other person, or another person has also made livestock of the type available under the profit-sharing arrangement, values any livestock of the type under the national standard cost scheme.

  - (b) an election to adopt a herd value ratio or the Chatham Islands adjustment to the herd value ratio for livestock of any type when the income year is the first income year in which the particular livestock is valued under the herd scheme, as described in sections EC 17 to EC 19.

When 2 years' notice required

- (3) For the elections described in this subsection, a person must give notice by the date of filing their return of income for an income year that is at least 2 income years before the income year in which the election is first to apply. The elections are—
- (a) an election to stop valuing specified livestock of a particular type under the herd scheme, except when the person continues to value some livestock of that type under the herd scheme or when another valuation method is available, as described in section EC 14(2); and
  - (b) an election, after the herd scheme has been adopted, to adopt a herd value ratio or recalculated herd value ratio or the Chatham Islands adjustment for any livestock type, as described in sections EC 17 to EC 19; and

EC 12 Interests in livestock

Joint election of valuation method

- (1) When specified livestock is owned jointly by 2 or more persons, the owners must choose a valuation method. For the election to be effective, it must be made jointly by all the owners.

Ineffective election

- (2) If there is no effective election, specified livestock owned jointly is valued as follows:
  - (a) if the owners bail or lease the livestock to another person during the income year, under the market value method; or
  - (b) if the owners enter into a profit-sharing arrangement for the livestock, under the market value method; or
  - (c) in any other case, under the national standard cost scheme.

Profit-sharing arrangements

- (3) If the method used in an income year to calculate the value of livestock under a profit-sharing arrangement is the national standard cost scheme or the cost price method, all the following are treated as the single owner of the livestock:
  - (a) the person who owns the livestock; and
  - (b) the person who has the use of the livestock; and
  - (c) any other person who has made livestock of the same type available to the person referred to in paragraph (b) under a profit-sharing arrangement.

Partnerships interests

- (4) For the purpose of an election under this section, a person's interest in a partnership that owns livestock is treated separately from any other interest that the person has in livestock.

Separate elections are required for the person's partnership interest and for their other livestock interests. The person is not required to choose the same valuation method in both cases.

Defined in this Act: cost price, income year, lease, national standard cost scheme, profit-sharing arrangement, specified livestock, type

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 12

EC 13 Changes in partnership interests

When this section applies

- (1) This section applies when—

  - (b) a new partnership is formed (the new partnership); and
  - (c) at the end of the income year in which the new partnership is formed, more than 50% of the property of the new partnership is owned by persons who, during that income year or in the previous income year,—
    - (i) owned all the property of the old partnership; and
    - (ii) derived income in either income year from specified livestock of the same type as that owned by the new partnership.

Valuation

- (2) The value of specified livestock owned by the new partnership must be taken into account in the way the old partnership determines the value of livestock of the particular type at the end of the income year in which the new partnership is formed. If the old partnership has no specified livestock of the type on hand at the end of the income year, the value is taken into account as the old partnership would have determined it, had it owned specified livestock of that type.

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 13

Herd schemeEC 14 Herd schemeElection to use herd scheme

- (1) A person may choose to value specified livestock of any type and class under the herd scheme.

Election of other method

- (2) A person who has chosen to value livestock of a particular type under the herd scheme may nevertheless value livestock of that type by another method, subject to the restrictions described in section EC 8.

Election to leave herd scheme

- (3) A person who wishes to stop valuing livestock of a particular type under the herd scheme must give 2 income years' notice to the Commissioner in the way described in section EC 11. However, notice is not required if the person values livestock of that type by another method that is available for use in conjunction with the herd scheme.

Defined in this Act: class, Commissioner, herd scheme, income year, notice, specified livestock, type

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 14

EC 15 Determining national average market valuesDetermined by Commissioner*

- (1) The Commissioner must determine a national average market value for an income year for each class of specified livestock set out in schedule 17, column 2 (Types and classes of livestock).

Application to income year

- (2) The value applies to the income year for which it is determined, whether the income year started before, on, or after the date on which the determination is made.

Defined in this Act: class, Commissioner, income year, national average market value, specified livestock

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 15

EC 16 Valuation under herd schemeClosing value of herd livestock*

- (1) The closing value of herd livestock in an income year is either its herd value for the income year or, if a herd value ratio is adopted, its herd value multiplied by its herd value ratio.

Opening value of herd livestock

- (2) The opening value of herd livestock in an income year is determined under subsection (3) if a person—
- (a) has valued the livestock under the herd scheme in the previous income year; and
  - (b) has the livestock on hand at the start of the income year; and
  - (c) has not chosen to value the livestock by a different method for the income year.

Determining opening value

- (3) The opening value of herd livestock in an income year is either its herd value for the income year or, if the person has adopted a herd value ratio, its herd value for the income year multiplied by its herd value ratio for the previous income year. This subsection overrides section DB 49(5) (Adjustment for opening values of trading stock, livestock, and excepted financial arrangements).

Defined in this Act: herd livestock, herd scheme, herd value, herd value ratio, income year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 16

EC 17 Herd value ratioAdoption of herd value ratio*

- (1) A herd value ratio is available for a person to use in determining the value of specified livestock in the herd scheme. A person may adopt a herd value ratio for herd livestock of a particular type by giving notice in the way described in section EC 11. A person may also adopt a recalculated ratio by giving notice in the same way.

Chatham Islands livestock

- (2) Herd value ratios calculated under subsection (5) do not apply to livestock on the Chatham Islands. The Chatham Islands adjustment to the herd value ratio is dealt with in section EC 19.

When herd value ratio applies

- (3) When a person adopts a herd value ratio for livestock of a particular type, the ratio applies in the income year specified in the notice and in later income years until—
- (a) the income year in which it is superseded by a recalculation of the ratio; or
  - (b) the income year in which the person stops valuing, under an election, livestock of that type under the herd scheme; or
  - (c) the income year following 2 consecutive income years in which the person has not valued livestock of that type under the herd scheme.

Assessment of average value

- (4) For the purpose of calculating a herd value ratio, a person must obtain from a recognised livestock valuer an assessment of the value of an average animal of that person in each applicable class of livestock. The value is determined as at the 30 April that is closest to the day on which the national average market values are set.

Calculation of herd value ratio

- (5) The herd value ratio for livestock of a particular type is calculated by using the formula in subsection (6) and rounding the result of the calculation to the nearest of the following figures: 0.9, 1.0, 1.1, 1.2, 1.3.

Formula

- (6) The formula is—

$$\frac{\Sigma(\text{average value} \times \text{number})}{\Sigma(\text{herd value} \times \text{number})}.$$

Definition of items in formula

- (7) In the formula,—
- (a)  $\Sigma$  is the total of the individual calculations for all applicable classes of livestock type valued under the herd scheme:

- (b) average value is the average value of an animal in a class as described in subsection (4):
- (c) number is the number of all livestock of that class on hand at the end of the income year, including livestock that are not in the herd scheme, but not including high-priced livestock:
- (d) herd value is the herd value of livestock for a class.

Defined in this Act: class, herd livestock, herd scheme, herd value, herd value ratio, high-priced livestock, income year, livestock on the Chatham Islands, national average market value, notice, specified livestock, type

EC 18 Inaccurate herd value ratio

The Commissioner may require a person who is using an inaccurate herd value ratio for a type of livestock in an income year to recalculate the herd value ratio. If the recalculation differs from the existing ratio for the income year, the Commissioner may amend the assessment of income tax for the income year and any later income year and may substitute the recalculated herd value ratio for that previously applied by the person.

Defined in this Act: assessment, Commissioner, herd value ratio, income tax, income year, type

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 18

EC 19 Chatham Islands adjustment to herd value

Adjustment for herd livestock on Chatham Islands

- (1) A person may adopt an adjustment for herd livestock on the Chatham Islands by giving notice in the way described in section EC 11.

When adjustment applies

- (2) When a person adopts a Chatham Islands adjustment as a herd value ratio, it applies as a herd value ratio to a particular type of livestock on the Chatham Islands at the end of the income year specified in the notice and in later income years until—
  - (a) the income year in which the person stops valuing, under an election, livestock of that type in the herd scheme; or

- (b) the income year following 2 consecutive income years in which the person has not valued livestock of that type on the Chatham Islands under the herd scheme.

Setting adjustment

- (3) The Commissioner must set and may vary from time to time the level of Chatham Islands adjustment to the herd value ratio that applies in an income year.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, herd livestock, herd scheme, herd value, herd value ratio, income year, livestock on the Chatham Islands, notice, type

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 19

  - (a) stops deriving income from specified livestock; and
  - (b) disposes of herd livestock before the 1 February that precedes the determination of the national average market values for the income year; and
  - (c) gives notice to the Commissioner before that 1 February that they choose that this section applies to the valuation of the herd livestock.

Value of herd livestock

- (2) The value of herd livestock that is disposed of is either the herd value of the livestock for the previous income year or, if the person has adopted a herd value ratio, the herd value multiplied by the herd value ratio applying in the previous income year.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, herd livestock, herd value, herd value ratio, income, income year, national average market value, notice, specified livestock

Average cost

- (2) For the purposes of subsection (1), the determination must establish a process for finding an average cost to be applied to all specified livestock valued under the national standard cost scheme. The process must take into account—
  - (a) the number of homebred livestock that a person has on hand at any time in an income year, applying to the number the relevant national standard costs determined under section EC 23:
  - (b) in addition to paragraph (a), the number in each category of livestock listed in schedule 18, column 2 that a person has on hand at any time in an income year, applying to the number the relevant national standard costs determined under section EC 23:

Defined in this Act: cost price, income year, specified livestock

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 25

    - (ii) bringing land into production, or substantially increased production, for the purpose of deriving income from non-specified livestock; or

Valuation of high-priced livestockEC 32 Application of sections EC 33 to EC 37

Sections EC 33 to EC 37

- (1) Sections EC 33 to EC 37 set out the rules for valuing high-priced livestock.

Person chooses valuation method

- (2) A person may choose to use either the straight-line method or the diminishing value method to value high-priced livestock.

Diminishing value method

- (3) If the person chooses to use the diminishing value method, they must give notice to the Commissioner that they are using the method at the time of filing their return of income for the first income year in which the value of the high-priced livestock is determined under section EC 34. The person cannot revoke their election to use the diminishing value method for the livestock.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, high-priced livestock, income year, notice, return of income

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 32

EC 33 Determining depreciation percentagesDetermined by Commissioner*

- (1) The Commissioner must determine a depreciation percentage for an income year for each type, class, or category of high-priced livestock.

Purpose

- (2) The percentage represents the average percentage decline in the value of livestock of the type, class, or category.

Factors

- (3) The Commissioner must take into account—
- (a) the average cost of livestock of the type, class, or category; and
  - (b) the estimated useful life of the livestock; and
  - (c) the average estimated residual market value of the livestock.

Defined in this Act: class, Commissioner, depreciation percentage, estimated residual market value, estimated useful life, high-priced livestock, income year, type

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 33

EC 34 General ruleValue in income year of purchase and later income years*

- (1) The closing value of high-priced livestock at the end of the income year in which it is bought is its cost price minus the reduction applying in the income year. In a later income year, the value is its opening value minus the reduction applying in the income year until the value reaches or falls below the national average market value for the class to which the livestock belongs.

Straight-line method

- (2) When a person has chosen to use the straight-line method, the reduction is calculated using the formula—cost price  $\times$  depreciation percentage.

Diminishing value method

- (3) When a person has chosen to use the diminishing value method, the reduction is calculated as follows:
- (a) in the first income year in which the election applies, the cost price multiplied by the diminishing value equivalent of the depreciation percentage for the income year;
  - (b) in later income years, the opening value of the livestock multiplied by the diminishing value equivalent of the depreciation percentage for the income year.

Meaning of diminishing value equivalent

- (4) In this section, diminishing value equivalent, for a depreciation percentage, means the diminishing value depreciation rate in schedule 12, column 1 (Old banded rates of depreciation) to which the amount in column 2 equal to the depreciation percentage is the straight-line equivalent. Two qualifications are—
- (a) if no amount in column 2 is equal to the depreciation percentage, the amount closest to it is taken; and
  - (b) if 2 amounts in column 2 are equidistant from the depreciation percentage, the depreciation percentage is rounded down.

Exclusions

- (5) This section does not apply in the cases described in sections EC 35 and EC 36.

Defined in this Act: amount, class, cost price, depreciation percentage, diminishing value equivalent, high-priced livestock, income year, national average market value

- (a) does not expect to use for breeding for that or any later income year; and
  - (b) does not intend to dispose of to any other person to use for breeding.

Closing value

- (3) The closing value of the high-priced livestock at the end of the income year is determined as follows:
- (a) when the person values any specified livestock of that type under the herd scheme for the income year, the value of the animal under the herd scheme; and
  - (b) when the person values all specified livestock of that type that is older than 1 year under the national standard cost scheme or the cost price method, the national average market value for the income year of livestock of the class to which the animal belongs; and
  - (c) when the person values all specified livestock of that type that is older than 1 year under the market value method or the replacement price method, the market value or replacement price of the animal at the end of the income year.

Valuation in later income years

- (4) In later income years, the animal that was high-priced livestock is treated as the person's specified livestock and is valued under the valuation method the person chooses for specified livestock of the type to which the animal belongs.

Entry into herd scheme in later income years

- (5) This subsection applies if, in a later income year (year A), the person values any specified livestock of the same type as the animal under the herd scheme and, in the next year, values the animal under the herd scheme. The animal is treated as if it were valued under the herd scheme at the end of year A.

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EC 35

  - (b) an amount of depreciation recovery income is treated as being derived in the income year for which it is calculated.

Allocation of deduction for depreciation loss

- (5) A person who in an income year uses an item for research or development or for market development that gives rise to a deduction allocated under section EJ 22 (Deductions for market development: product of research, development), and as a result has an amount of depreciation loss for the item for the income year, may choose to allocate all or part of the deduction for the depreciation loss—
- (a) to an income year after the income year for which the person has the depreciation loss; and
  - (b) in the way required by section EJ 23 (Allocation of deductions for research, development, and resulting market development).

- (d) if the person did not make an election under this section,—
  - (i) the foreign source income would be allocated to their previous income year; or
  - (ii) the foreign expenditure would be a deduction allocated to the previous income year if the only income of the person were foreign source income to which this section applies.

- (b) for a person who ceases to be a cash basis person, the amount that would have been expenditure incurred by the person under the financial arrangement if the person had been required to use a spreading method in the period starting on the date on which they became a party to the arrangement and ending on the last day of the income year for which the calculation is made.

- (1) A foreign company is a controlled foreign company (CFC) if any of the following tests is met:
- (a) there is a group of 5 or fewer New Zealand residents whose total control interests in the company are more than 50% in any one of the control interest categories:
  - (b) a single New Zealand resident holds a control interest of 40% or more unless at the same time—

- (2) The direct control interest in each control interest category is the percentage of the total that the person holds.

Measurement of available subscribed capital

- (3) When the direct control interest in the category in subsection (1)(a) is calculated, the percentage is the total of the available subscribed capital per share calculated under the slice rule of the shares held as a percentage of the total available subscribed capital per share calculated under the slice rule of all shares in the company.

Varying decision-making rights

- (4) When the direct control interest in the category in subsection (1)(b) is calculated, if the percentage varies between the rights described in the different paragraphs of the definition of shareholder decision-making rights in section YA 1 (Definitions), the highest percentage is taken.

- (9) If there are 2 or more smallest groups with equal greatest total control interests in the CFC, the attribution is made in full to each group.

No double counting

- (10) Despite subsection (9), for the purpose of determining whether a foreign company is a CFC, a direct control interest may be counted only once.

- (3) However, if the percentage varies between the different categories, the person's direct income interest is the highest.

Measurement of available subscribed capital

- (4) When the direct income interest in the category in subsection (1)(a) is calculated, the percentage is the total of the available subscribed capital per share calculated under the slice rule of the shares held as a percentage of the total available subscribed capital per share calculated under the slice rule of all shares in the company.

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 11

EX 12 Reduction of total income interestsApplication of this section*

Proportional reduction

- (2) Each person's income interest for the period is reduced to the amount calculated using the formula—

$$\text{income interest before reduction} \times \frac{100}{\text{total income interests before reduction}}$$

Defined in this Act: accounting period, amount, CFC, income interest, shareholder
Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 12

EX 13 Income interests of partnersWhen this section applies*

- (1) Solely for the purpose of applying the 10% threshold in section EX 14, and the equivalent test in sections EX 34(b) and EX 58(1)(a), a person's income interest in a CFC is increased by each income interest in the CFC for the accounting period of a person associated with the person.

Exception

- (2) Despite subsection (1), the income interest of an associate is not counted if the associate is a CFC.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, associated person, CFC, income interest

EX 16 Income interests for certain purposesWhen this section applies*

- (1) This section applies for the purposes of determining the attributed CFC income or loss of a person for a period if the person holds an income interest in the CFC on a day in the period.

Zero income interest

- (2) For the purposes of calculating the attributed CFC income or loss of a person for a period, the person has an income interest in a CFC of zero on a day in the period if, on the day, the person is—
  - (a) a non-resident;
  - (b) a transitional resident.

  - (b) section CQ 2(3) (When attributed CFC income arises), which treats any attributed CFC income as being derived while the person deriving it is a New Zealand resident; or
  - (c) section CQ 5(4) (When FIF income arises), which treats any foreign investment fund (FIF) income as being derived while the person deriving it is a New Zealand resident.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, attributed CFC income, attributed repatriation, CFC, dividend, FIF income, income interest, New Zealand resident, non-resident, transitional resident

EX 17 Income interest if variations within period

When this section applies

- (1) This section applies when a person's income interest in a CFC, calculated under sections EX 8 to EX 16, varies between days in a period.

Weighted average

- (2) The person's income interest for the period is the total of the amounts for the period, each of which is calculated using the formula in subsection (3) for a day in the period.

Formula

- (3) The formula is—

$$\frac{\text{income interest for day}}{\text{days in period.}}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (4) In the formula,—
- (a) income interest for day is—
- (i) the income interest during the day, if the income interest does not vary during the day:
- (ii) the income interest at the start of the day, if the income interest varies during the day:
- (b) days in period is the number of days in the period.

Defined in this Act: CFC, income interest

Calculation of attributed CFC income or loss

EX 18 Formula for calculating attributed CFC income or loss

If a person has attributed CFC income under section CQ 2 (When attributed CFC income arises) or an attributed CFC loss under section DN 2 (When attributed CFC loss arises), the amount of a person's attributed CFC income or loss from a CFC for an accounting period is calculated using the formula—

$$\begin{aligned} & \text{person's income interest for accounting period} \\ & \times \text{branch equivalent income or loss of CFC} \\ & \text{for accounting period.} \end{aligned}$$

Defined in this Act: accounting period, amount, attributed CFC income, attributed CFC loss, branch equivalent income, CFC, income interest, loss

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 18

EX 19 Taxable distribution from non-complying trust

Application of this section

- (1) This section applies when—
- (a) a CFC derives a taxable distribution from a non-complying trust in an accounting period; and
  - (b) a person has attributed CFC income or loss from the CFC for the period, or would have if the taxable distribution were included in the CFC's branch equivalent income.

Additional attributed CFC income

- (2) The taxable distribution is excluded under section EX 21(32) when calculating the CFC's branch equivalent income or loss, and instead the person has additional attributed CFC income.

Calculation of additional attributed CFC income

- (3) The amount of the additional attributed CFC income is calculated using the formula—
- $$\begin{aligned} & \text{person's income interest in CFC for accounting period} \\ & \times \text{taxable distribution.} \end{aligned}$$

Non-complying trust tax rate

- (4) The person is liable for income tax on the additional attributed CFC income at the rate in schedule 1 (Basic tax rates: income tax, ESCT, RWT, and attributed fringe benefits) that applies to amounts under section HC 19 (Taxable distributions from non-complying trusts).

Disclosure restrictions on grey list CFCs

- (5) No additional attributed CFC income arises under this section to the extent to which section EZ 31 (Disclosure restrictions on grey list CFCs before 2011–12) applies.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, amount, attributed CFC income, branch equivalent income, CFC, income interest, income tax, loss, non-complying trust, taxable distribution

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 19

EX 20 Reduction in attributed CFC lossApplication of this section: no economic loss*

- (1) This section applies when—
- (a) a person has an amount of attributed CFC loss; and
  - (b) the person suffers no, or substantially no, corresponding economic loss, whether because of a call option, a put option, or any other reason.

Application of this section: attributed CFC loss excessive

- (2) This section also applies if—
- (a) a person has an amount of attributed CFC loss; and
  - (b) the amount is more than any corresponding economic loss of the person, whether because of the application of the rules for calculating the person's income interest or for any other reason.

Reduction to economic loss

- (3) The attributed CFC loss is reduced to be equal to the economic loss, if any.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributed CFC loss, income interest

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 20

Calculation of branch equivalent income or lossEX 21 Branch equivalent income or loss: calculation rulesRules set out in this section

- (1) For the purpose of calculating the attributed CFC income or loss of a person (the taxpayer), the branch equivalent income or loss of the CFC for an accounting period is calculated under the rules in this section.

CFC treated as New Zealand resident

- (2) The rules in this Act are applied as if the CFC were always a New Zealand resident, and—
- (a) the CFC's branch equivalent income for the accounting period is equal to the CFC's net income for the period; and
  - (b) the CFC's branch equivalent loss for the accounting period is equal to the CFC's net loss for the period.

Modifications to rules

- (3) However, the rules in the Act are modified for the purposes of the calculation by the following subsections.

Conversion to New Zealand dollars

- (4) The taxpayer must choose—
- (a) for all the calculations to be done in New Zealand dollars; or
  - (b) for all the calculations to be done in the currency of the CFC's financial accounts; and if the CFC has no financial accounts, the currency used is that of the CFC's country of residence, the result being then converted into New Zealand dollars at the average of the close of trading spot exchange rates for the 15th day of each complete month that falls in the period.

Consent for change of currency

- (5) Having chosen a currency, the taxpayer must use the same currency for calculating branch equivalent income or loss for the CFC for each later consecutive accounting period, unless the Commissioner allows the taxpayer to choose again.

Change for commercial purpose

- (6) The Commissioner may consent to a change under subsection (5) only if satisfied that—
- (a) the taxpayer's main purpose in changing is a commercial one, and for this purpose, the reducing of tax is not a commercial purpose; and
  - (b) the change does not have an effect of defeating the intent and application of subpart CQ (Attributed income from foreign equity) or DN (Attributed losses from foreign equity) or this subpart.

New Zealand currency for financial arrangements

- (7) Despite subsections (4) to (6), New Zealand currency calculations must be used to calculate that part of the branch equivalent income or loss attributable to financial arrangements if—
- (a) the total value of financial arrangements to which the CFC is a party is more than $1,000,000 at any time during the relevant accounting period, applying section EW 17(2)(b) (Straight-line method) to measure the values; or
  - (b) the CFC's total net foreign exchange loss attributable to financial arrangements, calculated under subsections (4) to (6) for the accounting period, is more than $100,000.

Limit to subsection (7)

- (8) Subsection (7) does not apply to a financial arrangement if—
- (a) it is a variable principal debt instrument; and
  - (b) all the rights and obligations of all the parties to the financial arrangement are expressed in the currency chosen under subsection (4)(b); and
  - (c) no other party to the financial arrangement is associated with the CFC; and
  - (d) no person enters into the financial arrangement under an arrangement that has a purpose of defeating the application of subsection (7).

Opening cost base: tangible assets: first period

- (9) If the taxpayer had no attributed CFC income or loss from the CFC for the previous accounting period, the taxpayer must choose whether to measure the cost base at the start of an accounting period of premises, plant, machinery, equipment, and trading stock of the CFC at—
- (a) historical cost minus any accumulated amounts of depreciation loss, or another value used by the CFC as the starting value for the period for income tax calculations in the country in which the CFC is resident, but only if the value is below market value; or
  - (b) the starting value that would be used under this Act if the CFC had always been a New Zealand resident.

Opening cost base: tangible assets: later periods

- (10) If the taxpayer had attributed CFC income or loss from the CFC for the previous period, the cost base at the start of an accounting period of premises, plant, machinery, equipment, and trading stock of the CFC is the closing value at the end of the previous period used to calculate the income or loss.

Opening cost base: financial arrangements: first period

- (11) If the taxpayer had no attributed CFC income or loss from the CFC for the previous accounting period, the taxpayer must choose to calculate the consideration under the financial arrangements rules for a financial arrangement at the start of an accounting period, at—
- (a) the market value of the financial arrangement; or
  - (b) the absolute value calculated using the formula—consideration paid to the CFC + expenditure – consideration paid by the CFC – income.

Definition of items in formula

- (12) In the formula,—
- (a) consideration paid to the CFC is the consideration paid to the CFC for all periods before the accounting period:
  - (b) expenditure is expenditure that would have been incurred under the financial arrangements rules for all periods before the accounting period if the CFC had been resident in New Zealand:
  - (c) consideration paid by the CFC is the consideration paid by the CFC for all periods before the accounting period:
  - (d) income is income that would have been derived under the financial arrangements rules for all periods before the accounting period if the CFC had been resident in New Zealand.

Provisions that do not apply

- (13) The following provisions do not apply:
- (a) the consolidation rules:

- (b) section CB 27 (Income equalisation schemes) and subparts DQ (Income equalisation schemes and environmental restoration accounts schemes) and EH (Income equalisation schemes):
- (c) sections CD 45 to CD 52 (which relate to the CFC attributed repatriation calculation rules) or subpart CQ (Attributed income from foreign equity) or DN (Attributed losses from foreign equity) or this subpart to the extent to which any of the sections or subparts would result in attributed CFC income, attributed CFC loss, or attributed repatriation for the CFC:
- (d) section CW 8 (Money lent to government of New Zealand):
- (e) section CW 40(1) (Local and regional promotion bodies):
- (f) sections DO 1 (Enhancements to land, except trees) and DO 2 (Erosion and shelter plantings):
- (g) sections EW 9 (Persons to whom financial arrangements rules apply) and EW 11(b) (What financial arrangements rules do not apply to):
- (h) subpart FE (Interest apportionment on thin capitalisation):
- (i) section GB 5 (Arrangements involving trust beneficiaries):
- (j) sections IA 2 to IA 9, subpart IC, and sections IP 3 to IP 7, IZ 4, and IZ 5 (which relate to the use of tax losses).

Business treated as if carried on in New Zealand

- (14) The following provisions apply as if the CFC's business activities were carried on in New Zealand:
- (a) sections CT 1 to CT 3, CT 5 to CT 7, CX 42, CX 43, CZ 8, DT 1 to DT 15, DT 17 to DT 19, and IS 5 (which relate to petroleum mining):
  - (b) sections DO 4 to DO 7, DO 12, DP 1 to DP 3, DP 8, and DP 11 (which relate to farming, aquacultural, and forestry expenditure):
  - (c) section EZ 16 (Amount of depreciation loss for plant or machinery additional to section EZ 15 amount):
  - (d) the definitions in subpart YA (General definitions) that specifically apply for the purposes of those sections.

Transfer pricing rules

- (15) Sections GC 6 to GC 14 (which relate to transfer pricing arrangements between associated persons) apply only to a transaction that has a purpose or effect of defeating any of the jurisdictional ring-fencing rules for CFC losses and tax credits in—
- (a) section DN 4 (Ring-fencing cap on deduction):
  - (b) section IQ 2 (Ring-fencing cap on attributed CFC net losses):
  - (c) section IQ 4 (Group companies using attributed CFC net losses):
  - (d) sections LK 1 to LK 7 (which relate to foreign tax credits and CFCs).

Also, when sections GC 6 to GC 14 are applied, the associated persons include persons associated under the parts of subpart YB (Associated persons and nominees) that apply for the purposes of the whole Act, excluding the 1973, 1988, and 1990 version provisions.

Dividends generally

- (16) Sections CW 9 to CW 11 (which relate to exempt income from equity) and CZ 13 (Treatment of units and interests in unit trusts and group investment funds on issue as at 1 April 1996) do not apply and dividends are income that is not exempt income, unless subsection (17) applies.

Dividends: exempt income

- (17) Despite subsection (16), dividends are exempt income of the CFC if—
- (a) the dividends are derived by the CFC from another CFC and the taxpayer has a 10% or greater income interest under sections EX 14 to EX 17 in the other CFC for an accounting period falling in the same relevant income year or the previous income year; or
  - (b) the dividends are from shares that are an attributing interest in a FIF of the CFC.

Benefits from money advanced

- (18) When section CC 7 (Consideration other than in money) is applied, the borrower is treated as if it carries on a business in New Zealand.

No tainting by association

- (19) Sections CB 9 to CB 13 (which relate to the disposal of land) and CV 1 (Group companies) do not apply to treat an amount derived by the CFC as income merely because of the activities of a person associated with the CFC if the associate is a non-resident.

Crown acquisition of land

- (20) The reference in section EI 8(1) (Disposal of land to the Crown) to the Crown includes any relevant government outside New Zealand.

Amount of depreciation loss recovered

- (21) When sections EE 48 to EE 52 (which relate to disposals and similar events) are applied, the CFC is treated as having had a deduction for an amount of depreciation loss, and to have an adjusted tax value accordingly, if an amount of depreciation loss has been deducted when calculating the CFC's branch equivalent income or loss for any period and the attributed CFC income or loss of any person.

GST and value-added taxes

- (22) When sections CX 1 (Goods and Services Tax), DB 2 (Goods and Services Tax), EE 45 (Consideration for purposes of section EE 44), EE 54 (Cost: GST), and EZ 17 (Additional amount of depreciation loss: between 16 December 1991 and 1 April 1994) are applied, references to output tax, input tax, or goods and services tax (GST) payable include a reference to the equivalent item arising under the value-added tax or other tax rules of a country or territory outside New Zealand if the rules have a similar intent and application to the New Zealand GST rules.

Government grants to businesses

- (23) When section DF 1 (Government grants to businesses) is applied, a reference to the New Zealand government includes a government outside New Zealand but, to the extent to which section DF 1 still does not apply to a grant or subsidy to the CFC from a government, the grant or subsidy is income of the CFC.

Subvention payments

- (24) If an amount is paid as consideration for the transfer of tax losses,—
- (a) it is income if derived by the CFC; and
  - (b) it is a deduction if payable by the CFC but only if paid to a person resident in the same country as the CFC and if deductible under the taxation law of that country.

Life insurers

- (25) Subsection (26) applies if—
- (a) the CFC itself carries on the business of providing life insurance; or
  - (b) shares in the CFC are held, directly or indirectly, by a foreign company (the parent company, in subsection (26)) that carries on the business of providing life insurance and those shares have to be taken into account under sections EX 8 to EX 13 to calculate the taxpayer's income interest in the CFC.

Policyholders

- (26) If the test in subsection (25) is met, the life insurance rules do not apply and the branch equivalent income or loss of the CFC is the amount actuarially determined to be the part of the CFC's net income or loss to which shareholders, and not policyholders in either the CFC or the parent company, are entitled.

When subsection (26) does not apply

- (27) Despite subsection (25), subsection (26) does not apply if the Commissioner—
- (a) considers that the amount calculated is not a reasonable reflection of the part attributable to shareholders; or
  - (b) has requested and not received sufficient information to enable the actuarial calculation to be reviewed.

Mineral mining activities

- (28) Sections BC 7, CU 1 to CU 29, CX 44 to CX 46, CZ 2, CZ 4, DU 1 to DU 12, DZ 12, IS 1 to IS 4 (which relate to mineral mining) apply, with any necessary modifications, if the CFC carries on activities outside New Zealand that are substantially the same as the mineral mining activities to which those sections apply.

Petroleum mining activities

- (29) Sections CT 1 to CT 3, CT 5, CX 42, CX 43, CZ 8, DT 1 to DT 15, DT 17 to DT 19, and IS 5 (which relate to petroleum mining) apply, with any necessary modifications, if the CFC carries on petroleum mining activities outside New Zealand that are substantially the same as the petroleum mining activities to which those sections apply.

Finance leases and specified leases

- (30) A lease entered into by the CFC before the start of the first accounting period in which the CFC is a CFC is neither a finance lease (subject to the financial arrangements rules and sections FA 6 to FA 11, which relate to finance leases), nor a specified lease (subject to sections FZ 2 to FZ 4, which relate to leases).

When subsection (30) does not apply

- (31) Subsection (30) does not apply if another party to the lease is either a CFC or a New Zealand resident.

Taxable distributions from non-complying trust

- (32) If the CFC gets a taxable distribution from a non-complying trust—
- (a) section HC 22 (Use of tax losses to reduce taxable distributions from non-complying trusts) does not apply; and
  - (b) the taxable distribution is not taken into account in calculating the CFC's branch equivalent income or loss; and
  - (c) section EX 19 applies.

CFCs with interest in FIFs

- (33) If the CFC has rights in a FIF,—
- (a) the rights are not prevented from being an attributing interest of the CFC in a FIF merely because the notional New Zealand residence of the CFC under subsection (2) causes section EX 34 to apply; and

- (b) the CFC's FIF income or loss is not taken into account in calculating the branch equivalent income; and
- (c) section EX 58 applies.

Transitional treatment of cross-border reinsurance

- (34) Section CZ 12 (General insurance with risk period straddling 1 July 1993) applies as if the reference to New Zealand were a reference to the CFC's country of residence.

Disclosure restrictions on grey list CFCs

- (35) A CFC has no amount of branch equivalent income or loss under this section for an accounting period to the extent to which section EZ 31 (Disclosure restrictions on grey list CFCs before 2011–12) applies.

Defined in this Act: absolute value, accounting period, adjusted tax value, amount, arrangement, associated person, attributed CFC income, attributed CFC loss, attributed repatriation, attributing interest, branch equivalent income, branch equivalent loss, business, CFC, close of trading spot exchange rate, Commissioner, consideration, consolidation rules, deduction, depreciation loss, dividend, exempt income, FIF, FIF income, finance lease, financial arrangement, financial arrangements rules, foreign company, GST, GST payable, income, income interest, income tax, income year, input tax, lease, life insurance, life insurance rules, loss, mineral, net income, net loss, New Zealand, New Zealand resident, non-complying trust, non-resident, output tax, pay, petroleum, resident in New Zealand, share, shareholder, specified lease, tax, taxable distribution, trading stock, variable principal debt instrument

No attributed income or loss

- (2) Sections CQ 2(1)(g) (When attributed CFC income arises) and DN 2(g) (When attributed CFC loss arises) provide that no attributed CFC income or attributed CFC loss arises from an unqualified grey list CFC.

CFCs with interest in FIFs: look-through approach

- (3) This section does not prevent FIF income or loss arising under section EX 58, if an unqualified grey list CFC has an interest in a FIF.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, attributed CFC income, attributed CFC loss, CFC, FIF, FIF income, grey list, grey list company, income tax, loss

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 22

EX 23 Tax concession grey list CFCsCriteria*

- (1) A CFC is a tax concession grey list CFC for an accounting period if—

  - (b) the CFC's liability for income tax has been reduced by applying any of the concessions listed in schedule 24, part B (International tax rules: grey list countries).

Attribution using country's tax rules

- (2) In the case of a tax concession grey list CFC,—
- (a) section EX 21 does not apply for the accounting period; and

    - (i) excluding any allowance for carrying forward prior period losses; and
    - (ii) adjusted to exclude the benefit of concessions listed in schedule 24, part B; and
    - (iii) converted to New Zealand dollars under section EX 21(4)(b).

Defined in this Act: accounting period, amount, branch equivalent income, CFC, grey list, grey list company, income tax, loss, net income, net loss, New Zealand

Change of residence of companiesEX 24 Companies moving to or from New ZealandCompanies becoming foreign

Companies ceasing to be foreign

- (2) If a foreign company ceases to be a foreign company, an accounting period of the company starts on the day when the company ceases to be a foreign company and the former accounting period ends on the previous day.

Pro-rating

- (3) If subsection (1) or (2) applies to shorten an accounting period of a CFC, a person with attributed CFC income or loss from the CFC for the period may choose to calculate the branch equivalent income or loss of the CFC—
- (a) using the results for the shortened period only; or
  - (b) by applying the pro-rating formula in subsection (4) to the results for the unshortened period.

Formula

- (4) The formula for calculating branch equivalent income or loss under subsection (3)(b) is—
- $$\frac{\text{unshortened period}}{\text{branch equivalent income or loss}} \times \frac{\text{days in shortened period}}{\text{days in unshortened period.}}$$

Defined in this Act: accounting period, attributed CFC income, branch equivalent income, CFC, company, foreign company, loss, New Zealand

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 25

Change of CFC's balance dateEX 25 Change of CFC's balance dateApplication of this section

- (1) This section applies when a person—
- (a) has an income interest in a CFC; and

- (b) has calculated attributed CFC income or loss or attributed repatriation from the CFC on the basis of 1 accounting year (the old accounting year); and
- (c) wants to change to use a different accounting year (the new accounting year) for the calculations.

Change requiring Commissioner's consent

- (2) The person may make the change only if the Commissioner agrees.

Commissioner's reasons

- (3) The Commissioner may consider any relevant factors when making the decision, including—
  - (a) whether the change is sought because ownership of the CFC has changed:
  - (b) whether the change is sought because of taxation or other legal requirements in a country where the CFC is resident or does business:
  - (c) whether the change is sought to achieve consistent balance dates in a group of companies:
  - (d) whether the change would postpone liability to income tax on attributed CFC income or on attributed repatriation or to a foreign dividend payment (FDP) on attributed repatriation.

No transitional deferral

- (4) If the new accounting year ends in a later income year than the year the old accounting year ends in, and that fact would result in an amount of attributed CFC income or attributed repatriation being derived in the later income year, the amount is not deferred to the later income year and instead is treated as derived in the previous income year. However, this subsection applies only once, in the year of the transition.

Defined in this Act: accounting year, amount, attributed CFC income, attributed repatriation, business, CFC, Commissioner, FDP, group of companies, income interest, income tax, income year, loss

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 26

Ownership measurement concessionEX 26 Use of quarterly measurementInterests held at end of quarter

- (1) In order to simplify the process of calculating a person's control interest or income interest in a foreign company, the person is treated as holding at all times during a quarter the same interest, including a zero interest, as the interest they hold at the end of the quarter.

Anti-avoidance

- (2) The concession in subsection (1) is overridden by the anti-avoidance rules in sections GB 9 to GB 16 (which relate to arrangements involving CFCs).

Ignoring concession

- (3) A person may choose not to apply the concession in subsection (1) when calculating their attributed CFC income or loss from a foreign company.

Election

- (4) An election under subsection (3)—

  - (b) is irrevocable; and
  - (c) applies in the income year in which it is made and later.

Defined in this Act: attributed CFC income, Commissioner, control interest, foreign company, income interest, income year, loss, quarter

  - (c) the other company is a New Zealand resident or a CFC.

Stapled rights held by company

  - (a) the share is treated under subsection (10) as equivalent to debt;
  - (b) the person chooses to use the comparative value method for another attributing interest that is a share in a foreign company and for which the person would be allowed, in the absence of this paragraph, to use the fair dividend rate method.

Cost method for shares in foreign companies

- (9) A person may use the cost method to calculate FIF income or loss from an attributing interest in a FIF that is a share in a foreign company only if—

  - (ii) at all times in the income year, if the FIF is not a grey list company; and

  - (d) a share that involves an obligation—
    - (i) of another person to provide to the investor, directly or indirectly through an arrangement, an amount that is more than the issue price of the share; and
    - (ii) that is non-contingent or subject to a contingency that is sufficiently remote to be immaterial:
  - (e) a share of a kind that the Commissioner determines under section 91AAO of the Tax Administration Act 1994 to be an interest for which the fair dividend rate method is not available.

Commissioner's determination overriding subsection (10)(d)

- (11) Subsection (10)(d) does not apply to a share if the Commissioner determines under section 91AAO of the Tax Administration Act 1994 that the share is an interest for which the fair dividend rate is available.

Defined in this Act: attributing interest, comparative value method, deemed rate of return method, fair dividend rate method, FIF, FIF income, income year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 40B

EX 48 Default calculation method

When this section applies

- (1) This section applies when—

  - (b) sections EX 46, EX 47, and EX 62 do not have the effect of requiring a particular calculation method to be used.

Default choice for direct income interests in FIF of less than 10%

- (2) The person is treated as having chosen to use, for the period,—
  - (a) for a direct income interest in a foreign company of less than 10% for which section EX 46(7) allows the use of the fair dividend rate method,—

EX 49 Accounting profits method

Formula

- (1) If a person is using the accounting profits method to calculate FIF income or loss from an attributing interest in a FIF, the total FIF income or loss from all their attributing interests in the FIF for the relevant accounting period is calculated using the formula—

$$\begin{aligned} & (\text{accounting profits or losses} - \text{foreign tax}) \\ & \quad \times \text{income interest.} \end{aligned}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (2) The items in the formula are defined in subsections (3) to (5).

Accounting profits or losses

- (3) Accounting profits or losses is the net after-tax accounting profits or losses of the FIF for the accounting period.

Foreign tax

- (4) Foreign tax is the total for the accounting period of income tax on the income of the FIF—
- (a) for which the person is liable under the laws of a country or territory outside New Zealand; and
  - (b) paid by the person in the accounting period.

Income interest

- (5) Income interest is the person's income interest in the FIF for the accounting period. The income interest is calculated under all the following CFC rules, applying as if the FIF were a CFC:
- (a) sections EX 8 to EX 11 and EX 13;
  - (b) sections EX 16 and EX 17;
  - (c) section EX 26, unless the person chooses to apply subsection (6).

Election to measure on 31 March only

- (6) In order to simplify the process of calculating the person's income interest, the person may choose to be treated as holding, at all times during a tax year, the same interest, including a zero one, that they held at the end of the tax year. The person makes the election by completing their return of income accordingly for the relevant income year.

Election irrevocable

- (7) An election under subsection (6) is—
- (a) irrevocable and applies to the person and all their attributing interests in the FIF in later years; and
  - (b) overridden by the anti-avoidance rules in sections GB 9 to GB 16 (which relate to CFCs).

Conversion to New Zealand dollars

- (8) The person must choose, for the accounting period and each later accounting period and for all interests for which the person uses the accounting profits method,—
- (a) for all the calculations to be done in the currency of the FIF's financial accounts, with the result then converted into New Zealand dollars at the average of the close of trading spot exchange rates for the 15th day of each complete month that falls in the accounting period; or
  - (b) for all the calculations of the net after-tax accounting profits or losses of the FIF to be done in New Zealand dollars.

Reduction in FIF loss to economic loss

- (9) In the cases described in subsections (10) and (11), the amount of any FIF loss calculated under subsection (1) is reduced to be equal to the person's corresponding economic loss, if any.

Application of subsection (9): no economic loss

- (10) Subsection (9) applies if the person suffers no, or substantially no, economic loss corresponding to the FIF loss, whether because of a call option, a put option, or any other reason.

Application of subsection (9): FIF loss excessive

- (11) Subsection (9) also applies if the amount of FIF loss is more than any corresponding economic loss suffered by the person, whether because of the application of the rules for calculating the person's income interest or any other reason.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, accounting profits method, amount, attributing interest, CFC, close of trading spot exchange rate, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, income interest, income year, loss, New Zealand, non-resident, pay, quarter, return of income, tax, tax year

EX 50 Branch equivalent method

Formula

- (1) If a person is using the branch equivalent method to calculate FIF income or loss from an attributing interest in a FIF, the total FIF income or loss from all their attributing interests in the FIF for the relevant accounting period is calculated using the formula—branch equivalent income or loss  $\times$  income interest.

Definition of items in formula

- (2) The items in the formula in subsection (1) are defined in subsections (3) and (4).

Branch equivalent income or loss

- (3) Branch equivalent income or loss is the branch equivalent income or loss of the FIF for the accounting period. This is calculated by applying section EX 21 of the CFC rules—
- as if the FIF were a CFC and the person were calculating their attributed CFC income or loss; and
  - applying subsections (5) and (6).

Income interest

- (4) Income interest is the person's income interest in the FIF for the accounting period. The income interest is calculated under all the following CFC rules, applying as if the FIF were a CFC:
- (a) sections EX 8 to EX 11 and EX 13;
  - (b) sections EX 16 and EX 17;
  - (c) section EX 26.

Taxable distributions

- (5) If the FIF derives a taxable distribution from a non-complying trust in the accounting period,—
- (a) the taxable distribution is excluded when calculating the FIF's branch equivalent income or loss, due to the combined effect of subsection (1) and section EX 21(32); and
  - (b) the person has additional attributed CFC income calculated by multiplying the taxable distribution by the person's income interest in the FIF; and
  - (c) the person is liable for income tax on the additional attributed CFC income at the rate in schedule 1 (Basic tax rates: income tax, ESCT, RWT, and attributed fringe benefits) that applies to amounts under section HC 22 (Use of tax losses to reduce taxable distributions from non-complying trusts).

Calculation of additional FIF income or loss

- (6) If the FIF itself has an income interest, calculated under subsection (4), in a foreign company for the accounting period, the person has additional FIF income or loss calculated using the formula—

$$\text{interest} \times \text{FIF's FIF income or loss.}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (7) In the formula in subsection (6),—
- (a) interest is the person's income interest in the FIF for the period;
  - (b) FIF's FIF income or loss is the FIF's FIF income or loss calculated under the rules in section EX 58(4) and (5), as if—
    - (i) the FIF were the CFC referred to; and

- (ii) the FIF's interest in the foreign company were an attributing interest, despite any application of section EX 34.

Application of CFC rules tax credit rules

- (8) The rules in sections LK 1 to LK 7 (which relate to tax credits for attributed CFC income) apply to allow the person to claim foreign tax credits but on the basis of the assumptions made in subsection (9). The rules in those sections allow foreign tax credits relating to attributed CFC income but apply a jurisdictional ring-fencing approach to the use of tax credits.

Assumptions in reading tax credit rules

- (9) Sections LK 1 to LK 7 are applied as if—
  - (a) the FIF were a CFC; and
  - (b) the FIF income of the person from the FIF were attributed CFC income; and
  - (c) the person's income interest, calculated under subsection (4) were their relevant income interest for the purposes of those sections; and
  - (d) any relevant person's FIF income calculated under the branch equivalent method from a FIF that is resident in the relevant country were attributed CFC income.

Reduction in FIF loss to economic loss

- (10) In the cases described in subsections (11) and (12), the amount of any FIF loss calculated under subsections (1) and (6) is reduced to be equal to the person's corresponding economic loss, if any.

Application of subsection (10): no economic loss

- (11) Subsection (10) applies if the person suffers no, or substantially no, economic loss corresponding to the FIF loss, whether because of a call option, a put option, or any other reason.

Application of subsection (10): FIF loss excessive

- (12) Subsection (10) also applies if the amount of FIF loss is more than any corresponding economic loss suffered by the person, whether because of the application of the rules for calculating the person's income interest or any other reason.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, amount, attributed CFC income, attributing interest, branch equivalent income, branch equivalent method, CFC, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, foreign company, income interest, income tax, loss, non-complying trust, non-resident, quarter, tax, taxable distribution

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 43

EX 51 Comparative value method

Formula

- (1) If a person is using the comparative value method to calculate FIF income or loss from an attributing interest in a FIF, the FIF income or loss from that interest for the relevant income year is calculated using the formula—

(closing value + gains) – (opening value + costs).

Definition of items in formula

- (2) The items in the formula are defined in subsections (3) to (6).

  - (ii) paid by the person in the income year.

Rule for losses from portfolio shareholdings

- (7) Subsection (8) applies to a person who calculates under subsection (1) an amount of FIF loss for an attributing interest in a FIF (the portfolio interest) that—
  - (a) is a direct income interest in a foreign company of less than 10% at a time in the relevant income year; and
  - (b) is not a share treated under section EX 46(10) as debt.

No total FIF loss from portfolio interests

- (8) If, in the absence of this subsection, the person would have under subsection (1) a total FIF loss for the income year from all the person's portfolio interests, the FIF loss for the income year for the person from the portfolio interest is reduced to the extent necessary so that the total FIF loss from the portfolio interest is zero.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributing interest, calculation method, comparative value method, direct income interest, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, foreign company, foreign withholding tax, income year, loss, market value, pay, tax

EX 55 Deemed rate of return method

Formula changes if interest changes

- (1) If a person is using the deemed rate of return method to calculate FIF income or loss from an attributing interest in a FIF for an income year, the FIF income or loss is calculated—
  - (a) by the formula in subsection (3) (the standard formula) if the person has held the interest unchanged throughout the income year; and
  - (b) by totalling the amounts calculated by the formula in subsection (5) (the part-year formula) for each part of the income year during which the interest is unchanged, in any other case.

When interest changes

- (2) A person's attributing interest in a FIF changes during an income year if the person—
  - (a) acquires or increases the interest; or
  - (b) disposes of or reduces the interest, but merely receiving an annuity payment from the interest is not a disposal or reduction.

Standard formula

- (3) The standard formula is—
$$\text{opening book value} \times \text{deemed rate.}$$

Definition of items in standard formula

- (4) In the standard formula,—
  - (a) opening book value is the book value of the interest at the end of the previous income year, calculated under subsection (7):
  - (b) deemed rate is the rate set by the Governor-General by Order in Council for this section for the relevant income year.

- $$(\text{opening book value} + \text{costs}) \times (\text{deemed rate} \times \frac{\text{days}}{365}).$$

Definition of items in part-year formula

- (6) In the part-year formula,—
- (a) opening book value is the book value, if any, of the interest at the end of the period before the part of the income year, calculated under subsection (7):

    - (i) all expenditure, if any, that the person incurs in acquiring or increasing the interest:
    - (ii) income tax on the income of the FIF for which the person is liable under the laws of a country or territory outside New Zealand and which is paid by the person in the part of the income year:
  - (c) deemed rate is the rate set by the Governor-General by Order in Council for this section for the relevant income year:
  - (d) days is the number of days in the part of the income year; and for this purpose, an acquisition or increase is treated as occurring at the start of a day, and a disposition or reduction is treated as occurring at the end of a day.

Closing book value formula

- (7) The book value, at the end of an income year or, in a case in which subsection (5) applies, a part of an income year, of an attributing interest of a person in a FIF under the deemed rate of return method is, unless subsection (9) applies, calculated using the formula (the closing book value formula)—
- $$(\text{opening book value} + \text{costs} + \text{deemed income} + \text{top-up amounts}) - \text{gains}.$$

Definition of items in closing book value formula

- (8) In the closing book value formula,—
- (a) opening book value is the book value, if any, of the interest at the end of the previous income year or the part of the income year, calculated under subsection (7):

- (e) gains is the total of all amounts that the person derives during the year or the part of the income year from holding or disposing of the interest; the amounts including any foreign withholding tax or other tax that the person is allowed as a credit under section LJ 2 (Tax credits for foreign income tax).

Closing book value zero if changing method

- (9) The closing book value is always zero if the person is using a calculation method for the interest different from the deemed rate of return method at the end of the income year or, in a case to which subsection (5) applies, the part of the income year.

Top-up income if deemed rate inadequate

- (10) If the closing book value of a person's attributing interest in a FIF at the end of an income year or a part of an income year is below zero, the person has additional FIF income equal to the deficit for the relevant income year.

When subsection (10) does not apply

- (11) Subsection (10) does not apply if—
  - (a) the person is a natural person; and
  - (b) at all times during the income year the total value of the person's attributing interests in FIFs is $250,000 or less, the value of each interest being—

- (i) its book value, calculated under subsection (7), at the end of the previous income year, if the person held the interest then and used the deemed rate of return method to calculate FIF income for all attributing interests in the previous income year:
- (ii) its market value, in any other case; and
- (c) the deficit in closing book value arises only because the person disposed of some or all of the interest; and
- (d) the gain that the person derived from disposing of the interest or part-interest is not income, or is income only to the extent to which it gives rise to FIF income.

Top-up income if gains more than deemed income

- (12) A person calculating FIF income under the deemed rate of return method can also have additional FIF income under section EX 60.

FIF income reduced on disposal if deemed rate excessive

- (13) If a person has disposed of the whole of an attributing interest in a FIF and the closing book value for the relevant income year or the part of the income year is more than zero, the excess is subtracted when the person's FIF income under the deemed rate of return method for the income year is calculated.

When subsection (13) does not apply

- (14) Subsection (13) does not apply if—
- (a) the person is a natural person; and
  - (b) at all times during the income year the total value of attributing interests in FIFs held by the person is $250,000 or less, the value of each interest being—
    - (i) its book value, calculated under subsection (7), at the end of the previous income year, if the person held the interest then and used the deemed rate of return method to calculate FIF income for all attributing interests in the previous income year:
    - (ii) its market value, in any other case; and

- (c) the gain that the person derived from disposing of the interest or part-interest is not income, or is income only to the extent to which it gives rise to FIF income.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributing interest, calculation method, deemed rate of return method, FIF, FIF income, foreign withholding tax, income, income year, loss, market value, pay, tax

EX 56 Cost method

Cost method formula

- (1) If a person is using the cost method to calculate FIF income or loss from an attributing interest in a FIF for an income year, the person's total FIF income from their attributing interests in the FIF for the income year is calculated using the formula—(0.05 × opening value) + quick sale adjustment.

Definition of items in formula

- (2) The items in the formula in subsection (1) are defined in subsections (3) to (18).

Opening value

- (3) Opening value is the total of the market values of the person's attributing interests in the FIF, being—
- (a) zero, if the relevant income year is the year in which the person acquires an attributing interest in the FIF; or
  - (b) the amount of an independent valuation of the market value of the interest at the start of the relevant income year, if the person holds the interest at the start of the relevant income year, and—
    - (i) the interest was not an attributing interest for the income year before the relevant income year;
    - (ii) the person has used the cost method for the interest for a period of 4 or more income years ending before the relevant income year and has not applied this paragraph to the interest for any of those income years; or
  - (c) the amount calculated using the formula in subsection (4), if the person's shareholding (the current opening shareholding) at the start of the relevant income year is the same as the person's shareholding (the preceding

- opening shareholding) at the start of the preceding income year; or
- (d) the amount calculated using the formula in subsection (5), if the person's current opening shareholding is more than the preceding opening shareholding; or
  - (e) the amount calculated using the formula in subsection (6), if the person's current opening shareholding is less than the preceding opening shareholding.

Opening value formula: no shareholding change

- (4) The formula referred to in subsection (3)(c) is—preceding opening + FIF income.

Opening value formula: shareholding increase

- (5) The formula referred to in subsection (3)(d) is—preceding opening + FIF income + (increase × average cost).

Opening value formula: shareholding decrease

- (6) The formula referred to in subsection (3)(e) is—

$$\frac{\text{opening shareholding}}{\text{preceding shareholding}} \times (\text{preceding opening} + \text{FIF income}).$$

Definition of items in formulas

- (7) The items in the formula in subsections (4) to (6) are defined in subsections (8) to (13).

Preceding opening

- (8) Preceding opening is the opening value for the income year before the relevant income year.

FIF income

- (9) FIF income is the FIF income under subsection (1) for the attributing interest for the income year before the relevant income year.

Increase

- (10) Increase is,—
- (a) if no share reorganisation occurs in the preceding income year, the difference between the person's shareholding at the start of the relevant income year and the person's shareholding at the start of the preceding income year:

- (b) if a share reorganisation occurs in the preceding income year, the amount calculated under section EX 54 for the preceding income year.

- (11) Average cost is,—

- (a) if no share reorganisation occurs in the preceding income year, the total amount of expenditure that the person incurs during the preceding income year in acquiring or increasing the attributing interest in the FIF divided by the total for the preceding income year of the increase in the attributing interest in the FIF for each acquisition or increase; or
- (b) if a share reorganisation occurs in the preceding income year, the amount calculated under section EX 54 for the preceding income year.

Opening shareholding

- (12) Opening shareholding is the amount of the person's shareholding at the start of the relevant income year.

Preceding shareholding

- (13) Preceding shareholding is the amount of the person's shareholding at the start of the preceding income year.

When quick sale adjustment required

- (14) The quick sale adjustment is required only if, in the relevant income year, the person disposes of or reduces their attributing interest in the FIF after acquiring it or increasing it. The quick sale adjustment is zero in any other case.

Quick sale adjustment

- (15) Quick sale adjustment is calculated using the formula—peak holding differential  $\times$  average cost.

Definition of items in formula

- (16) The items in the formula in subsection (15) are defined in subsections (17) and (18).

Peak holding differential

- (17) Peak holding differential is,—
- (a) if no share reorganisation occurs in the relevant income year, the lesser of—
    - (i) the difference between the greatest shareholding in the year and the shareholding at the start of the year;
    - (ii) the difference between the greatest shareholding in the year and the shareholding at the end of the year; or
  - (b) if a share reorganisation occurs in the relevant income year, the amount calculated under section EX 54 for the year.

Average cost

- (18) Average cost is,—
- (a) if no share reorganisation occurs in the relevant income year, the total amount of expenditure that the person incurs during the year in acquiring or increasing the attributing interest in the FIF divided by the total for the year of the shareholding increase in the attributing interest in the FIF for each acquisition or increase; or
  - (b) if a share reorganisation occurs in the relevant income year, the amount calculated under section EX 54 for the year.

Meaning of shareholding

- (19) In this section, shareholding means the number of shares or units in an attributing interest.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributing interest, close of trading spot exchange rate, cost method, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, income year, market value, New Zealand, share reorganisation, unit valuation period

EX 57 Conversion of foreign currency amounts: most methodsWhen this section applies*

- (1) This section applies when—
- (a) an amount in a foreign currency is the market value of, or is derived from or incurred on, an attributing interest in a FIF that a person has in an income year; and

- (b) the person is using one of the following calculation methods (the relevant method) to calculate their FIF income or loss from the interest for the income year:
  - (i) the comparative value method:
  - (ii) the fair dividend rate method:
  - (iii) the deemed rate of return method:
  - (iv) the cost method.

Choosing conversion rates

- (2) The person must choose either that—
  - (a) each foreign currency amount in the income year is converted into New Zealand dollars using the exchange rate on the day for which the market value is determined or on which the amount is derived or incurred; or
  - (b) all foreign currency amounts in the income year are converted into New Zealand dollars at the average of the close of trading spot exchange rates for the 15th day of each month that falls in the income year.

Election applying method-wide and for future years

- (3) The election by the person must be applied for all attributing interests for which they use the relevant method for the income year and each later income year.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributing interest, calculation method, close of trading spot exchange rate, comparative value method, cost method, deemed rate of return method, fair dividend rate method, FIF income, FIF loss, income year, New Zealand

EX 58 Additional FIF income or loss if CFC owns FIF

Application of this section

- (1) This section applies when—
  - (a) a person has an income interest of 10% or more in a CFC for an accounting period under sections EX 8 to EX 17; and
  - (b) because section EX 21(33) applies, FIF income and FIF loss is not taken into account in calculating the branch equivalent income or loss of the CFC for the period for the person.

Calculation of FIF income or loss

- (2) The person instead has FIF income or loss, for the income year in which the period ends, calculated using the formula—income interest  $\times$  CFC's FIF income or loss.

Definition of items in formula

- (3) In the formula,—
- (a) income interest is the person's income interest in the CFC for the period under sections EX 8 to EX 13:
  - (b) CFC's FIF income or loss is the CFC's FIF income or loss for the period calculated under subsections (4) and (5).

Application of FIF rules to choice of method

- (4) The person must—
- (a) choose, under sections EX 44 to EX 48, the calculation method for calculating the CFC's FIF income or loss; and
  - (b) otherwise apply the calculation rules in sections EX 44 to EX 61 as if the person directly held the attributing interest; and
  - (c) apply the FIF loss ring-fencing rules in section DN 8 (Ring-fencing cap on deduction: branch equivalent method) as if the person directly held the attributing interest.

Exclusion of policyholders' entitlements

- (5) Despite subsection (4), the CFC's FIF income or loss does not include any amount actuarially determined to be attributable to policyholders in the CFC or another company as a result of applying section EX 21(25) and (26) to the CFC.

Unqualified grey list CFCs

- (6) This section applies whether or not the CFC is an unqualified grey list CFC under section EX 22 for the period.

Disclosure restrictions on grey list CFCs

- (7) No FIF income or loss arises under this section to the extent to which section EZ 31 (Disclosure restrictions on grey list CFCs before 2011–12) applies.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, amount, attributing interest, branch equivalent income, calculation method, CFC, company, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, FIF rules, grey list, income interest, income year, loss

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 46

Relationship with other provisions in ActEX 59 Codes: comparative value method, deemed rate of return method, fair dividend rate method, and cost methodWhen this section applies

- (1) This section applies when a person has an attributing interest in a FIF and calculates their FIF income or loss from the interest for a period using—
- the comparative value method:
  - the deemed rate of return method:
  - the fair dividend rate method:
  - the cost method.

No income other than FIF income

- (2) The person is treated as not having any income from the interest for the period other than FIF income and, in particular, any dividends derived in the period from the interest and any income gained from disposing of the interest in the period are disregarded.

No deductions other than FIF loss

- (3) The person is denied a deduction for any amount incurred in the period on acquiring some or all of the interest, except to the extent to which the amount is taken into account under the relevant calculation method in calculating FIF income or loss for the period.

Application of trading stock rules

- (4) The interest is not trading stock in the period and accordingly subpart EB (Valuation of trading stock (including dealer's livestock)) does not apply.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributing interest, calculation method, comparative value method, cost method, deduction, deemed rate of return method, dividend, fair dividend rate method, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, income, loss, trading stock

EX 60 Top-up FIF income: deemed rate of return methodWhen this section applies*

- (1) This section applies at any time when a person—
- has an attributing interest in a FIF for a period; and
  - is calculating the FIF income or loss from the interest using the deemed rate of return method; and
  - derives in the period, from holding or disposing of the interest, an amount that would have been income if section EX 59(2) had not applied.

Formula

- (2) The gain is FIF income to the extent to which the amount calculated using the following formula is positive:
- $$\text{total income gains} - \text{total FIF income.}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (3) In the formula,—
- total income gains is the total of amounts, including the amount in question, derived by the person until that time from holding or disposing of the interest that would have been income if section EX 59(2) had not applied;
  - total FIF income is the total of FIF income, reduced by the total of any FIF losses, derived by the person from the interest until, and including, the relevant period.

Consequence of partial sales

- (4) If the person disposes of part of the interest, this section applies to the part disposed of and the part retained as if they were separate interests. If this means that an apportionment is necessary, it must be done on the basis of the respective market values at the time the part interest is disposed of.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributing interest, deemed rate of return method, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, income, loss, market value

EX 61 Top-up FIF income: 1 April 1993 uplift interests

When this section applies

- (1) This section applies at any time if a person—
  - (a) has an attributing interest in a FIF for a period; and
  - (b) held the interest on 2 July 1992; and
  - (c) calculated their FIF income from the interest in the period starting on 1 April 1993 under the comparative value method or the deemed rate of return method; and
  - (d) was treated as having reacquired the interest on 1 April 1993 for an uplifted cost under section CG 23(1)(d) of the Income Tax Act 1994 or EZ 7 of the Income Tax Act 2004; and
  - (e) derives in the period, from holding or disposing of the interest, an amount that would have been income if section EX 59(2) had not applied.

Formula

- (2) The gain is FIF income to the extent to which the amount calculated using the following formula is positive:
total income gains – total FIF income.

Definition of items in formula

- (3) In the formula,—
  - (a) total income gains is the total of amounts, including the amount in question, that the person derived until that time from holding or disposing of the interest that would have been income if section EX 59(2) had not applied:
  - (b) total FIF income is the total of FIF income, reduced by the total of any FIF losses, that the person derived from the interest until, and including, the relevant period.

Consequence of partial sales

- (4) If the person disposes of part of the interest, this section applies to the part disposed of and the part retained as if they were separate interests. If this means that an apportionment is necessary, it must be done on the basis of the respective market values at the time the part interest is disposed of.

Defined in this Act: amount, attributing interest, comparative value method, deemed rate of return method, FIF, FIF income, FIF loss, income, market value

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 49

Changing calculation method

EX 62 Limits on changes of method

No change unless allowed

- (1) Once a person uses a particular calculation method to calculate FIF income or loss for an attributing interest in a FIF for a particular period, they must use the same method for interests in the FIF for the next period unless they are allowed to change under subsections (2) to (8).

Change on practical grounds

- (2) The person may change if it is not practical to continue with the same method because—
  - (a) in the case of the accounting profits method, section EX 46(2) prevents its continued use or it is impossible to obtain enough information to continue to use it:
  - (b) in the case of the branch equivalent method, it is impossible to obtain enough information to continue to use it:
  - (c) in the case of the comparative value method, it is impossible to find out the end-of-year market value of the interest:
  - (d) in the case of the deemed rate of return method, if the person was entitled to use that method only by falling under the $250,000 threshold in section EX 46(4)(b), the threshold is exceeded:
  - (e) in the case of the deemed rate of return method, if it was the default method under section EX 48, it ceases to be the default method:
  - (f) in the case of the fair dividend rate method, it is impossible to find out the start-of-year market value of the interest except by an independent valuation:
  - (g) in the case of the cost method, if it was the default method under section EX 48, it ceases to be the default method.

Choosing to change

- (3) The person may also change by notice to the Commissioner if—
- (a) the notice complies with subsection (4); and
  - (b) either—
    - (i) the person is a natural person and the $250,000 threshold in subsection (5) is not exceeded; or
    - (ii) the change is to, or from, the branch equivalent method and within subsections (6) and (7).

Notice of election

- (4) The notice of an election to change under subsection (3) must—
- (a) give the reasons for the change; and
  - (b) comply with the Commissioner's notice requirements; and
  - (c) be given before the end of the first income year or accounting period for which the change is to take effect, unless the Commissioner agrees to a retrospective notice; and
  - (d) in the case of a natural person relying on the $250,000 threshold test in subsection (3)(b)(i), be given before the end of the year or period that is before the one from the end of which the change takes effect.

Natural person: $250,000 threshold

- (5) A natural person may make an election under subsection (3) if the total market value of their attributing interests in FIFs is $250,000 or less at the end of the income year or accounting period before the year or period from the end of which the change takes effect.

Changing to or from branch equivalent method

- (6) A person may make an election under subsection (3) to change—
- (a) to the branch equivalent method if—
    - (i) this is the first time they have chosen to change to the branch equivalent method for an attributing interest in the FIF; or
    - (ii) subsection (7) allows them to make another election:

- (b) from the branch equivalent method if—
  - (i) they are changing back to a calculation method that they used for attributing interests in the fund before they used the branch equivalent method; and
  - (ii) this is the first time they have chosen to change from the branch equivalent method, unless subsection (7) allows them to make another election.

Repeated changes to or from branch equivalent method

- (7) A person may change more than once to, or from, the branch equivalent method if—
  - (a) there has been a change in circumstances, such as a significant change in shareholding, that significantly changes their ability to obtain enough information to use the branch equivalent method; and
  - (b) altering their income tax liability is not the principal purpose or effect of the change.

Repeated changes between fair dividend rate method and comparative value method

- (8) A person may change more than once from the fair dividend rate method to the comparative value method and from the comparative value method to the fair dividend rate method if the person is a natural person or the trustee of a trust that—
  - (a) is a complying trust; and
  - (b) is established mainly for the benefit of—
    - (i) a natural person for whom the settlor has natural love or affection;
    - (ii) an organisation or trust with income that is exempt income under section CW 41 or CW 42 (which relate to charitable trusts); and
  - (c) has no settlor who is not a natural person; and
  - (d) is not a superannuation scheme.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, accounting profits method, attributing interest, branch equivalent method, calculation method, Commissioner, comparative value method, complying trust, cost method, deemed rate of return method, exempt income, fair dividend rate method, FIF, FIF income, income tax liability, income year, loss, market value, notice, settlor, superannuation scheme, trustee

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 50

EX 63 Consequences of changes in methodChanges between cost-based methods and look-through methods*

- (1) Subsection (2) applies if a person holding an attributing interest in a FIF changes the calculation method for calculating FIF income or loss from the interest—
- (a) from 1 of the 4 cost-based calculation methods (the comparative value method, the deemed rate of return method, the fair dividend rate method, or the cost method) to either of the look-through calculation methods (the accounting profits method or the branch equivalent method); or
  - (b) from either of the look-through calculation methods to 1 of the 4 cost-based calculation methods.

Treatment as sale for market value

- (2) The person is treated as having—
- (a) disposed of the interest to an unrelated person immediately before the start of the first accounting period to which the new method applies; and
  - (b) reacquired it immediately after the start of the period; and
  - (c) received for the disposal and paid for the reacquisition an amount equal to the interest's market value at the time.

Changes from comparative value method or fair dividend rate method to cost method or deemed rate of return method

- (3) If a person holding an attributing interest in a FIF changes from either of the comparative value method and the fair dividend rate method to either of the cost method and the deemed rate of return method for calculating FIF income or loss from the interest, the person is treated as having—
- (a) disposed of the interest to an unrelated person immediately before the start of the first income year to which the new method applies; and
  - (b) reacquired it immediately after the start of the income year; and

- (c) received for the disposal and paid for the reacquisition an amount equal to the interest's market value at the time of the disposal.

Changes from cost method or deemed rate of return method to comparative value method or fair dividend rate method

- (4) If a person holding an attributing interest in a FIF changes from either of the cost method or the deemed rate of return method to either of the comparative value method or fair dividend rate method for calculating FIF income or loss from the interest, the person is treated as having—
  - (a) disposed of the interest to an unrelated person immediately before the start of the first income year to which the new method applies; and
  - (b) reacquired it immediately after the start of the income year; and
  - (c) received for the disposal and paid for the reacquisition an amount equal to,—
    - (i) for a person changing from the cost method, what would have been the interest's opening value under section EX 56 if the person had applied the cost method for the income year; or
    - (ii) for a person changing from the deemed rate of return method, the interest's closing book value under section EX 55(7) for the preceding income year.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, accounting profits method, amount, attributing interest, branch equivalent method, calculation method, comparative value method, cost method, deemed rate of return method, fair dividend rate method, FIF, FIF income, income year, loss, market value, pay

Cases of entry into and exit from FIF rules

EX 64 Migration of persons holding FIF interests

Leaving New Zealand

- (1) Subsection (2) applies if a person—
  - (a) ceases to be resident in New Zealand; and
  - (b) holds an attributing interest in a FIF at the time; and

    - (i) the comparative value method:

- (ii) the deemed rate of return method:
- (iii) the fair dividend rate method:
- (iv) the cost method.

Treatment as sale at market value

- (2) The person is treated as—
  - (a) having sold the interest immediately before the change of residence for an amount equal to its market value at the time; and
  - (b) not holding the interest when not resident in New Zealand, unless they become resident again and subsections (3) and (4) apply.

Coming to New Zealand

- (3) Subsection (4) applies if a person—
  - (a) is a non-resident or a transitional resident; and
  - (b) becomes a New Zealand resident who is not a transitional resident; and
  - (c) holds an attributing interest in a FIF at the time; and
  - (d) for the period after the change of residence or status, calculates FIF income or loss from the interest using—
    - (i) the comparative value method:
    - (ii) the deemed rate of return method:
    - (iii) the fair dividend rate method:
    - (iv) the cost method.

Treatment as purchase at market value

- (4) The person is treated as—
  - (a) having bought the interest immediately after the change of residence or status for an amount equal to its market value at the time; and
  - (b) not holding it when the person is a transitional resident or not a New Zealand resident, unless they had previously ceased being resident and subsections (1) and (2) applied.

Look-through calculation method: relevance of income interest rules

- (5) Subsection (6) applies if a person—
  - (a) ceases to be—

- (i) a New Zealand resident who is not a transitional resident, and becomes a non-resident:
- (ii) a non-resident, and becomes a New Zealand resident who is not a transitional resident:
- (iii) a transitional resident, and becomes a New Zealand resident who is not a transitional resident; and
- (b) holds an attributing interest in a FIF at the time; and
- (c) for the accounting period in which the change occurs, uses the accounting profits method or branch equivalent method to calculate FIF income or loss from the interest.

EX 65 Changes in application of FIF exemptions

Exemptions ceasing to apply

- (1) Subsections (2) to (4) apply if a person—
- (a) holds rights in 1 of the categories of rights described in section EX 29(2) to (4); and
  - (b) either—
    - (i) the rights become an attributing interest in a FIF because 1 of the exemptions in sections EX 34 to EX 43 ceases to apply; or
    - (ii) the person starts having FIF income or loss from the rights because they incur a cost on an attributing interest in a FIF and exceed the $50,000 threshold in sections CQ 5(1)(d) or (e) (When FIF income arises) and DN 6(1)(d) or (e) (When FIF loss arises).

Market value for cost-based methods

- (2) If the person uses the comparative value method, deemed rate of return method, the fair dividend rate method, or the cost method to calculate FIF income or loss from the rights for the period following the change, the person is treated as having—

- (a) disposed of the rights to an unrelated person immediately before the change; and
- (b) reacquired them immediately after the change; and
- (c) received for the sale and paid for the repurchase an amount equal to their market value at the time.

Calculation of reduction in FIF income or loss

- (3) If the change occurs during an accounting period of the FIF and the person uses the accounting profits method or the branch equivalent method to calculate FIF income or loss from the rights for that period, the FIF income or loss is reduced by subtracting the amount calculated using the formula—

$$\text{FIF income or loss} \times \frac{\text{days before change}}{\text{days in period.}}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (4) In the formula in subsection (3),—
- (a) FIF income or loss is the FIF income or loss of the person from the rights for the period before allowing for the reduction;
  - (b) days before change is the number of complete days in the period before the change occurs;
  - (c) days in period is the number of days in the period.

Exemptions applying

- (5) Subsections (6) to (8) apply if a person—
- (a) holds an attributing interest in a FIF; and
  - (b) either—
    - (i) the interest ceases to be an attributing interest in a FIF because 1 of the exemptions in sections EX 34 to EX 43 starts to apply; or

Market value for cost-based methods

- (6) If the person uses the comparative value method, the deemed rate of return method, fair dividend rate method, or cost method to calculate FIF income or loss from the interest for the period before the change, the person is treated as having—
- disposed of the interest to an unrelated person immediately before the change; and
  - reacquired it immediately after the change; and
  - received for the sale and paid for the repurchase an amount equal to its market value at the time.

Calculation of reduction in FIF income or loss

- (7) If the change occurs during an accounting period of the FIF and the person uses the accounting profits methods or the branch equivalent method to calculate FIF income or loss from the interest for that period, the FIF income or loss is reduced by subtracting the amount calculated using the formula—

$$\text{FIF income or loss} \times \frac{\text{days after change}}{\text{days in period.}}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (8) In the formula in subsection (7),—
- FIF income or loss is the FIF income or loss of the person from the interest for the period before allowing for the reduction:

  - (b) repurchased it immediately after the change; and
  - (c) received for the sale and paid for the repurchase an amount equal to the market value of the interest at the end of the business day on which the change occurred.

Calculation of reduction in FIF income or loss

- (3) If the change occurs during an accounting period of the FIF and the person uses the accounting profits method or branch equivalent method to calculate FIF income or loss from the rights for that period, section EX 24 does not apply and the FIF income or loss is reduced by subtracting the amount calculated using the formula—

$$\text{FIF income or loss} \times \frac{\text{days before change}}{\text{days in period.}}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (4) In the formula,—
- (a) FIF income or loss is the FIF income or loss of the person from the rights for the period before allowing for the reduction;

Treatment as disposal and acquisition

- (2) The person is treated as having—

Measurement of cost

EX 68 Measurement of cost

When this section applies

- (1) This section applies when the cost of a person's attributing interest in a FIF is being measured for the purposes of—
- (a) the natural person $50,000 threshold in sections CQ 5(1)(d) or (e) (When FIF income arises) and DN 6(1)(d) or (e) (When FIF loss arises):
  - (b) the comparative value method:
  - (c) the deemed rate of return method:
  - (d) the fair dividend rate method:
  - (e) the cost method.

Cost flow using average cost

- (2) The cost of an attributing interest in a FIF acquired by a person in an income year is treated as being the amount calculated using the formula—

$$\frac{\text{total cost}}{\text{number of interests.}}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (3) In the formula,—
- (a) total cost is the total cost of all attributing interests in the FIF acquired by the person in the income year of the same class as the attributing interest:
  - (b) number of interests is the number of the attributing interests referred to in paragraph (a).

Share splits or similar

- (4) If the person acquires the interest as the result of a share split, non-taxable bonus issue, or similar event, and the acquisition is not income for the person, subsections (5) and (6) apply.

Allocation of original cost

- (5) The cost of the interest is a fair allocation, based on market values at the time of the split, of the cost of the original property that is split.

Allocation replacing original cost

- (6) For the income year in which the split occurs and later,—
- (a) the cost allocated to the interest is no longer the cost of the original property that was split; and
  - (b) the person is treated as having incurred the allocated cost amount on acquiring the interest when the original property was acquired; and
  - (c) the person is treated as not incurring any other cost on the interest merely because the original property ceases to exist.

Non-monetary cost

- (7) If any cost is incurred in kind and not in money, the amount of the cost is equal to the market value of the cost incurred in kind, measured as at the time incurred.

Exclusion of term life insurance element of premiums

- (8) If the interest is rights to benefit under a life insurance policy, the cost of the interest excludes a premium incurred in an earlier income year, or accounting period, to the extent to which the premium relates only to term life insurance for the previous period and does not increase the policy's surrender value.

Exclusion of holding costs

- (9) The cost of the interest does not include any expenditure under the financial arrangements rules or interest on money borrowed to acquire it, or other holding costs, incurred after its acquisition.

Transitional rule: interests acquired before 1 January 2000

- (10) Subsection (11) applies, for the purposes of the $50,000 threshold in sections CQ 5(1)(d) or (e) and DN 6(1)(d) or (e), if—
- (a) the interest was acquired before 1 January 2000; and

- (b) the person chooses, for the income year for which the relevant paragraph is applied or an earlier income year, that subsection (11) applies to all interests acquired before 1 January 2000.

Cost treated as half 1 April 2007 value

- (11) Despite subsections (1) to (9), the cost of the interest is treated as equal to half the market value of the interest on 1 April 2007.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, amount, attributing interest, comparative value method, cost method, deemed rate of return method, fair dividend rate method, FIF, financial arrangements rules, income, income year, interest, life insurance, life insurance policy, market value, non-taxable bonus issue, premium, share

Change of FIF's balance date

  - (b) calculates their FIF income or loss from the FIF using the accounting profits method or the branch equivalent method; and
  - (c) has calculated FIF income or loss from the FIF on the basis of 1 accounting year (the old accounting year); and
  - (d) wants to change to use a different accounting year (the new accounting year) for the calculations.

Commissioner's consent

- (2) The person may make the change only if the Commissioner agrees.

Commissioner's reasons

- (3) The Commissioner may take into account any relevant factors when making the decision, including—
  - (a) whether the change is sought because ownership of the FIF has changed; and
  - (b) whether the change is sought because of taxation or other legal requirements in a country where the FIF is resident or does business; and

- (c) whether the change would postpone liability to income tax on FIF income.

New accounting year

- (4) If the change is approved, the person may use the new accounting year.

Limit on transitional deferral

- (5) If, in order to make the transition, the transitional accounting period is more than 1 year and ends in a later income year than the old accounting year ends in, and that would result in an amount of FIF income being derived in the later income year, subsection (6) applies and section CQ 5(1)(g) (When FIF income arises) does not.

Income pro-rated over whole period

- (6) For the transitional accounting period, the FIF income is divided by the number of days in the period and the resulting amount is FIF income of the person derived on each day in the period.

Defined in this Act: accounting period, accounting profits method, accounting year, amount, attributing interest, branch equivalent method, business, Commissioner, FIF, FIF income, income tax, income year, loss, year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 57

Market value rules

Value of life insurance policy

- (2) The market value of rights to benefit under a life insurance policy is equal to their surrender value.

Limit to subsection (2)

- (3) Subsection (2) applies only for the purpose of calculating the cost of a person's rights to benefit from a life insurance policy under—
- (a) section EX 64(4); and
  - (b) section EX 65(2).

Value of superannuation scheme entitlement

- (4) The market value at any time of a person's rights to benefit under a superannuation scheme is equal to the total of costs incurred up to that time by or for the person on acquiring the rights if—

  - (b) they have not derived any material gain from the rights up to that time.

Defined in this Act: FIF income, life insurance policy, loss, market value, superannuation scheme

Compare: 2004 No 35 s EX 58

  - (a) the accounts of the CFC or FIF for the relevant period prepared for tax authorities, creditors, shareholders, or others:

Definition of items in formulas

- (3) The items in the formulas are defined in subsections (4) to (6).

Claim probability

- (4) Claim probability is the probability of a claim arising under the policy for the life insured's death in the income year. It is determined at the start of the income year using the same mortality assumptions as are used to calculate the life insurer's actuarial reserves at the start of the income year. It is expressed as a decimal. Variations to claim probability are in sections EY 19(2) and EY 20(2).

Opening sum assured

- (5) Opening sum assured is the claim that would be payable under the policy for the life insured's death in the income year or, if no such claim would be payable, the claim that would be payable under the policy for the life insured's survival to the relevant date or age specified in the policy. It is determined at the start of the income year. It may be zero. Variations to opening sum assured are in sections EY 19(3), EY 21(2), EY 22(3), and EY 23(2).

Opening actuarial reserves

Features of common factor

- (3) The common factor must be a reasonable approximation of the average probability of a claim arising under the policy for each life insured's death in the income year. It must be weighted as necessary to take account of—

Opening sum assured

- (2) In using the premium loading formula (life), the life insurer uses as opening sum assured the net present value of the annuity. The net present value is determined—
  - (a) at the start of the income year; and
  - (b) on the assumption that the life insured died at the start of the income year; and
  - (c) using the same assumptions and bases of calculation as are used to calculate the life insurer's actuarial reserves for the income year.

EZ 35 Accruals in relation to income and expenditure in respect of financial arrangements

- (1) For the purpose of calculating the amount deemed to be income or expenditure of any person under subsections (2) to (7), regard must be had to,—

- (a) if the person is a holder in relation to the financial arrangement,—
    - (i) the amount of all consideration paid and to be paid to the person in relation to the financial arrangement; and
    - (ii) any amount remitted and to be remitted by the person in relation to the financial arrangement; and

    - (i) the amount of all consideration paid and to be paid by the person in relation to the financial arrangement; and
    - (ii) the acquisition price of the financial arrangement in relation to the person.
- (2) Subject to this section, where any person is a holder or an issuer of a financial arrangement, the amount that is deemed to be income or expenditure of that person in respect of the financial arrangement in any income year is an amount calculated using the yield to maturity method so as to result in the allocation to each income year of an amount that is fair and reasonable, and such amount so allocated to each income year is income deemed to be derived by or expenditure deemed to be incurred by the person in respect of the financial arrangement in the income year:
provided that the Commissioner must accept an alternative method to the yield to maturity method, that has regard to the principles of accrual accounting, and—
- (a) conforms with commercially acceptable practice; and
  - (b) except to the extent that the Commissioner may otherwise allow under subsection (8), is adopted by the person and is or will be consistently applied in respect of all such financial arrangements for financial reporting purposes; and
  - (c) results in the allocation to each income year of amounts that are not materially different from amounts that would be calculated but for this proviso.
- (3) Notwithstanding subsection (2), but subject to the other provisions of this section, where in any income year the total value of all financial arrangements of which a person is a holder or an issuer has on no day within that income year exceeded $1,500,000 or such greater amount as the Governor-General may by Order in Council declare for the purposes of this section,—

- (a) the person may calculate income or expenditure for that income year in respect of those financial arrangements by using the straight-line method so as to result in the allocation to that income year and subsequent income years of amounts that are fair and reasonable in respect of those arrangements; and
- (b) where the straight-line method is used under paragraph (a), that method must be used by the person in respect of all financial arrangements of which the person was the holder or issuer during that income year; and
- (c) where the person has in accordance with this subsection calculated income or expenditure using the straight-line method in respect of a financial arrangement for any income year, the person must, unless otherwise authorised in writing by the Commissioner, continue to use that method in respect of that financial arrangement for any subsequent income year, until the maturity, remittance, sale, or other transfer of the arrangement, notwithstanding that the total value of all financial arrangements of which the person is holder or issuer may at any time in any such subsequent income year exceed $1,500,000 or such other amount as may be declared for the purposes of this section,— and any amount calculated in respect of a financial arrangement in accordance with this subsection is income deemed to be derived by or expenditure deemed to be incurred by the person in respect of the financial arrangement for the relevant income year.

- (4) For the purposes of subsection (3), a person must take into account financial arrangements to which subpart EW applies.
- (5) For the purposes of subsection (3),—
  - (a) the value of any financial arrangement to be taken into account in determining whether the total value of all financial arrangements of which a person is the holder or issuer on any day exceeds $1,500,000 or such other amount as may be declared for the purposes of this section is,—

- (i) in the case of a fixed principal financial arrangement, the nominal or face value of the arrangement; and
  - (ii) in the case of a variable principal debt instrument, the amount owing by or to the person under the arrangement on the relevant day; and
  - (iii) in the case of a financial arrangement to which subpart EW applies, the value determined under that subpart; and
- (b) in the first income year for which income or expenditure is calculated under subsection (3) in respect of a financial arrangement that—
- (i) was acquired or issued by the person in a previous income year; and
  - (ii) continues to be held or issued by the person at the end of the first income year for which income or expenditure is calculated under subsection (3),— the amount of income or expenditure of the person in respect of that financial arrangement for that first income year is an amount calculated in accordance with the following formula:

$$a - b - c + d$$

where—

- a is the sum of all amounts that would have been income derived by the person in respect of the financial arrangement if the straight-line method referred to in subsection (3) had been applied to the financial arrangement from the date it was acquired or issued by the person until the end of that first income year
- b is the sum of all amounts that would have been expenditure incurred by the person in respect of the financial arrangement if the straight-line method referred to in subsection (3) had been applied to the financial arrangement from the date it was acquired or issued by the person until the end of that first income year
- c is the sum of all amounts of income deemed to have been derived by the person in respect of the financial arrangement before the commencement of that first income year

- d is the sum of all amounts deemed to have been expenditure incurred by the person in respect of the financial arrangement before the commencement of that first income year;—
- and any amount so calculated is, if a positive amount, deemed to be income derived by the person in that first income year and, if a negative amount, deemed to be expenditure incurred by the person in that first income year.
- (6) Where it is not possible to calculate an amount to be deemed to be income or expenditure in respect of a financial arrangement using the yield to maturity method as provided for in subsection (2) or (in a case to which subsection (3) applies) the straight-line method as provided for in subsection (3), the amount that is deemed to be income or expenditure of the person in any income year is an amount calculated by the person—
- (a) using the method, if any, prescribed by the Commissioner for the financial arrangement in a determination made under section 90(1)(c) of the Tax Administration Act 1994:
- provided that the Commissioner must accept an alternative method to the method prescribed in any such determination that has regard to the principles of accrual accounting, and—
- (i) conforms with commercially acceptable practice; and
- (ii) except to the extent that the Commissioner may otherwise allow under subsection (8), is adopted by the person and is or will be consistently applied in respect of all such financial arrangements for financial reporting purposes; and
- (iii) results in the allocation to each income year of amounts that are not materially different from the amounts that would be calculated, but for this proviso; and
- (b) in the absence of any such determination, by applying a method that meets the requirements of subparagraphs (i) and (ii) of the proviso to paragraph (a) and that results in the allocation to each income year of an amount that, having regard to the tenor of subsection (2), is fair and reasonable;—

and such amount of income or expenditure so allocated to each income year is income deemed to be derived or, as the case may be, expenditure deemed to be incurred by the person in the income year.

- (7) Notwithstanding subsections (2) and (6), the Commissioner must accept an alternative method for calculating the amount to be deemed to be income or expenditure of the person, in respect of a financial arrangement, to the methods provided for under subsections (2) and (6), if the alternative method has regard to market valuation, and—
- (a) conforms with commercially acceptable practice; and
  - (b) except to the extent that the Commissioner may otherwise allow under subsection (8), is adopted by the person and is or will be consistently applied in respect of all such financial arrangements for financial reporting purposes; and
  - (c) either—
    - (i) the business of the person comprises dealing in such financial arrangements; or
    - (ii) the financial arrangement is a forward or future contract for foreign exchange, or a futures contract; and
  - (d) the market, the method, and the source of the information used to determine the market values have been approved by the Commissioner under a determination issued under section 90(1)(e) of the Tax Administration Act 1994; and
  - (e) the person and any other person who is a holder (where the person is an issuer) or an issuer (where the person is a holder) of the financial arrangement are not associated persons;—

and such amount of income or expenditure so calculated is income deemed to be derived or, as the case may be, expenditure deemed to be incurred by the person in respect of the financial arrangement in the income year:

provided that where income or expenditure in respect of a financial arrangement has been calculated by a person under this subsection, income or expenditure in respect of that financial arrangement must, except as otherwise allowed under subsection (8), continue to be calculated on that basis by that person until the maturity, remittance, sale, or other transfer of the arrangement.

- (8) Where a method of calculating income or expenditure in respect of a financial arrangement fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (b) of the proviso to subsection (2) or subparagraph (ii) of the proviso to subsection (6)(a) or (7)(b) by virtue of the fact that the method is not or will not be consistently applied by a person in respect of all such financial arrangements for financial reporting purposes, that method is nevertheless deemed to meet the relevant one of those provisions where the method—
- (a) appropriately reflects the dominant purpose for which the person acquired or issued the financial arrangement (or each such arrangement); and
  - (b) has been and will be consistently applied by the person in respect of the particular financial arrangement (or each such financial arrangement) for the purposes of the old financial arrangements rules for every income year during its term (except to the extent that the Commissioner approves or may approve a change in method under the circumstances or conditions specified in a determination under section 90(1)(f) of the Tax Administration Act 1994); and
  - (c) is not adopted for purposes that include the purpose of tax avoidance; and
  - (d) has been approved by the Commissioner for adoption in the circumstances applicable to the taxpayer either by notice to the taxpayer or in a determination issued under section 90 of the Tax Administration Act 1994.

- (a) to a cash basis holder; or
  - (b) in relation to a financial arrangement and a person, in any income year where section EZ 38 applies to that person and to that financial arrangement; or
  - (c) in relation to a financial arrangement where—
    - (i) the financial arrangement is held by a trustee upon trust for the management of compensation paid for personal injury where that compensation is paid under the Workers Compensation Act 1956 or the Accident Compensation Act 1972 or the Accident Compensation Act 1982 or the Accident Rehabilitation and Compensation Insurance Act 1992 or the Injury Prevention,

- Rehabilitation, and Compensation Act 2001 or an order of court; and

(9) Where a deceased person was at the time of his or her death a cash basis holder,—

(a) nothing in subsection (7) or in any requirement under this section that a cash basis holder be a natural person, in respect of the income year in which the death occurred and in each of the 4 immediately succeeding income years, applies to prevent the trustee of the estate of the deceased person from being a cash basis holder for the purposes of this Act in respect of financial arrangements issued or held by the estate, where the estate would otherwise qualify as a cash basis holder under this section; but

- (9) Despite subsections (2) to (8), a person is treated as transferring a financial arrangement at market value at the end of the income year of election and must calculate a base price adjustment under section EZ 38 if—

  - (b) the profits of the company issuing the debenture, however measured.

Substituting debenture

- (5) In this section, a substituting debenture—
- (a) means a debenture issued by a company to a shareholder or class of shareholder of the company when the amount of the debenture is determined by reference to 1 or more of the following aspects of the shares in the company held by the shareholder or class of shareholder at the time the debenture is issued or at an earlier time:
    - (i) the number of shares;
    - (ii) the available subscribed capital of the company calculated under the slice rule set out in section CD 23 (Ordering rule and slice rule);
    - (iii) some other reference to the shares;
  - (b) does not include a debenture that is a convertible note.

Shares or available subscribed capital in another company

- (6) A debenture is also a substituting debenture if it is issued to a shareholder or a class of shareholder and the amount of the debenture is determined by reference to 1 or more aspects of the shares as described in subsection (5) held by the shareholder in a company other than that issuing the debenture, whether or not the company is being, or has been, liquidated.

Amount of debenture

- (7) For the purposes of subsections (5) and (6), the amount of the debenture means the principal sum secured by or owing under the debenture.

- (a) the payment of the dividend realises or recovers the price the person paid for the shares; and
  - (b) the payment is made at the person's control or direction, or is part of a scheme that includes the acquisition of the shares and the payment of the dividend.

Treatment of amount derived

- (2) The dividend is treated as an amount derived on a sale of the shares to the extent to which the actual amount realised by the person on the disposal of the shares is less than the cost to the person of acquiring the shares.

Dividend

- (3) Despite subsection (2), a dividend taken into account under this section remains a dividend derived by the person in the income year.

Defined in this Act: amount, control, dividend, income year, pay, revenue account property, share

  - (a) the shareholder holds the share as revenue account property; and
  - (b) after the cancellation, they continue to hold some shares of the same class.

When whole amount treated as dividend

- (2) If the whole of the amount that the shareholder receives for the cancellation is treated as a dividend, the following paragraphs apply:
  - (a) the shareholder is not regarded as having disposed of the cancelled share, except for the purpose of determining whether they have derived a dividend; and
  - (b) the amount is added to the cost of the shareholder's remaining shares of the same class under subsection (6).

Below market value of shares

- (3) If subsection (2) does not apply, and the amount paid by the company is less than the market value of the shares at the time when notice is first given of the cancellation either by the shareholder or the company, the following paragraphs apply:
  - (a) an amount calculated using the formula in subsection (4) is added to the cost of the shareholder's remaining shares of the same class under subsection (6); and
  - (b) the amount is excluded from the cost of the share being cancelled so that the shareholder is denied a deduction under section DB 25 (Cancellation of shares held as revenue account property) for the amount unless the share is trading stock of the shareholder; and
  - (c) sections GC 1 and GC 2 (which relate to the disposal of trading stock for inadequate consideration) does not apply.

Formula

- (4) The formula referred to in subsection (3)(a) is—

share cost – (cost pre-cancellation ×  $\frac{\text{amount from cancellation}}{\text{market value}}$ )

Definition of items in formula

- (5) In the formula,—
- (a) share cost is the cost of the cancelled share to the shareholder:

- (d) the consideration derived on the disposal is not income of the lessee under a provision of this Act other than this section.

- (2) If the consideration derived by the lessee for the asset is more than the cost of its acquisition, the excess is income of the lessee under section CG 7 (Recoveries after deduction of payments under lease). Subsection (3) overrides this subsection.

Adjustment to income

- (3) If the total amount of the deductions referred to in subsection (1)(b) is less than or equal to the excess, the amount of income under subsection (2) is the total amount of the deductions.

Apportionment

- (4) If the asset is disposed of together with other assets, the total consideration must be apportioned to reflect the respective market values of the assets.

Disposal below market value

- (5) If the asset is disposed of without consideration or for a consideration that is less than market value at the date of disposal, the asset is treated as having been disposed of at its market value.

Associated persons acquiring asset

- (6) Subsection (2) also applies if a person associated with the lessee acquires the asset, whether from the lessee or not, and disposes of it for an amount that is more than the amount paid to acquire it. Association is determined at the time of acquisition by the associated person. The lesser of the excess and the total amount of the lessee's deductions is treated as income of the lessee.

Transfers on settlement of relationship property

- (7) In this section,—

Finance leases

FA 6 Recharacterisation of amounts derived under finance leases

When a personal property lease asset is leased under a finance lease, the lease is treated as a sale of the lease asset by the lessor to the lessee on the date on which the term of the lease starts, and—

- (a) the lessor is treated as giving a loan to the lessee for the lease asset; and
- (b) the lessee is treated as using the loan to buy the lease asset; and
- (c) subpart EE (Depreciation), the financial arrangements rules, and the other provisions of this Act apply to the arrangement as recharacterised.

FA 9 Treatment when lease ends: lessee acquiring asset

Acquisition treated as sale

- (1) When a lessee under a finance lease acquires the personal property lease asset by the date on which the term of the lease ends, the acquisition is treated as the same sale that is treated as occurring under section FA 6.

When lessee or associated person acquires lease asset and later disposes of it

- (2) If a lessee under a finance lease, or a person associated with them, acquires the lease asset and later disposes of it for an amount that is more than the consideration they paid for it, the excess is income of the lessee under section CC 11 (Lessee acquiring lease asset on expiry of term of lease).

Allocation and association

- (3) For the purposes of subsection (2),—
  - (a) the excess is income of the lessee in the income year in which the lessee or associated person disposes of the asset:

- (b) association is determined at the time of acquisition by the associated person.

Exception

- (4) Subsection (2) does not apply if the consideration derived on the disposal is income of the lessee or an associated person under a provision of this Act other than this section.

- (1) This section applies when a finance lease ends by the date on which its term ends.

Acquisition by lessor at end of lease

- (2) If the lessee does not acquire the personal property lease asset by the date on which the term of the lease ends, the lessor is treated as having acquired it on that date at its guaranteed residual value. If there is no guaranteed residual value, the consideration is treated as zero. In this section, the consideration is called the notional sale price.

Further sale, assignment, or lease

- (3) Subsections (4) and (5) apply when the lessor sells, assigns, or leases the lease asset to another person under another finance lease on or after the date on which the term of the original lease ends.

When consideration more than notional sale price

- (4) If the consideration is more than the notional sale price,—
- (a) to the extent to which it is paid by the lessor to the lessee under the original finance lease, the notional sale price is increased by the amount of the difference; and
- (b) to the extent to which it is not paid by the lessor to the lessee under the original finance lease, the amount of the difference is income of the lessor under section CC 12 (Lessor acquiring lease asset on expiry of term of lease) in the income year in which the original lease term ends.

When consideration less than notional sale price

- (5) If the consideration is less than the notional sale price, and the lessee is required to pay the amount of the deficit to the lessor, the notional sale price is reduced by that amount.

Acquisition by lessor when lease ends early

- (6) If the lease is terminated before the end of its term and the lessee does not acquire the lease asset, the lessor is treated as acquiring it for an amount calculated using the formula—outstanding balance – release payment.

Definition of items in formula

- (7) In the formula,—
- (a) outstanding balance is the amount of the outstanding balance of the loan on the date on which the lease is terminated:

- (1) This section applies for the purposes of sections FA 6 to FA 10 if—
- (a) the lease is a consecutive or a successive lease that, under the definition of lease, is treated as part of the original lease because the same personal property lease asset is leased to the same lessee; and
  - (b) the total lease runs for more than 75% of the lease asset's estimated useful life, although the lessor and lessee did not contemplate at the start of the term of the original lease that it would.

Adjustment required

- (2) The lessor and lessee must each adjust their income and expenditure calculated for the lease, and include the adjustment in a return of income for the tax year corresponding to the income year in which the adjustment is made.

Amount of adjustment

- (3) The amount of the adjustment is calculated in relation to the period described in subsection (5) using the formula—
- $$\begin{aligned} & \text{finance lease income} - \text{finance lease expenditure} \\ & - \text{operating lease income} + \text{operating lease expenditure.} \end{aligned}$$

Definition of items in formula

- (4) In the formula,—
- (a) finance lease income is the income that would have been derived under the lease if the lease were a finance lease:
  - (b) finance lease expenditure is the expenditure that would have been incurred under the lease if the lease were a finance lease:
  - (c) operating lease income is the income derived under the lease as if the lease were an operating lease:
  - (d) operating lease expenditure is the sum of deductions allowed if the lease were an operating lease.

Adjustment period

- (5) The period starts on the date on which the lease starts and ends on the last day of the income year in which the lease becomes a finance lease.

Adjustment positive

- (6) If the adjustment is positive, the amount is income of the lessor or the lessee under section CH 6 (Adjustments under consecutive or successive finance leases).

Outstanding balance

- (3) The outstanding balance is the amount calculated using the formula—
- $$\begin{array}{l} \text{net balance due on termination} \\ - \text{buyer's termination payment} \\ + \text{seller's termination payment.} \end{array}$$
