What is now called the Viking Age extended from the late 8th century to the 11th century. During this time the Vikings traveled from Scandinavia as far east as Constantinople (perhaps even to modern Iraq) and as far west as modern Newfoundland, in search of treasure, timber, and trade. Yes, their methods were at times harsh but they were not unique in forcing their way into established settlements. The Vikings were master ship builders, seafarers, and metal workers. Their settlements in Greenland and Newfoundland died out but others, notably Dublin, survive to this day. Viking influences on art, seafaring and navigation, and languages are profound.

Inspired by pagan myth, the Drage (dragon) design harkens back to Viking times. Handsome pewter jewelry is made by Tinn Per in Norway.

C | The sumptuous wool Oseberg Blanket from Vingtor of Norway features the prow of the famous Oseberg Viking ship. Found in a burial mound near Oslo in 1904 and currently displayed in Oslo's Viking Museum, the Oseberg ship contained historically invaluable artifacts of the Viking era. 54x72" 59787 $195

The Jelling Rune Stones, located in Jelling, Denmark, are two massive carved stones dating from the 10th century. The older stone was commissioned by King Gorm the Old to honor his wife, Thyra. The larger stone was commissioned by their son Harald Bluetooth to honor his parents, to celebrate his victories over Denmark and Norway, and to commemorate the conversion of Denmark to Christianity. These items with classic Jelling designs are from Koustrup in Denmark.

Revised and updated, this authoritative account of the Viking world talks of warriors and accomplished seamen, jewelers, sculptors and poets of great skill and originality: the forts, town sites, ships, burial mounds, carved stones, place names, sagas, art and artifacts they left behind substantiating their legendary exploits. The text is complemented by a wealth of illustrations, including maps and reconstruction drawings. Photographs, many of them especially commissioned, portray the brilliant products of the Vikings' culture and the beauty and harshness of the natural world they faced. KITCHEN ART

From various Scandinavian studios and museums, well-known designs on practical items.

Active in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, esteemed Norwegian artist Theodor S. Kittelsen straddled the Naive and Neo-Romantic styles. His inspiration was usually nature or mythology, with mountains, birds, and trolls among his most popular themes.

Raised in a home plagued by tuberculosis, poverty, and mental illness, Norwegian Edvard Munch (1863-1944) developed a style reflective of each. He sought, through his art, to "explain life and its meaning to myself." He abandoned Impressionism and sought a style in which he could more readily release emotion and energy. Thus, his most famous work, The Scream.

Our Story

From our founding in 1921 by Charlie Ingebretsen, an immigrant from Norway, to the 2nd, 3rd, and now 4th generations of the Ingebretsen and Dahl families, we are proud to be a mainstay on Minneapolis' East Lake Street, still a vibrant neighborhood where new immigrants come to make a start. We strive always to be a place that fosters an understanding of and appreciation for our cultural heritage, by offering great service and excellent products.

As we celebrate our 95th year in our Lake Street home, we are so thankful to our wonderful staff, and especially to you, our many and loyal customers.

We hope you can visit soon!

Visit us in Stockholm, Wisconsin too! Stockholm is a tiny village known and loved for its unique shopping and great food. On the shores of Lake Pepin, it's less than 2 hours from the Twin Cities.

And visit too our newest adventure, Also Ingebretsen's gift shop and coffee cafe at Norway House (featuring amazing waffles!), just a few blocks away at 919 East Franklin – a new meeting space for Norwegian-Americans and also home to a wonderful art gallery.

We've Got Classes - and lectures, events, book signings – join us as we explore our culture in fun and fascinating ways! Call or check our website for schedules.
