The Master in Sports Law at Real Madrid Graduate School were ten months of one of most enriching experiences in my career as a lawyer since I went hand in hand with the top professionals of the field into understanding the complete overview of the world of sports law from an international perspective. The Master presents itself a challenge because it required hard work and quick adaptation in a short span of time. A remarkable quality of the program, besides its lecturers, are the internships offered which are studied to best fit your profile. I had the privilege to undergo an internship at a prestigious sports law firm, Sportia Law, where I was able to engage with the leading attorney and work on a variety of interesting cases which helped me develop my skillset as a professional and as a person.

I am happy that I studied my Masters in International Sports Law at the Escuela Universitaria Real Madrid. Unlike other Universities, which tend to focus only on the theoretical aspect of the course, the Escuela Universitaria Real Madrid offers a student the opportunity to be placed on an internship at the end of the course and that is the reason why I initially applied. The course is divided into two sections, a theoretical section as well as a practical section that consists of the moot courts (including the drafting of pleadings) and ultimately the internship. Throughout the duration of the course, my expectations were met. I was taught by world class professors, who provided me with the necessary theoretical knowledge and practical skills which prepared me for the moot courts and the internship. For my internship, I was placed at one of the best international law firms, Pinto Ruiz Del Valle in Barcelona, which has an excellent sports law department. Under the guidance of the attorneys working in the department, I have not only grown professionally but personally as well. Studying at the University, the professors I have been exposed to and the internship has been one of my professional highlights.
