

An aerial, top-down view of a dense urban street grid. The image is split vertically: the left half is tinted in a cool blue, while the right half is tinted in a warm orange. A dark blue horizontal band is centered across the image, containing the text 'INTERNATIONAL STRATEGY FORUM' in white, uppercase, sans-serif font. The text is underlined with a thin white line.

INTERNATIONAL STRATEGY FORUM

SCHMIDT FUTURES

BIOS

JARED COHEN

Jared Cohen is the founder and CEO of Jigsaw, which is an independent unit at Google focused on building technology to address global security challenges. He also serves as a Senior Fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations.

Previously, he was Google's first Director of Ideas and chief advisor to Google's CEO and executive chairman Eric Schmidt. From 2006 to 2010 he served as a member of the Secretary of State's policy planning Staff and as a close advisor to both Condeleezza Rice and Hillary Clinton.

Cohen is The New York Times bestselling author of five books, including Children of Jihad, One Hundred Days of Silence: America and the Rwanda Genocide, The New Digital Age: Transforming Nations, Business, and our Lives, which he co-authored with Eric Schmidt, Accidental Presidents: Eight Men Who Changed America, and the forthcoming Life After Power. His writing has appeared in The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, Foreign Affairs, the Los Angeles Times, The Washington Post, TIME magazine, and Foreign Policy.

He has been named to the "TIME 100" list, Foreign Policy's "Top 100 Global Thinkers," Fortune's "40 Under 40," and Vanity Fair's "Next Establishment."

Cohen serves on several advisory boards, including the Secretary of State's Foreign Affairs Advisory Board, Allianz, Stanford University's Freeman-Spogli Institute, Rivet Ventures, FluidMarket, ASAPP, National Counterterrorism Center, and Columbia World Projects.

Cohen received his B.A. from Stanford University and his M.Phil in International Relations from the University of Oxford, where he studied as a Rhodes Scholar. He speaks fluent Swahili.

FAREED ZAKARIA

Fareed Zakaria hosts Fareed Zakaria GPS for CNN Worldwide and is a columnist for The Washington Post, a contributing editor for The Atlantic, and a bestselling author.

Fareed Zakaria GPS is a weekly international and domestic affairs program that airs on CNN/U.S. and around the world on CNN International. Since its debut in 2008, it has been a prominent television forum for global newsmakers and thought leaders.

Interviews on Fareed Zakaria GPS have included U.S. President Barack Obama, French President Emmanuel Macron, Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao, Russian President Vladimir Putin, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, and Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan.

Other past guests include military officials such as Gen. David Petraeus and Adm. Michael Mullen; corporate leaders such as Goldman Sachs CEO Lloyd Blankfein and Pepsi CEO Indra Nooyi; and other public figures like Bill Maher and Bono. The program earned the prestigious Peabody Award in 2011 and an Emmy® Award nomination in 2013.

Zakaria has regularly hosted primetime specials for CNN Worldwide, such as "Blindsided: How ISIS Shook the World," "Why Trump Won," and "Putin: The Most Powerful Man in the World."

He frequently contributes his thoughtful analysis of world events and public affairs to CNN.com; Fareed's Global Briefing, a daily digital newsletter; and other programming across CNN's multiple platforms.

Zakaria is the author of three highly-regarded and New York Times bestselling books; In Defense of a Liberal Education (2015), a commentary on the importance of a well-rounded education; the international bestselling The Post-American World (1st ed. 2008, 2nd ed. 2011), a discussion of the rise of non-Western powers; and The Future of Freedom (2003), a study of "illiberal democracy" in various countries, also an international bestseller.

Prior to his tenure at CNN Worldwide, Zakaria was editor of Newsweek International, managing editor of Foreign Affairs, a columnist for TIME, an analyst for ABC News, and the host of Foreign Exchange with Fareed Zakaria on PBS.

In 2017, Zakaria was awarded the Arthur Ross Media Award by the American Academy of Diplomacy. He was named a "Top 10 Global Thinker of the Last 10 Years" by Foreign Policy magazine in 2019, and Esquire once called him "the most influential foreign policy adviser of his generation."

Zakaria serves on the boards of the Council of Foreign Relations and New America. He earned a bachelor's degree from Yale University, a doctorate in political science from Harvard University, and has received numerous honorary degrees.

JON BATEMAN

Jon Bateman is a fellow at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, where he researches the intersection of technology, cybersecurity, and geopolitics.

Bateman previously was special assistant to then-Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Joseph F. Dunford, Jr. He led strategic analysis within the Chairman's internal think tank, including assessments of the technology industry, geopolitical competition, arms control, and military education. Bateman was also the first civilian speechwriter to the Chairman, shaping engagements with global leaders and audiences.

Bateman also served as director for Cyber Strategy Implementation in the Office of the U.S. Secretary of Defense. He developed the first comprehensive policy for military cyber operations, and helped to establish a unified Cyber Command. Bateman co-founded the central oversight element for all defense cyber activities, the secretary's Principal Cyber Advisor Staff.

An intelligence officer by training, Bateman was senior intelligence analyst for Iran at the Defense Intelligence Agency. As the agency's senior expert on Iranian cyber forces, nuclear policy, and political-military leadership, he led a team that produced strategic assessments for the White House and the Pentagon during an era of bilateral upheaval.

Bateman is a graduate of Harvard Law School (JD) and Johns Hopkins University (BA).

VIRGINIA BONEY

Virginia Boney is the Deputy Director of Policy and Strategic Planning within the Office of the Secretary at the Department of Commerce. In this role, Virginia manages the Department's policy development process and works with other senior leaders to set long-term strategic priorities.

Virginia previously served as Special Assistant to the President and Senior Director for Legislative Affairs at the National Security Council. In this role, Virginia acted as the primary liaison to Congress on foreign policy and national security issues and a senior advisor to the National Security Advisor. She was responsible for leading the formulation and coordination of congressional strategies within the NSC and across departments and agencies.

During Virginia's tenure, she successfully headed major legislative initiatives, including the President's National Security Strategy, reauthorization of Section 702 of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA), and passage of the Clarifying Lawful Overseas Use of Data (CLOUD) Act. She was also recognized by the Director of National Intelligence with the Meritorious Service Award.

Virginia has garnered over a decade of government experience, including positions as a senior staffer in the United States Senate. Prior to joining the Administration, Virginia served as Director of Appropriations for U.S. Senator Lindsey Graham (R-S.C.). In this role, she managed all Senate Appropriations Committee priorities for the Senator, developing a rare proficiency in the appropriations process.

Through Senator Graham's role as Chairman of the State and Foreign Operations Appropriations Subcommittee, Virginia obtained expertise in foreign policy issues, traveled extensively in the Middle East, Africa and Asia, and developed valuable bipartisan relationships.

Virginia is a Florida native and holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science, cum laude, from Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina. She is also a Term Member at the Council on Foreign Relations.

ASHA CASTLEBERRY-HERNANDEZ

Asha Castleberry is a military officer, a professor, and the primary co-founder of Diversity in National Security Network (DINSN). In academia, she taught foreign policy and national security at George Washington University, Fordham University and Baruch College. A U.S. Army veteran, Asha completed a 30-month deployment in the Middle East. Since the 2014 ISIL incursion in Iraq, she served as part of the Combined Joint Task Force-Operation Inherent Resolve in Iraq and Kuwait.

From December 2012 to June 2014, Asha served as the Kuwait Desk Officer for International Military Affairs, U.S. Army Central. During the Obama Administration, she worked with the State Department at the U.S. Mission to the U.N. Asha volunteered to serve as an election observer for the 2009 Presidential Election in El Salvador, and she served as part of USSOUTHCOM's peacekeeping operations in Nicaragua.

Currently, she is a Major in the U.S. Army Reserves at the Department of Defense's Defense Logistics Agency. She's a member of the Truman National Security Project's Defense Council, a recipient of the Robert J. Meyers Fund Fellowship at the Carnegie Council for Ethics and International Affairs, Adjunct Fellow at the American Security Project and a Term member at the Council on Foreign Relations.

She's been awarded the 2016 Aspen Institute Ideas Scholarship, and she's also a scholarship recipient for the Socrates Program. A graduate of Hampton University and Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs, Asha has studied Law and Business in mainland China, and she's also studied international politics at the University of Oxford's New College Program.

She is a New Leaders Council Fellow and was chosen as a Diplomatic Courier "Top 99 Under 33" Foreign Policy Leader, and a 2015 Root100 "Top African American Rising Leader." She has been featured or quoted in numerous media outlets including CNN, Fox News, CBS News, The Washington Post, The Washington Times, The Hill, Al-Jazeera English, and I24 News.

ANDREW CHOI

Andrew Choi is a Senior Fellow at the Federation of American Scientists, serving at the World Bank, working on its Famine Action Mechanism (FAM) program to better predict global crises and provide aid faster and more efficiently. Prior to joining, he was the CTO and co-founder of Predata, a machine learning and AI startup that built a predictive analytics platform for geopolitical events and risks.

He was also a co-founder of Doceoware, an education software company, where he built server side systems for massively online open courses. Prior to that, he was on the investment team at Insight Venture Partners, a New York-based growth equity firm focused on software.

Andrew holds a BSE from Princeton University in Operations Research and Financial Engineering. His comfort food is pho.

RUSH DOSHI

Rush Doshi is fellow and director of the Brookings China Strategy Initiative as well as a fellow at Yale's Paul Tsai China Center.

As director of the Brookings China Strategy Initiative, Doshi leads an effort that acquires, digitizes, and analyzes Mandarin-language open sources and studies state behavior to understand China's grand strategy.

At the Paul Tsai China Center, Doshi manages a project that seeks to audit and improve U.S.-China crisis management mechanisms. Doshi is currently special advisor to the CEO of the Asia Group and an adjunct senior fellow at the Center for a New American Security.

Previously, Doshi was a member of the Asia Policy Working Group for Hillary Clinton's 2016 presidential campaign, an analyst at the Long Term Strategy Group and Rock Creek Global Advisors, an Arthur Liman Fellow at the Department of State, and a Fulbright Fellow in China. Doshi received his doctorate from Harvard University, his bachelor's from Princeton's Woodrow Wilson School, and is professionally proficient in Mandarin.

Doshi's research has appeared in The Wall Street Journal, Foreign Affairs, The Washington Post, the International Organization, and The Washington Quarterly.

His book on Chinese grand strategy is forthcoming from Oxford University Press.

REBECCA FRIEDMAN LISSNER

Dr. Rebecca Lissner is an Assistant Professor at the U.S. Naval War College, where her research and writing focuses on the history and future of American national security strategy.

She previously held research positions at the University of Pennsylvania, Council on Foreign Relations, and Yale University, and served in government at the U.S. Department of Energy.

She lives in New York City with her husband and two children.

ELIZA GHEORGHE

Eliza Gheorghe is an Assistant Professor in the International Relations Department at Bilkent University. She earned her doctorate in International Relations from the University of Oxford (Honors, 2014) and an M.A. in Security Studies from Georgetown University (Honors, 2010), on a Fulbright scholarship.

She held research fellowships at the Institute for Peace Science and Security Policy at the University of Hamburg, Yale University, the Harvard Kennedy School, Cornell University, SAIS-Johns Hopkins University, the Norwegian Institute for Defense Studies, and the Sorbonne.

Her research was also funded by the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, Fundação Getúlio Vargas, and the University of Vienna. She is the recipient of the International Fellowship for Outstanding Researchers (2019-2022) from the Scientific and Technological Research Council of Turkey (TÜBİTAK), with her project 'The Globalization of the Atom: Nuclear Trade and the Spread of Atomic Weapons.'

Her research focuses on nuclear proliferation and the evolution of the nuclear market; questions of grand strategy and nuclear alliances; nuclear dominoes; and illicit trade and trafficking networks.

Her work has been published in International Security, International History Review, European Review of History, Cold War History, Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, Palgrave Macmillan, and the Woodrow Wilson Center for International Scholars.

MAGGIE GOODLANDER

Maggie Goodlander is a lawyer and teaches constitutional law and administrative law at the University of New Hampshire School of Law.

She has spent much of the past decade working in legal and policy positions in each branch of the United States government and in both houses of Congress.

Maggie served as a law clerk to U.S. Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer and Judge Merrick Garland of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, as a senior advisor to United States Senators John McCain and Joe Lieberman, and, most recently, as counsel to the U.S. House Judiciary Committee during the impeachment and Senate trial of President Donald Trump.

Born and raised in Nashua, New Hampshire, Maggie is a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy Reserve and serves on the board of directors of New Hampshire Legal Assistance and the World Affairs Council of New Hampshire.

She is a graduate of Yale College and Yale Law School.

NAIMA GREEN-RILEY

Naima Green-Riley is a Ph.D. Candidate in the Government Department at Harvard University. Her research focuses on U.S. and Chinese public diplomacy, and uses empirical methods to measure the extent of American and Chinese influence on public opinion in other countries.

Naima currently sits on the Board of Directors at Oxfam America. Before pursuing her Ph.D., she was a Foreign Service Officer at the Department of State. She was the Public Affairs Officer at the U.S. Consulate General in Alexandria, Egypt during the Arab Spring. She served as a Consular Officer at the U.S. Consulate General in Guangzhou, China during the Obama administration's "Pivot to Asia." She also worked as an intern and an advance associate for the White House in 2010.

Naima's writing has been featured in various media outlets, including The Diplomat, Geopolitical Monitor, and Charged Affairs. She is a 2017 Ford Foundation Predoctoral Fellow and a 2019 Young Professionals in Foreign Policy Asia Pacific Fellow.

Naima received a bachelor's degree in International Relations with honors from Stanford University and a master's in Public Policy from Harvard Kennedy School. She is proficient in Chinese, and has an intermediate-level knowledge of Arabic.

DANIEL KOH

Dan Koh is the Chief Operating Officer of HqO, a software platform designed to change the way we interact with the world around us.

He has played a key role in growing the company to over 70 employees, $51 million in capital raised, and 80 million square feet under management.

He was formerly a candidate for Congress in Massachusetts, where he came within 0.1% of the Democratic primary nomination.

Previously, Dan served as Chief of Staff to Mayor of Boston Marty Walsh, managing 18,000 employees and a $3 billion budget during one of the most prosperous four-year stretches in Boston's history, with record levels of employment and educational attainment. Previously, Dan served as Chief of Staff to Arianna Huffington, Editor-in-Chief and Founder of The Huffington Post.

He has been named to the "30 under 30" list by Forbes Magazine, "40 under 40" list by the Boston Business Journal, and Boston Magazine as a "next generation power player." In 2016, he received an honorable mention from The Boston Globe for "Bostonian of the Year." He serves on the board of the International Institute of New England and Ironstone Farm.

A native of Andover, Massachusetts, Dan holds a B.A. from Harvard College and an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School, where he was President of his section. He has run 43 marathons across the U.S. and Canada.

JUSTIN KOSSLYN

Justin Kosslyn is executive director of Civic, a new effort being incubated at TED.

Born and raised in Cambridge, Mass, he graduated from Yale in 2009 with a BS in Computer Science, and spent the subsequent decade as a Product Manager at Google.

Starting in Google Docs, he rotated through a number of teams, including Ads, Google News, and Jigsaw, where he led a range of software tools to improve digital and information security for elections, journalists, and activists.

He lives in New York City with his wife and two children.

JOE KRISTOL

Joe Kristol is a program manager at a private foundation, focused on strengthening American democracy, national security, and the rule of law.

Previously, he was Vice President at Create, a NY-based venture studio investing in early-stage startups. Before that, he was Legislative Director and Foreign Policy Advisor for Senator Tom Cotton, leading the Senator's policy team on Capitol Hill. From 2013 to 2017, Joe worked as an Engagement Manager at McKinsey & Company in NY, where he led strategic and operational transformations for public sector and financial services clients.

Prior to McKinsey, Joe served as a Marine Corps infantry officer with 3rd Battalion, 5th Marines. He led Marines on two tours overseas, deploying to the embattled Sangin district of Helmand province, Afghanistan in 2010, and with the 15th Marine Expeditionary Unit to the South Pacific, Middle East, and Horn of Africa in 2012. He left active duty as a Captain.

Joe graduated from Harvard with an A.B. in Government. He is a Board member of Operation Gratitude, a nonprofit that forges strong bonds between civilians, military, and first responders through volunteer service projects.

Joe and his wife, Delia, an Emergency Medicine physician, live in New York with their baby daughter.

ADITI KUMAR

Aditi Kumar is the Executive Director of the Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs at the Harvard Kennedy School, where she also leads the Economic Diplomacy Initiative. Her research interests include U.S. international economic policy, financial technology, and financial regulation.

Kumar was previously a Principal at management consultancy Oliver Wyman in the financial services and public policy practices. She worked primarily with U.S. commercial and investment banks as well as U.S. regulators and policymakers on designing and implementing financial regulation.

Kumar also served as a Project Manager at the World Economic Forum, responsible for leading policy discussions among financial sector executives and policymakers on managing financial risk and designing effective global financial regulation.

She has a B.S. in Economics and a B.A. in International Studies from the University of Pennsylvania's Huntsman Program, an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School, and a Master's in Public Policy from the Harvard Kennedy School.

ERIC B. LORBER

Eric B. Lorber is a Vice President at the Financial Integrity Network, where he advises global financial institutions on issues related to sanctions and anti-money laundering/combating the financing of terrorism (AML/CFT) compliance. He is also the senior director of the Center of Economic and Financial Power at the Foundation for Defense of Democracies.

Prior to re-joining FIN, Eric was a senior advisor to the Under Secretary for Terrorism and Financial Intelligence (TFI) at the United States Department of the Treasury, where he provided strategic guidance on U.S. sanctions and AML/CFT policies. Earlier in his career, he was an attorney at Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, where he advised clients in the areas of international trade regulation, compliance, and anti-corruption.

His articles and commentary on sanctions and related issues have appeared widely in the press and academic journals such as The Washington Post, The Wall Street Journal, and Foreign Affairs. He has testified before the United States Senate Judiciary Committee, Senate Banking Committee, the House Financial Services Committee, and the House Permanent Subcommittee on Intelligence on sanctions, illicit finance, and related issues, and is a term member at the Council on Foreign Relations.

Eric graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School, where he received the Noyes E. Leech Award for highest achievement in international law. He graduated from Columbia University, where he earned a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science, magna cum laude and with departmental honors, and was awarded the Charles Beard Prize for academic achievement.

QUINN LORENZ

Quinn Lorenz is a career national security professional currently serving on the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Foreign Influence Task Force.

His previous assignments include Deputy Chief of Staff to the 26th Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs H.R. McMaster at the National Security Council (NSC) where he oversaw the strategic management of the national security decision making process to include the planning and implementation of NSC, Principals, and Deputies Committee meetings.

Prior to his time at the White House, Mr. Lorenz served as a Desk Officer in the Middle East Bureau at the U.S. Agency for International Development covering Jordan, Syria, and Libya. He has traveled extensively throughout the Middle East and North Africa. Mr. Lorenz has received numerous awards for meritorious service.

He is a graduate of DePaul University and the George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs.

MAX NOVA

Max Nova is the founder of SilviaTerra. He has spent the last decade designing, building, and deploying precision forestry tools for some of the largest landowners in the US.

Using satellites, cloud computing, and mobile technology, SilviaTerra collaborated with Microsoft to develop the first high-resolution forest inventory of the United States.

This data is now informing markets for natural capital like carbon, wildlife habitat, and fire risk.

Born and raised in Louisville KY, Max earned a degree in Computer Science from Yale University.

REID PAULY

Reid Pauly is an assistant professor in the Department of Political Science and Watson Institute for International and Public Affairs at Brown University.

He writes and teaches on coercion and nuclear weapons proliferation, nuclear strategy and wargaming, and interstate secrecy and deniability.

He is working on a book about credible coercive assurance—why and how targets of coercion believe that they will not be punished after they comply with demands.

Prior to joining the Brown faculty, Reid was a Stanton postdoctoral fellow at the Center for International Security and Cooperation (CISAC) at Stanford University, a predoctoral fellow at the Harvard Kennedy School's Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs, and a Research Associate at the RAND Corporation.

Reid has a PhD in Political Science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Security Studies Program. He was an undergraduate at Cornell University. He lives in Providence, Rhode Island.

MIRA RAPP-HOOPER

Dr. Mira Rapp-Hooper is a political scientist and expert on security in the Asia-Pacific region. Her field of expertise includes Asia security issues, deterrence, nuclear strategy and policy, and alliance politics. She is currently a senior fellow for Asia studies at the Council on Foreign Relations and a senior fellow at Yale Law School's Paul Tsai China Center.

She holds a B.A. in history from Stanford University and an M.A., M.Phil., and Ph.D. in political science from Columbia University. Previously she worked at the Center for a New American Security (CNAS) as a senior fellow in the Asia-Pacific Security Program, and at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) as a fellow and as director of CSIS' Asia Maritime Transparency Initiative.

Dr. Rapp-Hooper was also Asia Policy Coordinator for the 2016 Hillary Clinton campaign. She was a Foreign Policy Interrupted Fellow, and is a David Rockefeller Fellow of the Trilateral Commission and an Associate Editor with the International Security Studies Forum.

She has published in Political Science Quarterly, Security Studies, Survival (academic), The National Interest, Foreign Affairs, and The Washington Quarterly (press). She is a regular journalistic source on Asia issues and has provided expert analysis to The New York Times, The Washington Post, NPR, and the BBC.

Her forthcoming book, Shields of the Republic: The Triumph and Peril of America's Alliances (Harvard University Press, 2020) analyzes the history of and the current challenges to the United States' system of alliances. Her second book, An Open World: How America Can Win the Contest for Twenty-First-Century Order, co-authored with Rebecca Lissner, is forthcoming with Yale University Press.

STUART REID

Stuart Reid is a managing editor at Foreign Affairs magazine. He has written for publications including The Atlantic, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Bloomberg Businessweek.

He is currently at work on a book about the 1960s Congo crisis, to be published by Pantheon Books.

MEGAN REISS

Megan Reiss is the National Security Policy Advisor for Senator Mitt Romney.

Previously she was a Senior National Security Fellow for the R Street Institute, a senior editor of Lawfare, and a visiting fellow at the National Security Institute at George Mason University's Antonin Scalia Law School.

Megan joined R Street from the office of U.S. Sen. Ben Sasse (R-Neb.), for whom she was a senior national security fellow. Megan has a bachelor's degree in human biology from Stanford University, a master of laws in international criminal justice and armed conflict from the University of Nottingham School of Law and a doctorate in public policy from the University of Texas at Austin's Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

BRETT ROSENBERG

Brett Rosenberg is Associate Director of Policy at National Security Action, a progressive foreign policy advocacy group. Previously, she was a legislative aide to Senator Kamala Harris, covering issues related to labor, education, immigration, trade, and healthcare.

She received her BA in History from Harvard and her PhD (DPhil) in International Relations from the University of Oxford, where she was a Rhodes Scholar. Her doctoral research looked at the mechanisms and consequences of presidential uses of fear politics in making and selling U.S. foreign policy.

SAMUEL SEMWANGU

Sammy graduated from Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) with an M.A. in economics and international studies. Sammy is the founder and CEO of Basse & Co., a defense technology startup, and cofounder of the U.S. Civilian Corps, a non-profit that enables more Americans to serve.

BEN TAUB

Ben Taub is a foreign correspondent at The New Yorker. In the past three years, his works for the magazine have won the National Magazine Award, two George Polk Awards, the Livingston Award, the Robert F. Kennedy Award, the Overseas Press Club Award, and the Prince Albert II of Monaco and U.N. Correspondents Association Global Prize.

He also received the ASME Next Award for Journalists Under 30, and was named one of Forbes's 30 Under 30 in Media.

TORREY TAUSSIG

Dr. Torrey Taussig is a research director in the Project on Europe and the Transatlantic Relationship at the Harvard Kennedy School's Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs. She is also a non-resident fellow at the Brookings Institution's Center on the United States and Europe. Her work focuses on transatlantic relations, great power competition, and authoritarian challenges to democratic states and institutions.

In 2018-19, Taussig was a Robert Bosch Foundation fellow based in Berlin, Germany, where she served as a foreign policy advisor in the German Bundestag and in the Transatlantic Division of the German Foreign Office. During that time, she researched and published on German foreign policy and transatlantic cooperation on China.

Previously, Taussig held pre-doctoral and post-doctoral fellowships at the Brookings Institution. In this capacity, she led the Brookings Foreign Policy Program's Democracy Working Group and the "Democracy and Disorder" publication series launched in 2018. She also held a post-doctoral fellowship at the Harvard Kennedy School's Belfer Center.

Taussig received a master's and a doctorate from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University, where her doctoral research assessed Russian and Chinese authoritarianism and foreign policy. She holds a bachelor's degree in political science and economics from Williams College.

REBECCA TURKINGTON

Rebecca Turkington is a Gates Cambridge Scholar and PhD candidate in History at Cambridge University. Her doctoral research focuses on transnational women's organizing and its influence on global policy. Prior to returning to school, she was the Assistant Director of the Women and Foreign Policy Program at the Council on Foreign Relations, and previously program manager at the Georgetown Institute for Women, Peace & Security, where she led the Institute's research on countering violent extremism, and co-authored flagship reports on gender and transitional justice and women's participation in peace negotiations.

Rebecca has a BA in International Relations/History from Wellesley College and an MA in Security Studies from Georgetown University. Her writing has been published by the West Point CTC Sentinel, Foreign Affairs, The New Republic, Defense One, Mediterranean Politics, and elsewhere, and she is currently curating an archival exhibition on U.S. participation in the 1995 UN Fourth World Conference on Women.

STEPHEN WERTHEIM

Stephen Wertheim is a historian of the United States in the world. He is Deputy Director of Research and Policy at the Quincy Institute for Responsible Statecraft, which he co-founded in 2019. He is also a Research Scholar at the Saltzman Institute of War and Peace Studies at Columbia University.

Stephen specializes in U.S. foreign policy and international order. He is author of Tomorrow, the World: The Birth of U.S. Global Supremacy (Harvard University Press, 2020) and scholarly articles on such topics as grand strategy, international law, world organization, and humanitarian intervention.

Stephen regularly writes essays on current affairs. His pieces have appeared in Foreign Affairs, Foreign Policy, The New York Review of Books, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and elsewhere. Prospect magazine named him one of “the world’s 50 top thinkers” for 2020, a status that looks more and more dubious each time he loses his phone around the house.

He received a PhD and MPhil in History from Columbia University and an AB summa cum laude from Harvard University.

NEIL BROWN

Neil R. Brown is managing director at KKR and member of the KKR Global Institute and Infrastructure teams.

Neil works at the intersection of geopolitics and finance to help KKR Funds and portfolio companies globally to identify investment opportunities, open new markets, mitigate risk, and conduct trends analysis. He is also senior fellow at the Atlantic Council, specializing in energy and foreign policy.

Previously, Neil served for over eight years as senior staff member of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, where he concurrently led energy security efforts for Senator Richard G. Lugar (R-IN). In that capacity, Neil led legislation on global energy security and governance, and countering weapons of mass destruction.

He has also served as senior advisor at Goldwyn Global Strategies, member of the U.S. Extractive Industry Transparency Initiative, and senior fellow at the German Marshall Fund, and has lived in South Asia and Africa working with refugees.

Neil is a board member of The Lugar Center, Merton College Charitable Corporation, Association of American Rhodes Scholars, and Columbia Energy Journalism Initiative.

A born Iowa farmer, Neil is also an avid skier and adequate surfer. He is an honors graduate of Harvard and received graduate MSc and MPhil degrees from Oxford, which he attended as a Rhodes Scholar.

SARAH FLAHERTY

Commander Sarah Flaherty serves as a Public Affairs Officer in the Office of the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff. An 18-year U.S. Navy Officer, she is a strategic communications and policy advisor to leaders of the military, White House and interagency.

Commander Flaherty is an expert in media relations, crisis communications, digital strategy and operational leadership.

From 2016 to 2018, she served in the White House as the Senior Policy Advisor to the National Security Advisor and received an appointment as Special Assistant to the President. Other tours include Flag Aide to the Vice Chief of Naval Operations, Director Navy News Desk and Director Office of Information.

Prior to Public Affairs, Commander Flaherty qualified as a Naval Aviator in 2004. Flying H-60 Seahawk helicopters, she deployed three times operationally and served as a Flight Instructor. She logged over 500 shipboard landings, 1500 hours, and was one of the first pilots certified for Unannounced Night Time Boardings and Authorized Use of Force.

Commander Flaherty has a BA from The College of the Holy Cross and an MA in Corporate Communications from Georgetown University and is a graduate of the Defense Information School.

JOSHUA GELTZER

Joshua Geltzer serves as the founding Executive Director of the Institute for Constitutional Advocacy and Protection as well as Visiting Professor of Law at Georgetown University Law Center. He is also an International Security Program Fellow at New America and an Executive Editor at Just Security.

Geltzer served from 2015 to 2017 as Senior Director for Counterterrorism at the National Security Council staff, having served previously as Deputy Legal Advisor to the National Security Council and as Counsel to the Assistant Attorney General for National Security at the U.S. Department of Justice. He also served as a law clerk to Justice Stephen Breyer of the U.S. Supreme Court and, before that, as a law clerk to Chief Judge Alex Kozinski of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Geltzer received his J.D. from Yale Law School, where he served as editor-in-chief of the Yale Law Journal, and his PhD in War Studies from King's College London, where he was a Marshall Scholar. Before that, he attended Princeton University, majoring in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

He is the author of US Counter-Terrorism Strategy and al-Qaeda: Signalling and the Terrorist World-View, published by Routledge; and his writings have appeared in a wide range of scholarly and popular publications including The Atlantic, the Berkeley Journal of International Law, Defense One, Foreign Policy, the Journal of Constitutional Law, The New York Times, Parameters, Politico, Studies in Conflict & Terrorism, and The Washington Post. He has appeared on BBC, Bloomberg TV, CBS, CNN, C-SPAN, Fox News, MSNBC, National Public Radio, and more.

Geltzer is a life member of the Council on Foreign Relations, a member of the American Law Institute, a member of the American Bar Association's Rule of Law Initiative board, and a member of the Hostage US board of directors.

JULIAN GEWIRTZ

Julian Gewirtz is a Research Fellow at the Columbia-Harvard China and the World Program, a Lecturer in History at Columbia University, and an Affiliated Scholar at Georgetown's Center for Security and Emerging Technology.

He is the author of Unlikely Partners: Chinese Reformers, Western Economists, and the Making of Global China (Harvard, 2017) and The Remaking of China: Myth, Modernization, and the Tumult of the 1980s (Harvard, 2021).

He previously served in the Obama Administration, most recently as special advisor for international affairs to the Deputy Secretary of Energy.

His research and writing have appeared in Foreign Affairs, Harper's, The Journal of Asian Studies, Past & Present, The Wall Street Journal, and The Washington Post.

JOSH MARCUSE

Josh Marcuse serves as the head of strategy & innovation for Global Public Sector in Google Cloud. He also serves as an Advisor to Schmidt Futures. Josh served in the U.S. Department of Defense from 2012-2020. In support of its founding Chairman, Dr. Eric Schmidt, Josh launched the Defense Innovation Board (DIB), and served as its first executive director. Previously, Josh worked at the Center for Strategic & International Studies, Booz Allen Hamilton, and the Council on Foreign Relations.

Josh is the founder and chairman of Young Professionals in Foreign Policy (YFPF); serves on the board of the Defense Entrepreneurs Forum; established and co-chaired the Federal Innovation Council at the Partnership for Public Service, and launched the Federal Innovator Network. He is an advisor to the Tech Talent Project, a Fellow of the Truman National Security Project, a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and was a 2015 Brimley Fellow at the Center for a New American Security.

When not working or volunteering, Josh is probably cooking. Josh is a New Yorker, currently transplanted to Alexandria, Virginia with his wife and 3-year-old hiking partner, Roosevelt.

MEGHAN O'SULLIVAN

Meghan O'Sullivan is the Jeane Kirkpatrick Professor of the Practice of International Affairs and director of the Geopolitics of Energy Project at Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government.

She is also the Chair of the North American Group of the Trilateral Commission. She is an award-winning author and her third book, Windfall: How the New Energy Abundance Upends Global Politics and Strengthens America's Power, was published in 2017. Dr. O'Sullivan has extensive experience in policy formulation and in negotiation, including serving as special assistant to President George W. Bush and Deputy National Security Advisor for Iraq and Afghanistan. She is on the board of Raytheon Technologies and the Board of Directors of the Council on Foreign Relations.

She is also a member of the International Advisory Group for the British law firm, Linklaters, a columnist for Bloomberg Opinion, a consultant to energy companies, and a senior advisor at WestExec Advisors.

She is a trustee of the German Marshall Fund and the International Crisis Group, and serves on the board of The Mission Continues, a veterans' organization.

Dr. O'Sullivan was awarded the Defense Department's highest honor for civilians and, three times, the State Department's Superior Honor Award. She was a Luce Scholar in Indonesia and a Henry Crown Fellow. She has a B.A. from Georgetown University and a masters and doctorate from Oxford University.

JAKE SULLIVAN

Jake Sullivan is a non-resident senior fellow in Carnegie's Geoeconomics and Strategy Program and Magro Family Distinguished Fellow at Dartmouth College.

Sullivan served in the Obama administration as national security adviser to Vice President Joe Biden and director of policy planning at the U.S. Department of State, as well as deputy chief of staff to Secretary of State Hillary Clinton.

He was the senior policy adviser on Secretary Clinton's 2016 Presidential campaign and previously served as deputy policy director on Hillary Clinton's 2008 presidential primary campaign and as a member of the debate preparation team for Barack Obama's general election campaign.

Sullivan has also been a senior policy adviser and chief counsel to Senator Amy Klobuchar from his home state of Minnesota, worked as an associate for Faegre & Benson LLP, and taught at the University of St. Thomas Law School. He clerked for Judge Stephen Breyer of the Supreme Court of the United States and Judge Guido Calabresi of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

Sullivan holds both undergraduate and law degrees from Yale and a master's degree from Oxford.