JOSEPH KEIFFER Return to Acadia

Fire Over Sutton, oil on canvas, 18 x 12 inches

We are pleased to bring Joseph Keiffer back to Ellsworth with our first solo exhibition of his work at Courthouse Gallery. I became aware of Keiffer's work seven or eight years ago while driving down Main Street in Ellsworth. There was a small shop next to The Grand, and I often noticed the landscapes displayed in the window. The paintings stood out, even from the car. Then one day, the shop was gone.

The shop was The Armoire, owned by Francesca Zolotov. She sold a mix of objects, silver, and "works of art," and Keiffer showed his work there for over a decade before it closed in 2009. Zolotov met Keiffer in New York when he worked at Sotheby's as a cataloguer and a junior painting and print appraiser. Once Zolotov learned he was also a painter, she invited him to show at her shop in Ellsworth. Keiffer, who first came to Maine in the 1970s, began to spend more time here, and Zolotov introduced him to various spots along the coast to paint. They enjoyed many good times and successful years together.

Although Keiffer's work would fit nicely with our stable, it took some persistence to track him down. Eventually I found his name, but an internet search turned up nothing. Time passed, I got busy, lost the name, and yet, memories of the paintings lingered. This past year, I looked for his name again, and soon a new internet search brought up Keiffer's new website. A phone call led to a studio visit in New York, and to this solo show. Keiffer is delighted to be home in Ellsworth again, and we're delighted to bring him back!

The World According to Keiffer by Carl Little

I wouldn't want to be accused of promulgating any rules for artistic success, but I do suggest that would-be painters cannot find a better teacher than the world they see with their own eyes...

—Joseph Keiffer

Every painter must choose—or be chosen by—a subject. As they walk through this world, certain objects and images appeal to their senses. They strive to convey these sensations by way of pigments, offering us their findings.

Joseph Keiffer presents places and objects that have caught his eye—and which in turn catch ours. He offers landscapes and still lifes; he paints both fireworks and a lamp-lit room. He is a stylist, but without overdoing it. His work sometimes has the feel of certain nineteenth century artists, yet he brings his own sensibility to bear on each canvas.

Exploring the coast of Maine, Keiffer will set up his easel before a motif and get to work. He is not afraid to take on the iconic view, be it Caterpillar Hill overlooking Eggemoggin Reach and the Deer Isle Thorofare or the Porcupine Islands dotting Frenchman Bay. His painting of Bar Island in Somesville may hark back to Fitz Henry Lane, who frequented the area, but the rendering is his alone: bright and balanced.

The Yellow Bath, oil on canvas, 15 x 10 inches

Frenchman's Bay, The Porcupines, oil on canvas, 25 x 27 inches

Spirits and Vessels, oil on canvas, 18 x 15 inches

Paintings of fireworks over Northeast Harbor and Sutton Island employ a profound blue reminiscent of Maxfield Parrish. Keiffer captures the light shows in mid-burst, water and anchored sailboats briefly illuminated by the pyrotechnics, smoke drifting off—transfigured night.

Keiffer can be intimate, painting a room with shelves filled with books to which we would like to retire. His still lifes of flowers are lovely: potted pansies, a rhododendron blossom in full glory, nasturtiums arranged in a simple enamel measuring cup. Speaking of cups: the painter has a special passion for vintage tin ware and glass, which comes to a kind of climax in the remarkable balancing act that is titled Pink Plate.

The brushwork ranges from flat to painterly, with the former the favored approach. Recreating the deck of a sailboat (Wing and Wing), Keiffer maintains a tight line that befits the precision of rigging, cowl vents and woodwork. By contrast, to depict the denouement of a field of lupine he turns to more impressionist means.

Like the dock that stretches out onto the water in the painting Hancock Landing, Joseph Keiffer leads us into a world at once familiar and enticing, Accept his invitation and set sail.

BACK COVER Somesville Landing, detail, oil on canvas, 18 x 36 inches

A detailed landscape painting depicting a serene scene at sunset. In the foreground, a calm body of water reflects the warm, golden light of the setting sun. The shoreline is rocky and lush with green grass and small yellow wildflowers. A vibrant bed of purple and blue flowers is scattered across the middle ground. In the background, a white, two-story house with a porch is nestled among a dense forest of green trees. To the left, a tall, white church steeple rises above the foliage. The sky is a soft gradient of orange and yellow, suggesting the end of a peaceful day.
