No. 24 NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD MEN TO COME TO THE AID OF THE PARTY

Student Committee Of Commerce Formed

At the first meeting of the Kenyon Committee of Commerce, an organization conceived by Robert Tanner and approved by the Senior Council as a Kenyon organization, the following were elected to office: President, Edward O'Rourke; Vice-president, Bruce Bothwell; Secretary, William Lewis. The purpose of this now fully organized com-mittee lies in its ability to protect the student body from rackets, crooks, cut-throat bargaining and such, and protect student workers from the competition of such bargainers.

Since those running any business enterprise on the campus are required to belong to this committee by Senior Council action, the committee Kenyon Mourns as has complete control of all local business. A Last Minute Appeal

GENTLEMEN:

In years gone by the Collegian has, at dance weekend, appealed to the young lady quests to keep the party on a high level ... We have indicated proper procedures, listed appointments, and even outlined the polite thing to do. Candidly men, it didn't do any good. Now we appeal to you, Kenyon men, to preserve the proper attitude during this trying weekend.

We have listed several simple rules which seem to us to be the kind of rules that nobody would want to disobey. For the good of the community these rules should be kept. Don't be a slacker; maintain the five point program:

- 1. Do Not Walk On the Grass.
- 2. Do Not Feed the Faculty.
- 3. Walk, Do Not Run, To the Nearest Exit.
- 4. Step Back In the Car Please.
- 5. Remember the Alamo.

These rules seem to be simple and to the point. If the Collegian Board should feel the urge to make more during the week-end, it will probably do so. Any such new rules will be posted on the Bulletin Board in the Speech Building, and will go into effect about then.

FROM THE LITERARY FRONT

By PAUL HENISSART

Gertrude Stein is a woman which explains it all. Being a woman can explain almost anything, yes, but it is still a legitimate excuse. Gertrude Stein wrote Ida and Gertie is a woman.

You will find Ida on the second shelf containing fiction in the bookshop. It is slim and the cover is mostly green, which is quite in keeping with Gertrude Stein.

Ida as a baby was born with her twin, Ida Ida. But Ida Ida stepped out of the picture for just plain old Ida who had the adventures. She lived in several parts of the United States (including Ohio), and manmarried several different husbands, aged to develop her personality, like most book-characters, by the last chapter.

The plot is not important. In fact there is a question whether there is one or not. Just remember that Gertrude Stein is a woman. Her stule has merited columns and columns of comment in everything from the Times to the New Republic. The Critics blame her book on neurosis or indigestion-they forget she is a female. She sees everything in the way she would probably see her cards at a bridge party: There is a spade a spade a spade with a pointed end. It is black black and an ace. Here style is not a style, but a lack of stylea complete naturalness. She has let herself go and while letting go has written a book or so. After a pint of a Kenyon beer party anyone could do the same.

Those critics in the magazines were wrong when they praised Stein's technique. They were foolish to be impressed or annoyed. They should have looked at the book as they would have a flightly lady and laughed.

Ida is worthwhile simply because mencement services. Richter's Creof its strangeness. It is easiest to ation is essentially dramatic, and understand if it is read aloud, disregarding punctuation (what there is of it) and not attempting to put meaning in Stein's chatter. Her thoughts flow by like a long freight train. As the train passes the cars are blurred into a red streak, but nevertheless the train in the distance becomes a clearly defined object. Such then is Ida. Don't plan to read it all. Buy it, read a few chapters and you will get the point. You will especially like Ida when she is at the swimming pool in duty of attention to contemporary San Francisco. But then, you are music recognized and fulfilled una Kenyon man.

No, this is too much. Poor Blanguernon sent a postal from "Gefangennummer, a German prison camp" . . . Oh la la.

Dear Collegian:

Gefangenennummer-I'm sorry, you have to acknowledge one more syllable-is "die Nummer des Gefangenen," the number of the prisoner which has to be given at the head of every letter.

Don't wail too much. Things like that can happen. Long long ago, when the English were fighting the Boers, a London Times telegram from Pretoria or Johannsburg reported a clash "in the neighborhood." The German newspapers, accustomed to funny battle names like Mafeking, Spionskop, Elandslaagte, etc., promptly took it up and told their readers about the great "Battle of Neighborhood" . . .

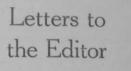

Yes, I know, there is no end of troubles in a newspaperman's job. Take it coolly.

Sincerely yours, Richard Salomon. Ed. Our necks are properly pink.

Chalmers Comments On Greene Report

Among the reports presented at the annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges in January of this year was one by Ted Greene on the state of American education. The main points of the report were that political democracy is the only possible protection against tyranny and oppression, that only democracy is consistent with mature human dignity, that because of this, demrocracy should demand a man's life and his death, and that the most effective training for citizenship and the good life is a liberal education. It paraphrases Milton: the purpose of education is to make men free and to teach them how to bear freedom when they have it. Mr. Greene spoke out for training in writing: "We are, as a nation, becoming more and more inarticulate and our thinking is becoming more and more sentimental and banal, partly because our schools and colleges are failing to give our young people the linguistid training to which they are entitled.'

Dr. Gordon Keith Chalmers, commenting on the report article in the Bulletin of the Association, said that the real intellectual troubles rise not from the sciences, but from the humanities. The perversion of the humanities is propaganda. As for the historical and philosophical study of knowledge which Greene advocated, Dr. Chalmers replied that to do so would be to remain a spectator. The Kenyon president stated: "Liberal education at present fears performance . . . is afraid of the passions . . . the educated man is com-mitted." Dr. Chalmers concluded his article with this statement: ". . . to discover inner action in the ways of the mind and will is to revitalize not only the humanities, not only liberal education, but liberalism and democracy themselves. This may be done only by a strict, fresh, vigorous discipline of the imagination, the faculty which, according to Napoleon, rules the world."

On the top floor of East Wing lived nearly a century ago the most famous of all the sons of Kenvon, Rutherford B. Hayes, '42, President of the United States. Others were Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War in the Lincoln Cabinet; Salmon P. Chase, Secretary of the Treasury in that Cabinet and later Chief Justice; two other Justices of the Supreme Court, Stanley Matthews and David Davis, who made Lincoln his party's nominee in '60; Davis' cousin, Henry Winter Davis of Maryland, who held that state in the Union; Coles Phillips, painter, and Judge Alphonse D. Rockwell, inventor of the electric chair. Kenyon Senators: Davis of Illinois, Norton of Minnesota, Goff of West Virginia, Turpie of Indiana, and Chase and Matthews of Ohio.

Henry Clay played a part in the founding of Kenyon. He sent one of his sons to the college. The latter was one of the many alumni to sit in Congress-an average of one every four years of the life of the college.

The Kentucky statesman, one of the commissioners drafting the treaty ending the War of 1812, met at that conference several English peers. When Philander Chase, first Episcopal Bishop of Ohio, went to England to seek funds for his projected institution, Senator Clay gave him letters of introduction to these noblemen. Donors were honored by Bishop Chase in naming units of the project-Lord Kenyon, Lord Gambier, Lord Bexley, the Countess of Rosse, etc.

Kenyon began in Worthington, near Columbus, removing to Gambier in 1827. The stone cross near the original edifice marks the spot:

"He climbed the Hill and said a prayer And founded Kenyon College there."

Of the gold stars in the great World War service flag that hangs in the Chapel, one-third represent Rhodes Scholars at Oxford.
