Thirty years ago, on April 5, 1991, 300 or so folks met at 7 pm at the new Calabasas High School meeting room at Mulholland Highway and Old Topanga Canyon Road.

They came from all over LA, California, the USA and the world to see five of their own "call to order" the first Council meeting of the new City of Calabasas - the 88th City of LA County, next to the "county lines" of Ventura in the unique Santa Monica Mountains and shores of Southern California.

Many of the officials who came to "certify" and "celebrate" the cityhood of Calabasas, were from groups that had planned to move over 100 million yards of earth, build super highways and

That night there were communal sighs of relief, joy, hope, praise, laughter, pride, and purpose on the dais and in the "room" as the five Council Members elected their first leaders and hired a City Manager "refugee" from Beverly Hills, who had weeks before brought a million bucks of our tax revenue back from Sacramento so we could buy our first pencil, phone, and rental "City Hall" in a Calabasas Square building Our first two rooms were next door to Old Town Calabasas and its historic Leonis Adobe and museum (CA:1844).

Valley resident and journalist Alicia Doyle's book, A Fighting Chance, is being turned into a movie. The film is currently under development with Slavica Bogdanov of Empowering Entertainment. A Fighting Chance is the true story of how Doyle discovered boxing at age 28 in the late 1990's when she went on assignment at a boxing gym for at-risk youth called Kid Gloves. For two years, she simultaneously worked as a newspaper reporter while training and competing as a boxer, making her one of only a few hundred women in America who infiltrated this male-dominated sport. During her boxing career, she won two Golden Gloves championship titles and earned three wins by knockout - and her pro debut at age 30 in the year 2000 was named The California Female Fight of the Year. Fighting Chance offers an inside look at what's considered the toughest sport known to man.

Guest Editorial: Vaccines Creating a Two-Tier Society

By Laura Levinsky

The Governor has set June 15, 2021 as the date for the full reopening of California. What exactly that means has yet to be determined. It is over two months and millions of vaccinations away.

For now, while the pandemic guidelines have served to make most of us more intentional and careful about what we do and who we allow near us, it has also made us into a two-class society: those who have been vaccinated and those who have not.

It wasn't intentional, not at all. However, as the number of people fully-vaccinated increases and regulations decrease, we have in fact become just that. Two vacillating groups of people, with varying rights and privileges.

If you are fully-vaccinated, and gather with others who are also fully-vaccinated, the guidelines say you can safely do so without masks. Once you have received both shots, (or one from Johnson & Johnson) you can even get all sorts of giveaways at restaurants and other businesses. Heck, you can even get the card laminated for free so it is easier to keep without damaging it.

You can fly domestically without having to quarantine at either end of your flight. You can finally see your family in other states without fear of contacting Covid-19. But is this bringing us together or tearing us apart?

We have so many things that some wish to use to separate us by race, creed, origin, religion, political preference and wealth. As a society, we have spent a good part of our collective pandemic lives fighting against such causes. And now, we are using the have and have nots as a way to divide us once again. Only this time we

Those who have not will have to continue to wait, for the vaccine, and all that comes with being fully vaccinated. have very little choice in whether we are part of either group. The way in which the vaccination has been rolled out has made us so. It doesn't matter how much you want to be vaccinated, you are bound by the guidelines for your state, county and city. Age, job requirements and physical status determine when you are permitted to book an appointment - if you can even find an appointment. Just because you are eligible doesn't mean there has been enough to go around. Then there is the issue of special interest groups being added in. Groups have been added to group 1B so often that the people in tier two of that group were lumped in with anybody over the age of 50. That isn't the way it was laid out, but is in fact the way it happened.

Is it right? Is it wrong? It isn't either. For those attempting to get children back to school, it makes perfect sense to vaccinate teachers first. For those in that next group to qualify, it is frustrating. People are desperate to go to restaurants, so food service workers need to be vaccinated. More frustration for those waiting.

There are businesses that are allowing workers to return, only if they are fully vaccinated; stadiums and theme parks that will allow attendance only to those who are fully vaccinated. It makes sense, but it divides us into those who have gotten vaccinated and those still waiting. The haves and have nots. Those who have not will have to continue to wait, for the vaccine, and all that comes with being fully vaccinated.

The day will come when all who wish to will be fully vaccinated and the need to discriminate will no longer be valid.

Until then...

Laura Levinsky is a life-long valley resident and is still awaiting that precious second vaccination.

The homeless encampment is growing on Ventura Blvd. near the Bowlero bowling alley.

City Drops the Ball on Bowling Alley Homeless Camp

Trash. Fires. A meth lab. A growing number of RV's and tents are making camp and trouble near the bowling alley on Ventura Blvd.

Every week there is another disturbance, fight, fire or activity posted on the Citizen app about the site.

The police and LAPD Senior Lead Officer Fernandez are well aware of the problems. If there is criminal activity, the police show up. But they can't get them to move - and it appears that nothing has been done to clear it, and indeed, that the camp is expanding along the west end of the boulevard.

LAHSA - the Los Angeles Housing Services Authority shows up once a week to clean up and offer services, including hotel and motel vouchers. Sanitation workers from the county go out to the site. However, it is up to the homeless to actually accept their assistance.

Councilman Blumenfield's office says there are limited

Even though housing is available, there are limited remedies because the city council needs to pass a new ordinance and adhere to it.

legislation to the council (that not all colleagues agree on) which would make it so people who were camping near new homeless housing options would not be allowed to remain there after being offered housing.

The City Attorney has said that ordinance would be in line with limitations set by the federal court case that essentially made previous iterations unenforceable due to the lack of housing. Federal court's Judge Carter, who has ruled on the homeless situation in Los Angeles, has said many times this sort of basic law is something the City of Los Angeles needs and is what every other city he has dealt with has on the books.

Now in the west valley we have bridge housing, cabin communities and Project Roomkey sites all coming online. There are hundreds of beds opening up in the Third District; according to Blumenfield the most of any city district.

Now that they have places to go it seems the law can be enforced.

"If we can get the city council to say yes," said Blumenfield's office. "We need approval of the proposal because for the health and well-being of the community, there have to be some areas that are off limits for camping."

The councilman continues to push his proposal to the council. In the meantime, the camp continues to grow.

Godzilla Vs Kong Smashes More than the Box Office

By Katie Sterling

It's the smash hit monster movie you didn't know you needed. And yet, this latest spring blockbuster has not only entertained millions but also served as a strong indicator that people are eager and unafraid to return to theaters.

In the latest sequel of the so-called "MonsterVerse," Kong and Godzilla unite from their respective franchises to duke it out and essentially claim the title of baddest beast around. After all, there can't be two apex titans living on Earth simultaneously. Their conundrum is our entertainment as the two battle it out as only monstrous beings can, Godzilla with his atomic breath/nuclear pulse/atomic rays and Kong with well, being a powerhouse primate.

The storyline revolves around getting Kong to a fabled Hidden World which gets a little muddled in its delivery but let's be honest, are we really watching this blockbuster for the plot? Rather, the overthe-top VFX action scenes are so well executed and sound tracked, it's no wonder this blockbuster has people flocking to watch it on the big screen.

In an era where streaming services have been the true titans, Godzilla vs. Kong has been a shining example that despite the availability of watching at home, moviegoers are masking up and shelling out to see the action in theaters. Smashing pandemic records, the film has garnered approximately $48 million domestically and $285 million internationally, throwing shade on doubters that audiences would be skeptical about venturing back out. While the film clearly crowns a winner, some would argue that the true victor is the theater industry.

The humans of the film however, while boasting an impressive cast list, (Alexander Skarsgard, Rebecca Hall, Millie Bobby Brown, Kyle Chandler, etc.) fall second fiddle to the true stars of the film. The only exception is deaf orphan Jia (played by deaf actress Kaylee Hottle) who holds a special bond with Kong and essentially serves as the bridge between beast and the handlers meant to be helping him. Just under two hours, it's the perfect escape from reality and a fun kickoff to the blockbusters we've come to expect heading into the summer months. So the true question is not how will you choose to see it but rather, are you Team Godzilla or Team Kong?

Godzilla vs. Kong is rated PG-13 and is available at select theatres or HBO Max until the end of April.

Information & Straight Talk Herd Immunity is Near Despite Fauci's Denial

By Janey M. Rifkin

Uh-Oh – There's dissension in the ranks.

Or rather, in the California Department of Public Health.

You see, Dr. Anthony Fauci says the country needs to vaccinate 70-85% of the population to reach herd immunity from Covid-19.

However, latest statistics indicate at least 38.5% of the population has antibodies against the novel coronavirus. This factor brings natural immunity into the mix, but many physicians and scientists believe that vaccinated immunity will prove more durable than natural immunity.

Due to Covid exposure or vaccination, "Between half and two-thirds of our population has antibodies now," stated Mayor Eric Garcetti, thus explaining why cases in Los Angeles are down 95% in recent months.

Currently the percentage of Californians vaccinated is closing in on 30%.

Followers in the medical profession who agree with this belief argue that reinfections are rare while natural immunity is real and shouldn't be ignored.

Some experts claim natural immunity is not trustworthy. A recent Public Health England study found that less than 1% of 6,614 healthcare workers who had Covid-19 developed a reinfection within five months even though many of them work directly with Covid patients.

Some believe natural immunity after Covid infection is likely lifelong, extrapolating from data on other coronaviruses that cause severe illness, SARS and MERS.

In the February issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Rochelle Walensky, Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, has joined Dr. Fauci in playing down natural immunity. Dr. Fauci indicated we don't have good data on natural immunity.

President Biden speaks of limiting Fourth of July gatherings.

It will take more research to place our faith in the natural immunity belief.

Vaccine Safety for Pregnant Women

are

A Northridge Hospital physician is advising pregnant women on vaccine safety as expecting moms across LA County qualify in the latest tier of vaccinations - it now includes women who are pregnant.

Pregnant women considered immune-compromised and research has suggested a high risk of hospitalization due to severity of COVID-19 compared to their nonpregnant counterparts. "Pregnant women have been encouraged to receive TDAP (whopping cough) and Influenza (flu) vaccines to protect themselves and their newborns for many years," shares Dr. Paniz Heidari, OBGYN, Dignity Health – Northridge Hospital Medical vaccine recipients.

Recent reports indicate that COVID-19 antibodies have been detected in umbilical cord blood, suggesting transmission from mom to baby. Additionally, we also know breast milk contains COVID-19 antibodies which may help protect newborns after birth.

These antibodies may prove to be effective at preventing severe illness in newborns who are fragile, immunecompromised and take several months to fully develop their own immune system.

"Though many pregnant women have reported not showing symptoms of COVID-19, those with viral infections are at an increased risk of preterm birth,"

The latest outcomes suggest Moderna and Pfizer vaccines have not shown any harm for expecting moms and newborns.

Center. "These vaccines are both safe in pregnancy and now the latest outcomes suggest Moderna and Pfizer vaccines have not shown any harm for expecting moms and newborns."

The World Health Organization has noted that no specific risks have been posed in pregnancy of Moderna and Pfizer adds Dr. Heidari. "We see this with Influenza, and have seen this with severe COVID-19 infection. We know the risks of preterm birth is potentially high in COVID-19 infected women and the risks of prematurity of the infant may be long lasting. We can conclude that the vaccine may be optimal to avoid these risks."

Calabasas' First Mayor Recalls Incorporation

Our family of three left "Gower Gulch" below the crumbling Hollywood Sign after the February 9, 1971 temblor and dared to buy our first home in Mulwood, 91364, in so-called Unincorporated Woodland Hills, LA County. The house was on a terrace of dirt without a blade of grass, with what we felt was a "view" better than many of our neighbors on their piece of dirt. We started to dream and built a family of five, made many neighbor friends, sent kids walking or riding to Las Virgenes schools, and started building our community - HOAs, PFCs/PTAs, Neighborhood Watch, and on... - but our ruler was one County Supervisor 30 miles away on Temple Street (DTLA). Self-rule and self-determination seemed a distant dream.

Cityhood began on Calabasas Road (across from the Leonis Adobe and Sagebrush Cantina in the City of LA and never to be annexed.) A county developer tried to steal the El Camino Real bell from the front of the Kramer (Cooper) store and got caught. West on Calabasas Road, LA County slated a "train wreck" of 12 five and six story office buildings and 7,200 parking spaces (where The Commons and Calabasas Civic Center are today). Ahmanson Ranch over the County line was approved by Ventura County for 44 million yards of grading, 67,000 vehicle trips a day through a Victory/T.O. Blvd extension to Las Virgenes Road and the 101, and 3,050 houses, shopping centers, two golf courses and schools, sheriff, fire services, etc. Mulholland

Hwy at Cal High was to be made a four-lane median strip highway all the way to Leo Carrillo Beach, turning the mountains into more Reseda and Tarzana.

So the dreamers-turnedactivists tried to form Rancho Las Virgenes, from Valley Circle to Thousand Oaks and the Simi Hills to Mulholland Hwy. Thus began Westlake Village in 1981 and Agoura Hills in 1982, and after two more campaigns, Calabasas in 1991 on April 5.

The perils of distant governance, rising and falling economies, wars and droughts and fires - all the facts of life shouldn't dampen the spirit and ingenuity of a people who continue to dream big. We don't have to answer the question, "What if there were no City of Calabasas?" In our 30 years we took the paint brushes and challenge on April 5, 1991 to create a colorful and bright future for Calabasas. Hundreds of acres of park facilities, a world class Civic Center, award-winning landscapes and parkways, saving and planting thousands of oaks and trees to make Calabasas a "Tree City USA," winning "America In Bloom" recognition for our city's beauty, senior and youth facilities and programs that serve the needs of all, historic preservation and land conservation and health preservation - everything to enhance life and the human spirit.

Now we're looking at our third General Plan to take us to 2050. We look forward to restoring our ecosystems with regenerative practices to create even better ways to enhance the lives of our people and special places.

He Wasn't Hunting Eggs Easter Sunday...

We caught a pic of this Valley Parking Officer issuing tickets south of the boulevard in a residential neighborhood last Sunday - which was Easter Sunday! According to LADOT, Garcetti Mayor Garcetti had extended relaxed parking enforcement across the City of Los Angeles saying, "Angelenos shouldn't be penalized for staying home, avoiding unnecessary trips, and doing their part to stop the spread of COVID-19. All of us have a role to play in defeating this virus and saving lives, and no one should worry about facing extra financial burdens when they're keeping their family, friends, and community safe during this." That grace period ended just last week, April 1, when the City, we guess, thinks no one has to worry about financial burdens any more. Our call to Parking Enforcement to explain the above officer making up for lost time was unanswered by press time, but this guy is really one bad egg!
