Big Data

Edited by Benoit Leclerc, Griffith University, Australia and Jesse Cale, University of New South Wales, Australia
Series: Criminology at the Edge

Big Data entails a major disruption in the ways we think about and do things, which certainly applies to most organisations including those operating in the criminology and criminal justice fields. Big Data is currently disrupting processes in most organisations – how different organisations collaborate with one another, how organisations develop products or services, how organisations can identify, recruit and evaluate talent, how organisations can make better decisions based on empirical evidence rather than intuition, and how organisations can quickly implement any transformation plan, to name a few.

Closing the Integration Gap in Criminology

The Case for Criminal Thinking

Glenn Walters

Series: Routledge Advances in Criminology

Closing the Integration Gap in Criminology offers a multi-stage model of theory integration that organizes verified risk factors around the construct of criminal thinking to provide an exemplar working paradigm for criminology. Walters argues that theoretical integration is vital to the continued viability of criminological theory and to the growth and development of criminology as a scientific discipline. It posits that criminal thinking may be useful as a core variable in constructing a useful integrated theory for criminology, and maps out a plan for scholars to organize information for further study.

Crime, Harm and Consumerism

Edited by Steve Hall, Tereza Kuldova, University of Oslo, Norway and Mark Horsley, Teesside University, UK

This book offers a collection of cutting-edge essays on the relationship between crime, harm and consumer culture. The collection presents case studies based on rigorous empirical work in the fields of consumption and debt, 'outlaw' gangs, and the relationship between social media and state surveillance. Written in a clear and direct style, this book will appeal to students and scholars in criminology, sociology, cultural studies, social theory and those interested in learning about the effects of consumer culture in modern society.

Criminal Law for Criminologists

Principles and Theory in Criminal Justice

Noel Cross, Liverpool John Moores University, UK

Criminal Law for Criminologists uses theoretical and practical research to bridge the gap between 'the law in the books' (criminal law doctrine) and 'the law in action' (criminal justice process). It introduces the key policies and principles that drive criminal law in England.

Due Process Protections for Youth

Defense Counsel Policies and Disparity in the Juvenile Justice System

Emily K. Pelletier

Series: Routledge Studies in Juvenile Justice and Delinquency

Using a combination of legal and sociological research methods, this book examines the lack of specificity in the language of juvenile defense policies and connects the dots between this deficiency with the racially disparate impact of the system, contextualizing findings within a broader theoretical constructs of race and law. The author introduces common elements of juvenile defense policies, describes their impact, and makes suggestions for strengthening defense counsel policies. The book concludes with a call to action regarding expanded data-collection practices for juvenile delinquency courts.

Forensic Engineering:

The Art and Craft of A Failure Detective

Colin Gagg

Forensic Engineering: The Art and Craft of a Failure Detective synthesizes academic knowledge and advances in current process and techniques developed in the last several years, to bring forensic materials and engineering analysis into the 21st century. But this is not an academic treatise. These techniques are applied to the myriad of both private and criminal cases that the forensic engineer and investigator may face including patent and intellectual property disputes, building and product failures, faulty design, air and rail disasters, automobile recalls, and civil and criminal cases in the case of serious injury or even death.

Mapping Security in the Pacific

A Focus on Context, Gender and Organisational Culture

Edited by Sara N Amin, University of the South Pacific, Fiji, Danielle Watson, University of the South Pacific, Fiji and Christian Girard

Series: Routledge Studies in Crime and Justice in Asia and the Global South

This book examines questions about the changing nature of security and insecurity in Pacific Island Countries (PICs). Previous discussions of security in the Pacific region have been largely determined by the geo-political interests of the Global North. This volume instead attempts to centre PICs' security interests by focusing on the role of organizational culture, power dynamics, and gender in (in)security processes and outcomes.

Private Security and the Modern State

Historical and Comparative Perspectives

Edited by David Churchill, Dolores Janiewski and Pieter Leloup

Series: Routledge SOLON Explorations in Crime and Criminal Justice Histories

Based on extensive research in several international contexts, this volume provides a nuanced assessment of the historical evolution of private security and its fluid, contested, and mutually constitutive relationship with state agencies, public policing, and the criminal justice system. In doing so, the volume fills the existing gaps in historical knowledge about the emergence of private and public security organisations and provides a more robust understanding of changes in the division of responsibility for security provision, law enforcement, and punishment between public and private institutions.

Routledge Handbook of Public Criminologies

Edited by Kathryn Henne, University of Waterloo and Rita Shah, Eastern Michigan University

In an era of fake news, misguided rhetoric about immigrants and refugees, and efforts to toughen criminal laws, criminologists seeking to engage in public conversations around crime and policy arguably face an uphill battle. This book offers a comprehensive resource that addresses these challenges. It outlines the foundations of and developments in public criminology, underscoring the need to not only understand earlier ideas and debates, but also how scholars pursue public-facing work through a range of different approaches. The first of its kind, this collection captures diverse and critical perspectives on the practices and challenges of actually doing public criminology.

The Crimmigrant Other

Migration and Penal Power

Katja Franko, University of Oslo, Norway

Series: Key Ideas in Criminology

This book examines these processes and outlines how the figure of the "crimmigrant other" has emerged not only as a central object of media and political discourse, but also as a distinct penal subject connecting migration and the logic of criminalization and insecurity. Illegality defines not only a quality of certain acts, but becomes an existential condition, which shapes the daily lives of large groups within the society.

Towards a Global Femicide Index

Counting the Costs

Edited by Sandra Walklate, University of Liverpool, UK, Kate Fitz-Gibbon, Monash University, Australia, Jude McCulloch, Monash University, Australia and JaneMaree Maher, Monash University, Australia

Series: Criminology in Focus

While there are global indices for deaths that relate to public violence, such as terrorism, there is to date no systematic global count of killings of women by their intimate partners. It considers the possibilities and challenges that arise in counting intimate femicide. It argues that such an exercise needs to avoid narrow empiricism and instead be part of a broader feminist political project aimed at ending violence against women.

Dale L. June, National University, Los Angeles, California, USA

Fear, Society, and the Police examines elements of fear and how they can be controlled and turned into an effective and proper response in an emergency situation. Readers of this book will be exposed to ways fear can become an uncontrolled emotion, often leading to unnecessary acts of violence, and will examine ways and means of using reasoning to overcome unfounded fear. It will be of interest not only to those who work in law enforcement, but also to students in criminal justice, management and leadership, psychology, and sociology courses. As violence in society escalates, professionalism will require more understanding of fear-based emotions.

Prisoner Reentry in the 21st Century

Critical Perspectives of Returning Home

Edited by Keesha M. Middlemass, Howard University, and Calvin John Smiley, Hunter College - City University of New York

Series: Routledge Innovations in Corrections

This groundbreaking edited volume evaluates prisoner reentry using a critical approach to demonstrate how the many issues surrounding reentry do not merely intersect but are in fact reinforcing and interdependent. When men and women are released from prison, the journey encompasses a range of challenges that are unique to each individual, including physical and mental illnesses, substance abuse, gender identity, complicated family dynamics, the denial of rights, and the inability to voice their experiences about returning home. This book will be of interest to U.S. and international researchers and practitioners, as well as graduate and upper-level undergraduate students.

Understanding and Reducing Prison Violence

An Integrated Social Control-Opportunity Perspective

Benjamin Steiner, University of Nebraska, Omaha, USA and John Wooldredge, University of Cincinnati, USA

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Criminal Justice

Building on large dataset comprising 5,500 inmates and 1,800 officers across 45 prisons located across two of the United States (Ohio and Kentucky), this book showcases one of the largest and most comprehensive studies of prisons carried out to date. It considers both the implications of the study for theories of prison violence; and the implications of the study for preventing violence in prisons. It will be of interest to academics, practitioners and policy makers alike.

Criminal Justice Theory, Volume 26

Explanation and Effects

Edited by Cecilia Chouhy, Florida State University, Joshua C. Cochran, University of Cincinnati and Cheryl Lero Jonson, Xavier University

Series: Advances in Criminological Theory

This book undertakes a systematic study of theories of the criminal justice system, which historically have received very little attention from scholars. This is a glaring omission given the risk of mass imprisonment, the increasing presence of police in inner-city communities, and the emergence of new policy initiatives aimed at improving the quality and effectiveness of the administration of justice. Based on 14 original essays by influential scholars, this volume pulls together the most significant of these perspectives, thus creating a state-of-the-art assessment of contemporary criminal justice theory.

Fifty Years of Causes of Delinquency, Volume 25

The Criminology of Travis Hirschi

Edited by James C. Oleson and Barbara J. Costello, University of Rhode Island

Series: Advances in Criminological Theory

This volume marks the 50th anniversary of Travis Hirschi's seminal work Causes of Delinquency. The influence of Hirschi's book, and the theory of social control it described, has been empirically tested by hundreds of scholars and is generally regarded one of the three dominant theories of crime. This book describes the current state of control theory and suggests its future directions, as well as demonstrating its enduring importance for criminological theory and research. Of interest to scholars working in the control theory tradition, this book is also suitable for use in graduate courses in criminological theory.

The Theoretical Foundations of Criminology

Place, Time and Context

Jayne Mooney

This book brings criminological theory to life by presenting the core theories of criminology as historical and cultural products and theorists as producers of culture located in particular places, writing in specific historical periods and situated in precise intellectual networks and philosophical controversies. It provides an invaluable contribution to the growing conversation over criminology's 'origin story' and the level that this is grounded in the idiosyncrasies of the North Atlantic world and its historical development. This book will be invaluable reading to students and academics engaged in studies of criminology and criminal justice.

Understanding Victims of Interpersonal Violence

A Guide for Investigators and Prosecutors

Veronique N. Valliere, Valliere & Counseling Assoc., Inc., Fogelsville, Pennsylvania, USA

This book provides direct, accessible information for criminal justice personnel 'in the trenches' with the victims. It outlines interpersonal violence victims' decisions and action by providing context and factors that commonly impact victim responses, including internal factors such as culture, religion, shame, and personality, as well as external factors like access to services, support systems, and resources. These factors inhibit or facilitate responses like disclosure, resistance, contact with the offenders, and participation (or lack thereof) with prosecution. The text explains the influence of the perpetrator over the victim, the truth, and the community.

Accountability, International Business Operations and the Law

Providing Justice for Corporate Human Rights Violations in Global Value Chains

Edited by Liesbeth Enneking, Ivo Giesen, Anne-Jetske Schaap, Cedric Ryngaert, Francois Kristen and Lucas Roorda

Series: Globalization: Law and Policy

This volume inquires how regulatory tools stemming from international law, public law, and private law may or may not be used for transnational corporate accountability purposes. Attention is devoted to applicable standards of liability, institutional and jurisdictional issues, and practical challenges, with a focus on ways to improve the existing legal status quo. The book combines legal-doctrinal approaches with comparative, interdisciplinary and policy insights with the dual aim of furthering the legal scholarly debate and enabling higher quality decision-making by policymakers seeking to implement regulatory measures that enhance corporate accountability in this context.

Business Negotiations and the Law

The Protection of Weak Professional Parties in Standard Form Contracting

Carlotta Rinaldo

Series: Young Feltrinelli Prize in the Moral Sciences

Business Negotiations and the Law: The Protection of Weak Professional Parties in Standard Form Contracting aims to explore issues surrounding contract negotiations between entrepreneurs and other professionals when one party does not have the same level of bargaining power as the other. The book provides a critical and comparative overview of recent regulatory developments from a European point of view. It clarifies the direction that legislation is heading, and explores tools needed to assure the effectiveness of the common market. Corporate Takeover Law and Management Discipline

Francis A Okanigbuan Jnr

Series: Routledge Research in Corporate Law

The dominant ideologies of corporate takeovers include synergistic gains and its managerial disciplinary role. These dominant themes are being undermined by the challenges of costly acquisitions. The UK Takeover Code is a regulatory response to the role of managers of target companies only. Also, the regulatory framework for takeovers in the United States is largely focused on target companies. The book demonstrates that managements can influence the role of takeovers, thereby undermining its synergistic and disciplinary values.

Shareholder Protection Reconsidered

Derivative Action in the UK, Germany and Greece

Georgios Zouridakis

Series: Routledge Research in Corporate Law

Derivative actions have been a focal point of legislators' agendas on shareholder protection, in the past few decades, throughout Europe and beyond. Nevertheless, there remain jurisdictions, such as Greece, which are still devoid of this remedy. Against this backdrop, this book examines whether and how the derivative action may improve shareholder protection, constituting thus a mechanism that justifies legislative attention.

Housing and Financial Stability

Mortgage Lending and Macroprudential Policy in the UK and US

Alan Brener

Series: Routledge Research in Finance and Banking Law

The book addresses the relationship between housing policy, credit and financial instability in light of the recent global financial crisis, and proposes both short and long-term solutions. Although it is not known where the next crisis will come from, history suggests that it will have credit and property at its source. Thus, it is important that the UK and other countries look more broadly at what should be done in terms of policies, institutions and tools to make the housing market and mortgage lenders more resilient against a future crisis. This book sets out a number of workable proposals.

The Mandated-Choice Model

Antonios Karampatzos

Series: Markets and the Law

It suggests that the dilemma between inefficient opt-in rules and autonomy restricting opt-out schemes fails to realistically capture the span of options available to the policy maker. There is a third path, namely the 'mandated-choice model'. The book is dedicated to presenting this model and exploring its great potential. Contract law, consumer protection, products safety and regulatory problems such as organ donation or excessive borrowing are the setting for the discussion.

Criminal Defence at Police Stations

A Comparative and Empirical Study

Anna Pivaty

This book provides a comprehensive legal, empirical and contextual analysis of criminal defence at the investigative stage from a comparative perspective. It is a socio-legal study of criminal defence practice which draws upon original empirical material from England, Wales and the Netherlands. Based on interviews with lawyers, and extended periods of observation, it contrasts the encountered reality of criminal defence with the model role of a lawyer at the investigative stage.

The book will be of interest for criminal law and justice practitioners, as well as for academics focusing on criminal justice, criminology, socio-legal studies, legal psychology and human rights.

Honour Killings and Criminal Justice

Social and Legal Challenges in Turkey

Ferya Taş-Çifçi

This book analyses the motives behind honour-based violence in Turkey and examines the criminal justice system's approach to this type of crime. The work takes a socio-legal approach to explore the concept of honour, patriarchy and hierarchy, along with the role of culture and traditions. It also examines how the legal system deals with this phenomenon, focusing on the decisions of the criminal courts in honour killing cases and drawing on prisoner interviews. The analyses show to what extent the State follows the patriarchal approach when dealing with honour killings and inform recommendations to improve the legal and criminal justice system so as to deter crimes of this nature.

Commoning the City

Empirical Perspectives on Urban Ecology, Economics and Ethics

Edited by Derya Özkan and Güldem Baykal Büyüksaraç
 Series: Space, Materiality and the Normative

This edited volume reflects upon current commoning practices that produce and reproduce life in the city, creating a new ethos that affirm communal instincts for solidarity rather than profit-making, competition and individual well-being. What emerges from such practices is a culture of commoning that heralds the possibility of an urban life beyond capitalist social relationships, and that encourages imagining urban space beyond the public-private and state-market dichotomies. The volume examines this alternative urban social imaginary based on fieldwork carried out in various contexts, ranging from Hyderabad to Hamburg.

Spatial Justice in the City

Edited by Sophie Watson, Open University

Series: Space, Materiality and the Normative

Urban planning and policy interventions are always, to some extent at least, about spatial justice. And, as cities become ever more unequal, it is crucial that urbanists address questions of spatial justice in the city. To this end, this book considers these questions from a range of disciplinary perspectives. In the context of increasing division and segregation in cities across the world, along with pressing concerns around austerity, environmental degradation, homelessness, violence, and refugees, this book's overarching concern with how to think spatial justice in the city brings a fresh perspective to issues that have concerned urbanists for several decades.

Domestic Judicial Treatment of European Court of Human Rights Case Law

Beyond Compliance

David Kosař, Hubert Smekal, Katarína Šipulová, Ladislav Vyhnaněk, Jozef Janovský and Jan Petrov

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

This book brings unique empirical findings on how often, how and with what consequences domestic judges work with the ECtHR's case law. It moves beyond the narrow concept of compliance and develops a new three-level methodology for analysing the role played by domestic courts in the implementation of ECtHR case law. Using the example of Czechia it shifts the attention from Western countries to a more volatile Central and Eastern European region.

The work will be essential for students, academics and policy-makers working in the areas of Constitutional law, Politics and Human Rights law.

Embracing Vulnerability

The Implications and Challenges for Law

Edited by Daniel Bedford and Jonathan Herring

This book brings together legal scholars engaging with vulnerability theory to explore the implications and challenges for law of understanding vulnerability as generative, and a source of connection and development. The book is structured into five sections that cover fields of law where there is already significant recourse to the concept of vulnerability. This book is essential reading for both students studying legal theory and practitioners interested in vulnerability.

Feeling Queer Jurisprudence

Injury, Intimacy, Identity

Senthoran Sunil Raj

Series: Social Justice

Scholars, activists, lawyers, and judges concerned with eliminating violence and discrimination against LGBT people have generated passionate conversations about pursuing legal reform to make LGBT injuries, intimacies, and identities visible, while some challenge the ways legal systems marginalise queer minorities. Senthoran Sunil Raj contributes to these ongoing conversations by using emotion as an analytic frame to reflect on the ways case law seeks to "progress" the intimacies and identities of LGBT people from positions of injury.

Human Rights Law and Evidence-Based Policy

The Role of the EU Fundamental Rights Agency

Edited by Rosemary Byrne, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland and Han Entzinger

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

The EU Fundamental Rights Agency (FRA) was established to provide evidence-based policy advice to EU institutions and Member States. By blending social science research with traditional normative work, it aims to influence human rights policy processes through new ways of framing empirical realities. This volume critically examines the experience of the Agency in its first decade. Five core themes emerge from the exploration of FRA's historical, political and legal foundations and its evolving record across major thematic areas of EU fundamental rights.

These five themes point to the pioneering position of the Agency in new forms of institutionalized human rights research.

4th Edition

International Child Law

Trevor Buck, Alisdair A Gillespie, Lynne Ross, Sarah Sargent, Trevor Buck, Rajnaara Akhtar and Conrad Nyamutata

This book examines the rights of the child using the global framework of the United Nations International Convention on the Rights of the Child 1989. Analysing both public and private international legal aspects, this cross-disciplinary text promotes a holistic understanding of the on-going development of child law, children's rights and the protection of the child. This 4th edition has been updated and revised, including a new chapter dealing with issues arising from childhood in the age of unprecedented digital technological advancements. This edition also includes new case studies.

Edited by Mohammad Mazher Idriss

This book explores the largely neglected relationship between men, masculinities and honour-based abuse (HBA). There is a common misconception that HBA – whether physical violence, emotional abuse or so-called 'honour' killings – occurs only against women. With contributions from an international and interdisciplinary range of both academics and professionals, the book examines HBA and forced marriages specifically from male-victim perspectives, both in the UK and internationally. This book is essential reading for students, academics, and practitioners alike.

Europe and the Istanbul Convention

Edited by Johanna Niemi, Lourdes Peroni and Vladislava Stoyanova

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

This book offers an in-depth and critical analysis of the Istanbul Convention, along with discussions on its impact and implications.

It highlights the place of the Convention in the landscape of international law and policies on violence against women and equality. The authors argue that the Convention has an important role in promoting equality, but also note the debates on 'genderism' that the Convention has triggered in some member states.

It provides a valuable guide for policy makers, students and academics in international human rights law, criminal and social law, social policy, social work and gender studies.

Surveying Electronic Surveillance and Data Acquisition

Sybil Sharpe

Series: Routledge Research in Terrorism and the Law

This book re-evaluates competing arguments between national security and personal privacy. It looks at the background to recent reforms and explains how courts and the legislature are attempting to effect a balance between security and personal liberty within a social contract. It asks what drives public concern when other aspects seem to be less contentious. In view of our apparent willingness to post on social media and engage in on line commerce, it considers if we are truly consenting to a loss of privacy and how this reconciles with concerns about state surveillance.

Edited by Frances Hamilton and Guido Noto La Diega

Twenty-eight jurisdictions worldwide have now legalised same-sex marriage and many others some level of civil partnership. In contrast other jurisdictions refuse to recognise or even criminalise same-sex relationships. At a Council of Europe level, there is no requirement for contracting states to legalise same-sex marriage. Whilst the Court of Justice of the European Union now requires contracting states to recognise same-sex marriages for the purpose of free movement and residency rights, unlike the US Supreme Court, it does not require EU Member States to legalise same-sex marriage.

Sexual Orientation, Gender Identity and International Human Rights Law

Common Law Perspectives

Kerry O'Halloran, Queensland University of Technology, Brisbane, Australia

Series: Human Rights and International Law

This book identifies, analyses and discusses the nexus of legal issues that have emerged in recent years around sexuality and gender. It audits these against specific human rights requirements, and evaluates the outcomes as evidenced in the legislation and caselaw of six leading common law jurisdictions. Beginning with a snapshot of legal definitions and sanctions associated with the traditional marital family unit, the book examines the subsequently evolving key concepts and constructs, before outlining the contemporary international framework of human rights as it relates to matters of sexuality and gender.

The Development of Child Protection Law and Policy

Children, Risk and Modernities

Kieran Walsh

This book examines how child protection law has been shaped by the transition to late modernity and how it copes with the ever-changing concept of risk.

It traces the evolution of the contemporary child protection system through historical changes, focussing on the Republic of Ireland where child protection has become emblematic of wider social change. The work draws on a wide range of primary and secondary sources including legislation, case law and official and media reports of child protection inquiries.

The book will be a valuable resource for all those with an interest in the development of child protection law.

Brexit and Agricultural Law

Ludvine Petetin and Mary Dobbs

Series: Legal Perspectives on Brexit

Brexit is shaking the foundations of UK agriculture to the core. The EU market, laws and policies, including the Common Agricultural Policy, shaped the evolution of UK agriculture for decades. Brexit creates a partial vacuum that simultaneously poses considerable opportunities and challenges for the UK; it raises fundamental questions regarding whether to have a centralised or devolved approach, what objectives and standards to strive for, what markets to target and, crucially, how the law will stand post Brexit. National politics, the future relationship with the EU, international (trade) law, sustainable agriculture and environmental protection are only some of the considerations.

Codification of Maritime Law

Challenges, Possibilities and Experience

Edited by Zuzanna Peplińska-Dąbrowska, Nicolaus Copernicus University in Torun, Poland and Justyna Nawrot

Series: Maritime and Transport Law Library

This book is the first of its kind to explore the problems inherent in the unification of maritime law. Featuring contributions from leading experts at European maritime law research centres, it considers international conventions, current maritime practice, standard forms and recently adopted or drafted national codifications of maritime law from the codification point of view.

Codification of Maritime Law: Challenges, Possibilities and Experience seeks to provide common ground for future unification of maritime law, which makes the book useful both for private and public maritime lawyers and states' maritime administrations worldwide.

Disputed Territories and International Criminal Law

Israeli Settlements and the International Criminal Court

Simon McKenzie

It has been just over 50 years since the beginning of the Israeli occupation of the Palestinian Territories. It is estimated that there are over 600,000 Israeli settlers living in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, and they are supported, protected and maintained by the Israeli state. This book discusses whether international criminal law could apply to those individuals responsible for allowing for and promoting this growth. It also examines what this application would reveal about the operation of international criminal law.

Federalism and the Courts in Africa

Design and Impact in Comparative Perspective

Edited by Yonatan Fessha and Karl Kössler

Recent developments indicate that the previously stymied idea of federalism is now being revived in the constitutional arrangements of several African countries. This edited volume brings together contributions that first discuss questions of design by focusing, in particular, on the organisation of the judiciary and the appointment of judges in African federal systems. They then examine whether courts have had a rather centralizing or decentralizing impact on the operation of African federal systems.

The book will be of interest to researchers and policy-makers in the areas of comparative constitutional law and comparative politics.

The British Legacy and the Chinese Future

Richard Cullen

Series: The Rule of Law in China and Comparative Perspectives

This book adopts a fresh approach in examining the evolution of Hong Kong's political-legal experience. It establishes that prominent governance achievements were built on particular British constitutional foundations forged over many centuries. It shows how 'Diceyan Constitutionalism' was fundamental within the pivotal context of 'Chinese Familism' in shaping the development of governance institutions and operational procedures within the new British Colony.

; It also analyzes Hong Kong–Beijing relations and the long-term prospects for the HKSAR within the PRC based on a balanced

Member State Interests and European Union Law

Revisiting The Foundations Of Member State Obligations

Marton Varju

Series: Routledge Research in EU Law

The central objective of this book is to re-examine the law governing the obligations of the Member States in the European Union. This is carried out from the analytical perspective offered by the interests formulated and pursued by national governments in the EU. The book starts by analysing how diversity among the Member States, which arises from different local interests, institutional frameworks and socio-economic arrangements, is assessed and sustained in EU legislation and in the jurisprudence of the Court of Justice. It then examines the impact of EU obligations on Member State territorial authority and territoriality.

Modern Slavery Legislation

Drafting History and Comparisons between Australia, UK and the USA

Sunil Rao

Modern slavery is a new legal compliance issue, with new legislation enacted in California (Transparency in Supply Chains Act, 2010), the UK (Modern Slavery Act, 2015) and most recently, Australia (Modern Slavery Act, 2018). Such legislation mandates that business of a certain size annually disclose the steps that they are taking to ensure that modern slavery is not occurring in their own operations and supply chains. The legislation applies to businesses wherever incorporated or formed.

The Legal Consequences of Limited Statehood

Palestine in Multilateral Frameworks

Shadi Sakran

Using Palestine as a case study, this book argues that participation in a State-reserved regime is not determined by the traditional requisites of statehood. UNESCO membership unveils the acceptance of Palestine as a State for the limited purpose of the organization, without any immediate or implicit implications for the statehood of Palestine. Palestine's accessions to various multilateral treaties demonstrate this argument as do its instruments of accession being accepted by the depositaries of both the United Nations Secretary-General and national Governments without requiring any clarification of the statehood question.

Regulation of Extractive Industries

Community Engagement in the Arctic

Edited by Rachael Lorna Johnstone and Anne Merrill Hansen

Series: Routledge Research in Polar Law

The extent of extractive industries varies widely around the Arctic as do governmental and social attitudes towards resource development. Whilst most Arctic communities are united in seeking investment to fund education, healthcare, housing, transport and other essential services, as well as wanting to benefit from improved employment and business opportunities, they have different views as to the role that extractive industries should play in this. Within each community, there are multiple perspectives and the goal of public participation is to draw out these perspectives and seek consensus.

The Responsibility to Protect in International Law

Philosophical Investigations

Natalie Oman

Series: Routledge Research in International Law

This book tracks the development of the international legal principle of a Responsibility to Protect. It contrasts the influential version introduced by the International Commission on Intervention and State Sovereignty in 2001 with the more recent interpretation advocated by the United Nations through its human protection agenda, and reviews the dangers and inconsistencies inherent in both interpretations. The author demonstrates that the evolving responsibility to protect principle can be recruited to support a wide range of irreconcilable projects, from those of cosmopolitan constitutionalism to those of hegemonic international law.

The Responsibility to Protect in Libya and Syria

Mass Atrocities, Human Protection, and International Law

Yasmine Nahlawi

Series: Routledge Research in International Law

The book dissects each of R2P's three component pillars to examine their international legal underpinnings, drawing upon diverse legal frameworks – including the laws of the UN, laws of international organisations, human rights law, humanitarian law, criminal law, environmental law, and laws of State responsibility – to extract conclusions regarding existing and emerging host and third-State obligations to prevent and react to mass atrocity crimes.

Transnational Law and State Transformation

The Case of Extractive Development in Mongolia

Jennifer Lander

Series: Law, Development and Globalization

Transnational economic legal power to influence and reorganise national systems of governance evidences the constitutional dimensions of global capitalism: the power to institute new rules and limits for national states. This form of new constitutionalism does not undermine the state but transforms it by eroding national capacities and implanting global alternatives. While leading scholars in the field have emphasised the much-needed value of case studies, there are no studies available which consider the cumulative impact of multiple axes of transnational legal ordering on the national state or its constitution.

Comparative Law

Mixes, Movements, and Metaphors

Edited by Sean Patrick Donlan and Jane Mair

Series: Juris Diversitas

This book discusses a number of important themes in comparative law: legal metaphors and methodology, the movements of legal ideas and institutions and the mixity they produce, and marriage, an area of law in which culture – or clashes of legal and public cultures – may be particularly evident. It presents an innovative approach to legal pluralism, the study of mixed jurisdictions, and to language and the law, with the use of metaphors not as illustration but core element of comparative methodology.

Law, Technology and Cognition

The Human Element in Online Copyright Infringement

Hayleigh Boshier

Series: Routledge Research in Intellectual Property

This book considers a new approach to online copyright infringement. Rather than looking at the subject within a purely technological context, it provides legal analysis from a human perspective. This book highlights that there are three key instances in which the capacity of a human mind intersects with the development of copyright regulation: (1) the development of copyright statutory law, (2) the interpretation of the copyright statutory law the judiciary, and (3) human interaction with new technology.

Law, Technology and Cognition: The Human Element in Online Copyright Infringement will be of interest to students, academics, researchers, as well as practitioners.

Multi-sided Music Platforms and the Law

Copyright, Law and Policy in Africa

Chijioko Ifeoma Okorie, University of Cape Town, South Africa

Series: Contemporary Commercial Law

This book explores the legal and regulatory frameworks surrounding copyright protection, competition and privacy concerns arising from the way multi-sided platforms use copyright-protected content in digital advertising.

Providing the first pro-Africa approach to the regulation of multi-sided platforms, particularly with reference to music, this book focuses on key aspects of digital commercial activity and highlights the main challenges and opportunities for its regulation. It will be of interest to lawyers, policymakers, and students across Nigeria, South Africa, and internationally among the African Union, European Union and beyond.

Owned, An Ethological Jurisprudence of Property

From the Cave to the Commons

Johanna Gibson

This book draws upon domestication science to undertake a radical reappraisal of the jurisprudence of property and intellectual property.

Bringing together animal studies and legal philosophy, it articulates a critique of dominant property models and relationships from the perspective of cognitive ethology, domestication science and animal behaviour. In doing so, a radical new picture of property emerges.

Robots, Healthcare, and the Law

Regulating Automation in Personal Care

Eduard Fosch-Villaronga

Series: Routledge Research in the Law of Emerging Technologies

This book investigates the legal and regulatory implications of the use of personal care robots for healthcare purposes. It systematically compares the types of personal care robots and examines the different types of tasks, users, and social interactions. After analysing the potential legal and ethical issues associated with personal care robots, it concludes that the primarily principle-based approach of recent law and robotics studies is too abstract to be as effective as required by the demands of the personal care context. Instead, it recommends a risk-based approach using impact assessments that can add an essential level of precision.

The Faces of Virtue in Law

Edited by Amalia Amaya and Claudio Michelon

This volume investigates crucial ways in which our understanding of the law can be enhanced by employing the explanatory frameworks developed by Virtue Jurisprudence in the past few decades. Crucial in addressing problems with legal experience for which the resources of traditional legal theory are insufficient, this book's investigation of virtue theory and virtue jurisprudence will be of interest to all of those studying legal decision making and the philosophy of law, as well as those studying virtue ethics more widely. It was originally published as a special issue of Jurisprudence.

SEPs, SSOs and FRAND

Asian and Global Perspectives on Fostering Innovation in Interconnectivity

Edited by Kung-Chung Liu, Singapore Management University, Singapore and Reto M. Hilty, Max Planck Institute for Innovation and Competition, Germany

Series: Routledge Research in Intellectual Property

This book is a very useful reference guide on how de jure and de facto standards are being developed and how these standards compete against each other. The book also looks at how FRAND commitments are being determined on a global scale, how these disputes have played out, especially in Asia, and how they can be better dealt with. The book gives a broad overview of the business model of dominant SEP patentees and analyzes some standards for FRAND licensing of SEPs which are converging in major Asian jurisdictions. It highlights the need for ex ante regulation in the FRAND licensing of SEPs and suggests how we can reconcile conflicts which may arise from different legal standards.

Women's Health and the Limits of Law

Domestic and International Perspectives

Edited by Irehobhude O. Iyioha

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

Despite some significant advances in the creation and protection of rights affecting women's health, these do not always translate into actual health benefits for women. This collection asks: 'What is an effective law and what influences law's effectiveness or ineffectiveness? What dynamics, elements, and conditions come together to limit law's capacity to achieve instrumental goals for women's health and the advancement of women's health rights?' The book presents an integrated, co-referential and sustained critical discussion of the normative and constitutive reasons for law's limited effectiveness in the field of women's health.
