DEAN'S MESSAGE

IN THE LAST FISCAL YEAR, more than 51 percent of our graduates made gifts to the Law School. To my knowledge, this is the first time that any law school, public or private, has received gifts from half its graduates in a single year. The credit for this success belongs to you. As highlighted in the following pages, your gifts enable us to reward more students with much deserved financial aid, support faculty, and sponsor events and programs that help make the Law School a great place to work and study.

Special thanks go to a remarkable group of dedicated people—the more than 750 alumni who volunteer each year to help with annual giving. Their efforts in contacting classmates and colleagues on behalf of the school make all the difference.

As our participation rate shows, Virginia has the most faithful and committed alumni in the country. This reservoir of affection and loyalty is our institution's greatest strength.

DEAN JOHN JEFFRIES '73

THE AMERICAN IDEAL IN LEGAL EDUCATION

LEADERSHIP REPORT

July 1, 2005 through June 30, 2006

WE DID IT. WE CROSSED THE FIFTY-PERCENT MARK FOR ALUMNI GIVING. Each year we come back to you, as do our dedicated alumni volunteers, and ask you to support the school with your gifts and your time. And each year, you answer our calls.

Your gifts make the difference in the lives of many students and graduates—as you will read on the following pages. But dollars are not the only method of support. It's easy to spot the graduates who give their time to the school—keeping their Virginia connection fresh and alive. Many recruit students to their firms for summer associate positions as well as future jobs. Some teach seminars and classes on topics such as trusts and estates, tax practice and procedure, and Supreme Court litigation. Hundreds write classmates and colleagues asking for a gift in support of the school's Annual Giving Campaign. Others lead the charge on the school's Business Advisory Council, Alumni Council, Board of Trustees, and more.

We salute you, friends and graduates of the Law School, and provide you the latest information:

LAW SCHOOL FOUNDATION

- At the end of fiscal 2006, the market value of assets exceeded $249.7 million. In addition, the University's Rector and Board of Visitors hold $36.8 million in funds designated for the Law School. The combined value of the assets benefiting the Law School exceeded $286.5 million. Virginia is one of only a handful of law schools in the country with supporting assets of more than $250 million.
- Private gift support for the Law School, including annual giving, bequests, and special gifts, totaled $15,207,141.
- Membership in the Dean's Council, the Law School's highest donor recognition group, continues to grow, with more than 400 members.

ANNUAL GIVING

- The 41st Annual Giving Campaign raised more than $9.2 million, of which unrestricted gifts totaled more than $4.1 million.
- A record number 7,483 donors took part in the campaign, yielding a 51 percent alumni participation rate—the highest in the country.
- And, boding well for the Law School's financial future, a record 92% of the Class of 2006 participated in their graduation pledge drive.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Law School alumni, faculty, and friends gather for functions throughout the year. Last fall, Dean John Jeffries '73 visited our alumni in Boston and Providence. The annual fall Capitol Hill Alumni Reception, sponsored by U.S. Senator George Allen '77, took place in the Russell Senate Office Building in Washington.

Another important event took place in Philadelphia, where Professor Lillian BeVier spoke to Law alumni at the National Constitution Center. Tri-state alumni were treated to author Louis Auchincloss '41 at the annual New York City luncheon this spring. Law Alumni Weekend was once again a huge success for the nearly 1,000 alumni and their guests who returned to Charlottesville for the bevy of reunion events in May.

We thank you—our colleagues and friends—for your continued work, dedication, and recognition of the Law School. You are the legacy that is the University of Virginia School of Law.

100% PARTICIPATION

July 1, 2005 through June 30, 2006

Initiated in 1993, the 100% Participation Program challenges and recognizes firms and companies (with at least five Virginia graduates) that achieve 100% participation in annual giving. Because many firms and companies are in multiple cities, offices with five or more graduates are recognized in the program. Those interested in achieving 100% participation should contact Helen Snyder '87, Director of Annual and Reunion Giving, at (877) 307-0158, or at helensnyder@virginia.edu.

WHY GIVE?

SO VIRGINIA CAN SEND A CLERK TO THE WORLD COURT.

NAJWA NABTI '02 is the second consecutive University of Virginia Law School nominee to be selected to clerk for the International Court of Justice, or World Court, in The Hague, and she is the first recipient of the Orrick International Law Fellowship, which reimburses clerks up to $40,000 for housing, living expenses, and relocation costs.

International law firm Orrick, Herrington & Sutcliffe LLP has committed $200,000 toward the fellowship program, which is administered by the Law School at the invitation of the World Court. Virginia Law students and recent graduates may apply for nomination by the Law School. If the nominee is offered a clerkship by the Court, the Orrick International Law Fellowship underwrites their success.

"It is an honor for the World Court to recognize Virginia as a leading international law center, and it pleases us even more that Orrick, one of the truly global law firms, has so generously partnered with the Law School to sponsor this opportunity," said Dean John C. Jeffries, Jr. '73. Nabti was one of nine candidates from select universities in Europe, Australia, and the United States to be chosen to clerk for the Court. After graduating, Nabti clerked for U.S. District Court Judge Stephen M. McNamee in Arizona and then worked at Testa, Hurwitz & Thibault in Boston, where she was able to work on pro bono cases in immigration and criminal law.

In her most recent position at the Department of Justice's Board of Immigration Appeals, Nabti drafted decisions in administrative appellate immigration cases, a role she's had since July 2005. "When I moved over to the government I was able to focus more on immigration and asylum cases, which also have constitutional implications, so it's very interesting work," Nabti said. But the World Court, with its jurisdiction to investigate and decide cases like those involving genocide in the former Yugoslavia, beckoned.

"It's a very unique experience to actually practice public international law. This clerkship provides a terrific opportunity to get that exposure," Nabti said. "I realize, especially coming from Virginia, what the competition must have been. I feel very fortunate to have been selected."

Nabti says she appreciated the financial aid that comes with the fellowship.

"It particularly makes a difference for new graduates who have student loans," she said. "I think it opens the door for many who otherwise might not be able to go. It's a very helpful contribution."

"International law is an essential element of global commerce. The ICJ, in turn, is critical to the effective application of international law," said Ralph Baxter '74, chairman and CEO of Orrick. "We are delighted to sponsor University of Virginia students as they experience the ICJ first hand."

DEFERRED GIFTS

July 1, 2005 through June 30, 2006

The following individuals have made deferred gifts, including bequests, living and testamentary trusts, gifts of retirement plan assets, and life insurance designations, as well as life income arrangements such as gift annuities, pooled income funds, and charitable remainder trusts. These gifts will provide important financial support for the Law School's future students and faculty. (Revocable deferred gifts for which we do not know a dollar amount are not listed.)

If you have created a deferred gift for the Law School, please notify Leadership Gifts Officer and Planned Giving Advisor, M. Elizabeth Leverage '92, at (877) 307-0158, or eleverage@virginia.edu.

WHY GIVE?

TO UNDERWRITE THE COST OF THE VIRGINIA LOAN FORGIVENESS PROGRAM.

MANY OF THEM SPEAK FOR THOSE IN NEED, some work in underserved areas of Virginia. But regardless in what capacity they serve the public, UVA Law graduates eligible for the school's loan forgiveness program universally sing its praises. A nationwide survey conducted in 2004 documents salary information for entry-level attorneys in the public sector, as well as public interest organizations. At the time of 2004 survey by the National Association for Law Placement Survey, the median entry-level public interest lawyer salary ranged from $34,000 for civil legal services organization attorneys to $40,574 for state prosecuting attorneys.

Without the Virginia Loan Forgiveness Program, funded primarily by alumni gifts, many graduates would be coerced to pursue careers in the private sector to repay their student loans. The VLFP gives the students the option of choosing public service. It also plays an important role in attracting students to the Law School--as students want to be part of an institution that makes loan forgiveness a priority.

The VLFP presumes that graduates who earn less than $35,000 per year are unable to pay their Law School education loans. They receive 100 percent assistance for the year. Those who earn $35,000 (adjusted gross income) or more are presumed able to pay one-half of their income above $35,000.

The program defines public service employment broadly to include jobs worldwide with federal, state, or local governments, legal aid offices, prosecutors, public defenders, public interest organizations, and legal reform groups that qualify as nonprofit organizations. The majority of the more than 80 alumni enrolled in the program work as public defenders or prosecutors. Graduates working in private practice in the Commonwealth of Virginia are also eligible, because those earning a qualifying salary are likely to be practicing in an underserved area and therefore performing a public service.

WHY DOES THE CLASS OF 1957
 CONSISTENTLY
 LEAD THE WAY IN ANNUAL GIVING PARTICIPATION?

“NOT AN EASY QUESTION TO ANSWER, but I think the main reason is that over the years we have kept in touch with each other and with the Law School, despite geographic separation and differing career paths.

“Our class started with an almost even division between those with previous military service and those fresh out of college, those married and those single, but these differences didn’t keep us apart for long.

“Our shared classroom experiences under those legendary law teachers such as Hardy Dillard, Charlie Gregory, and Emerson Spies created bonds which have survived the passage of time.

“We have nurtured the friendships formed during Law School. We continue to feel a strong sense of loyalty to each other and to the fine institution which launched our careers.

“Great teachers, great classmates, and continuing contact are the basic ingredients for annual giving success.”

WHERE DID YOUR GIFTS SEND PILA FELLOWS IN 2006?

THE PUBLIC INTEREST LAW ASSOCIATION granted a record 59 public service fellowships this summer, five more than last year, valued at more than $242,000. The organization's successful fundraising efforts are enhanced by a dollar-for-dollar match by the Law School Foundation—funded by donor gifts.

PILA Fellows are using their grants to fund public service positions for a variety of employers, from legal aid groups and high-profile public interest organizations like Human Rights First to state and federal government jobs and work in international NGOs.

"I think the foundation for the success this year was built last year," said outgoing PILA president Tiffany Marshall '06. PILA made an effort this year to reach out to first-years by instituting a program in which each 1L section elected a classmate to be a PILA representative. "Having those students in place to be our mouthpieces was just really an essential part of getting us where we are," Marshall said.

Because of increased competition for fellowships, PILA instituted a pro bono hours requirement mandating first-year applicants complete at least 10 hours of service and second-years 25 hours.

THIS YEAR BROUGHT MANY PILA FELLOWS to U.S. attorney's offices in places as diverse as Philadelphia, Maine, Alabama, Michigan, and Texas, but third-year Christopher Jackson stayed closer to home, working at the U.S. attorney's office in Charlottesville.

"I very much enjoyed working in the U.S. Attorney's Office in Charlottesville over the summer. The highlights of my summer include drafting an appellate brief on behalf of the United States for a case before the Fourth Circuit; helping negotiate plea agreements (mostly petty offenses like speeding, DUIs, etc.); and actually getting to try one case in Magistrate's Court. The defendant in that case had committed an obscene act in the Shendandoah National Park and also was caught with marijuana. We won a conviction on both counts and were able to get the individual banned from the Park for two years.

"Had it not been for the support I received through the PILA grant, I likely could not have taken an unpaid position like this during the summer. The PILA grants are especially important for students with families (like myself) who are interested in public service internships, but who otherwise would be compelled to take a summer position with a firm in order to support their dependants."

Thanks for the support,
Christopher Jackson

WHY DOES THE CLASS OF 2005 GIVE?

“THE CLASS OF 2005 was lucky to be at the Law School during a period when student life and public interest work was growing in ways it never had before.

“During our three years of study, a great many student sponsored conferences, symposia, lectures and panel discussions fostered our education by allowing us the chance to learn about the law’s development both in current events, and the lives of everyday people. In particular, student support for and engagement in public interest legal work flourished during our matriculation as classmates donated literally thousands of hours of their time and knowledge to worthy causes both locally and around the world.

“The Class of 2005 gives to the Law School Foundation’s annual giving campaign because, by earmarking our gifts, each member of our class has the chance to honor and thank the student organizations that made the Law School a richer place during our time there.”
