PREFACE

More than half a century has elapsed in the preparation of this volume. Its early history is detailed in the Introduction, reproduced below as it was submitted in 1952. At that time, the manuscript was entrusted to Ferris J Stephens, who devoted himself to it during the rest of his life, both before and after his retirement in 1962. He tirelessly collated each text, and made numerous improvements both in the copies and in the indices.

Upon Stephens's death late in 1969, I assumed responsibility for the volume, greatly aided by Professor Oppenheim's continuing cooperation, and by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, which provided for the services of Dr. Mark E. Cohen. As research associate in 1972-73 and again in 1974-75, he updated the indices, added the list of professional names and seal inscriptions, and generally prepared the manuscript for the printer. In the list of personal names, the customary transliterations from the Akkadian were converted into connected transcriptions wherever possible. It is hoped that this departure from previous practice will augment the utility of the elaborate indices traditionally offered in this series, and justify the effort and expense entailed in their preparation and printing. Professor Oppenheim reviewed and approved all these steps, and had the satisfaction, before his sudden death on July 21, 1974, of seeing the final draft. That draft also had the benefit of a critical reading by Dr. Marten Stol, Leiden University, and, at the Yale University Press, by Jane Isay.

The help of all the individuals and institutions who contributed to this volume is gratefully acknowledged.

Another three years have elapsed since the above was written. The further delays were necessitated by other demands on those involved with the production of the volume. They have, however, permitted further checks on the front matter and collations of the copies by those previously mentioned, especially Dr. Stol. In addition, the manuscript had the benefit of a careful review by Ulla Kasten, Museum Editor for the Babylonian Collection.

INTRODUCTION

The texts contained in this volume formed the basis of the thesis of the late Dr. Samuel I. Feigin, presented to the Faculty of the Graduate School of Yale University in 1923. It consisted of copies of the tablets and of transliterations and translations of certain documents preceded by an introduction. The title was Early Babylonian Legal Transactions Dated in the Reign of Samsu-iluna. Since then, the main Assyriological interest of Dr. Feigin was concentrated upon this group of documents which was planned to appear in the Yale Oriental Series. Babylonian Texts. He recopied all tablets and dedicated many years to the preparation of their transliteration and translation, as well as to the writing of an elaborate commentary. Up to the illness which led to his death, Dr. Feigin was working on his magnum opus, checking and rechecking his indices, collating his copies.

After the untimely death of Dr. Feigin on January 2, 1950, a manuscript of appalling size, in fact, several manuscripts in various stages of completion were entrusted to me, together with numerous file cards written in English as well as in modern Hebrew. I was thus faced with the difficult problem either of submerging myself into all the work pertaining to an elaborate edition of these interesting and difficult texts or abandoning the project entirely, pressed as I was by my obligations to the Assyrian Dictionary project, my teaching, and my personal research work. Out of esteem for Dr. Feigin, whom I greatly respected as a scholar and a man, and in view of the importance and number of the texts involved, I decided on the following course of action: the practically finished copies of the 561 texts were taken as a basis (without further collation) for the compilation of the indices offered in the present volume. The lists prepared by Dr. Feigin have been utilized as much as possible, but the sole responsibility is, of course, mine.

The name indices contain personal names, names of deities, and geographical names. The personal names are strictly alphabetically arranged, but allowances had to be made for variant writings and the inevitable inconsistencies inherent in such lists. The index of the names of the deities mentioned in the tablets attempts to offer more information than is the rule in lists of this type. The references for the occurrences of individual divine names have been broken up in order to show the contexts in which they occur. The following classification has been adopted: deities as witnesses, deities as contractants in legal transactions, deities invoked in oath formulas or mentioned in seal inscriptions, and, finally, priests and offices of the pertinent deity, sanctuaries, and sacred objects. Divine names from theophoric personal names and from date formulas have not been included.

INTRODUCTION

The Catalogue shows likewise a deviation from the normal form of such lists. In the column headed Contents, it has been my intention to identify the nature of the transaction recorded as exactly as the space limitations permit. To achieve this goal and to offer, at the same time, a maximum of information, a series of "keywords" have been used to designate the typological form and the exact content of the tablets listed.

These keywords call for an explanation. Business transactions involving loans are described as "loan" only when they contain the Sumerian phrase ŠU.BA.AN.TI. (MEŠ). In all other cases, the characteristic phrases or formulas are indicated in brackets (e.g., loan [ŠU.TI.A]) or such descriptions as usátum-loan, ŠU.LÁ-loan, are used. In the cases in which the scribes have cast credit operations or similar financial transactions into the form of a ŠU.BA.AN.TI-loan, reference to the actual nature of the business transacted was made wherever it was feasible in an abbreviated form (e.g., "silver against barley") and as far as the content of the text was understandable. The term "promissory note" refers exclusively to texts of the UGU PN₁ PN₂ IN.TUK type. The receipts are differentiated according to the use of ŠU.TI.A and namhartu, respectively, as well as of imhur(u). The legal texts of the normal run, such as "rent," "sale," "hire," and "adoption," are provided with short references to rare or extraordinary phrases, in order to point them out to the student interested in "Keilschriftrecht." As to the administrative texts proper, the term "account tablet" indicates that the text is drawn up in columns with headings; "itemized list" is reserved for lists of items which are added up at the end of the text, while the designation "record" refers to itemized entries which are neither added up nor provided with any indication as to the purpose of the recording. All this is necessarily subjective and, at times, rather arbitrary; still it has been introduced not only to facilitate the task of the reader but also to draw attention to the problem of establishing a typology of administrative documents as a first step toward understanding the bureaucratic techniques of Mesopotamian administration.

My thanks are due to many persons whose cooperation has helped to bring this book into being. I have to thank, first of all, Mrs. S. I. Feigin, who placed the copies of the texts and all other manuscript material at my disposal, and Professor Ferris J. Stephens of the Yale Babylonian Collection, who kindly granted me permission to prepare Dr. Feigin's copies for publication and to add the indices, as well as for accepting this book for publication in the series. I have enjoyed, in my work, the assistance of Professor F. W. Geers for the tedious job of checking references; to Professors I. J. Gelb and B. Landsberger I am under obligation for advice and discussion with regard to the index of personal names.

PERSONAL NAMES

Akkadian personal names have been transcribed as an aid to both onomastic and prosopographic studies. Significant variants and orthographies, however, have been transliterated in parentheses after the transcribed entry. Akkadian names whose analysis remains uncertain, as well as all Amorite and Sumerian names, are entered in transliteration only. Names that occur in both Akkadian and Sumerian have been listed under the Akkadian with a notation indicating passages in which the name is rendered in Sumerian. Personal names occurring only in Sumerian are listed under the Sumerian.

The following abbreviations are used: b., brother; d., daughter; f., father; gf., grandfather; gs., grandson; h., husband; m., mother; s., son; sis., sister; w., wife.
