LEONARD TRAILERS

The Leonard founder, Tyson Leonard, understood the growing need for added storage back in 1963. From South Georgia, the company began by building quality, portable factory built sheds and slowly expanded its own factory direct retail outlets. By 1972, Tyson moved the company to North Carolina, settling in Mount Airy due to its experienced and talented manufacturing workforce. The number of stores grew, along with the breadth of products and services.

The first sheds were sided with a type of aluminum material similar to the first truck camper tops. As pickup truck popularity grew throughout the 70's and 80's, Leonard locations began branding and selling truck covers with great success. Naturally, customer's requested additional truck accessories and Leonard expanded its offering to bedliners, rocker panels, hitches and more. By the end of the 80's, Leonard had 28 stores in operation.

The 90's saw much innovation in the after-market automotive accessories industry and Leonard grew along with it. Hitch installations created demand for trailers and, by the end of decade, Leonard had 46 locations with all three product lines growing at a rapid pace. From 2000 on, Leonard worked on improving the quality of its products, as well as its overall level of Customer Service.

By 2010, Leonard had 51 stores in five states and began the process of upgrading our stores to provide better service through expanded installation bays and showrooms. Today, Leonard remains committed to continuing our heritage of quality products and exceptional Customer Service. We are now approaching 60 locations with state-of-the-art technology, systems, and employee development programs.
