CHUCK MILLHUFF

It started when I was seven years old sitting on the side of the grand horseshoe-shaped balcony of the great First Church of the Nazarene in Chicago. We were in revival. U.E. Harding was the evangelist. As I heard him preach, my childlike heart was thrilled with him and the way he did what he did. Though I loved Dr. L.A. Reed our pastor, this man was different.

Somewhere in that week of morning and evening services God said to me, "Some day you will do what that man is doing." Riding home on the streetcar with my mom, who never did drive, and my brother and sister that next afternoon, I had a clear understanding of what my entire future would be. As other evangelists came to our church, I was only to feel the fiery finger of God press more deeply into my little back. There was Harold Volk, Harold Gretzinger, Jimmy Dobson, Vance Havener, Jarrett Aycock, the Fleming brothers, Freddy Thomas and Glen Griffith—to name but a few. Of course the musicians were unforgettable as well. The Lacey Trio, The Cleveland Quintet, The Rushing Family and The Keller-Yorks to name some of the groups that came. Then there were the wonderful Holiness Conventions where R.T. Williams Jr. always led the music, and as a rule one of our general superintendents preached. Such times of shouting and singing and repentance you may never have seen or experienced. It was as if God had put a funnel into my soul and was filling me with this style of preaching and this passion for the lost and the unsanctified believer.

Over the years, I would have to say that I was most influenced by Edward Lawler, Bill Fisher, and Huge C. Benner. I certainly know that I do not remotely sound like these pulpit giants, but I will tell you that they made me what I am as God created heroes for me to emulate. For

In 1989, when the Tiananmen Square uprising was breaking forth in Beijing, one lone man stood defiantly in front of an advancing Chinese army tank and brought it to a halt. I admired this man as did millions of people around the world who viewed that scene. It will surely endure as one of the most dramatic and memorable moments in modern history. That man against the might and tyranny of an oppressive regime is stunning proof of the impact of even one person who is committed to opposing evil.

Long ago God found a man as brave as that man in Tiananmen Square. His name reverberates through millennia of Judeo-Christian thought down to this day. His name is Elijah. From obscurity, he invaded Israel's history. He strode courageously into the very presence of King Ahab and pronounced the word of God to his nation. At Mt. Carmel he put his reputation and his life at risk as he challenged and, with God's dramatic help, overcame the false prophets in the land. He is a peerless paradigm for all people who would be bold for truth. He exemplifies the timeless excellence of a life lived above the slavish herd instinct of the stampeding throng of worldly, spiritually blind people. God's people must never accept their direction from a lost world that is headed toward death and hell. Frozen by the rust of sin, the weather vanes of an ungodly world are never reliable.

A root of much of the apostasy that gripped Israel in Elijah's day was their desire to emulate the surrounding heathen countries rather than seek God's will for them without comparison to other nations. Most likely Israel suffered from a collective inferiority complex. The deadly seduction of such corrupting comparative thinking remains a peril for the church of the 21st century. This thinking must be resisted and rejected by the people of God in every generation.

Boldness for God must never be confused with personal aggression. Holy boldness is not brashness. The Holy Spirit never inspires inappropriateness. But throughout history the Holy Spirit has empowered some of God's people to confront and oppose evil heroically. Luther denounced a corrupt church, defied Rome and virtually stood alone against the world of his day. From the pulpit at Oxford, Wesley dared to ask the shocking question, "Is Oxford Christian?" In the last generation, Bonhoeffer opposed Hitler but refused the opportunity to escape Nazi Germany to America. For his stand, Hitler had him put to death.

How long can an obedient servant of God remain silent in the face of wickedness and falsehood? A time comes when decision is imperative and silence or neutrality forfeits God's favor. What if Elijah had compromised with the evils of his day? What if he had chosen to become a fawning, politically careful sycophant in King Ahab's court? What if we remain silent in this hour of responsibility to speak for God and for our Holy faith?

In our day, as in Elijah's day, evil seems to be enthroned and truth seems to be hanging high on the scaffold. Rampant, strident, brazen idolatry, in myriad forms, abounds. Syncretistic, relativistic teaching has foisted a flood of theological garbage onto our world. A malaise of cynicism and nihilism hangs like a heavy pall across the land. Who will raise their voices for God and cry out in this spiritual wilderness? Who will be bold for truth?

An adequate budget for evangelism at the beginning of each church year is imperative for each congregation.

A revival savings account is useful in building toward adequate support for the evangelist.

An adequate budget for evangelism at the beginning of each church year is imperative for each congregation.

A revival savings account is useful in building toward adequate support for the evangelist.

almost fifty years, I have done the work of the evangelist and continue doing so even to this day.

Across our Zion and around the world, there are men and women God has touched in much the same way. Their call is clear and their objective is in sight, bringing people to a moment of confrontation as it relates to their never dying spirits. Some would say that this style of preaching is passé and out of step. You surely would not know it if you listened at all to the major political party speeches during their internationally televised conventions.

Even as I write this from my motel room, I know of young people who are in this day highly schooled and who are ready to go into this work and fulfill this Biblical calling. Can a church grow without the revival meeting? Of course it can, as some have proven. Will it be all it could have been without them? This I seriously doubt. Today we have a variety of preachers and singers who are more thrilling and expansive than I can express. We have expositors and recovered convicts, children's workers and camp meeting giants. As this new quadrennium comes upon us, realize that the book you hold in your hand holds opportunities beyond your grandest expectations. As I was formed to do the work of a lifetime, so have these others been so formed and prepared. These are the young prophets of our day.

Not long ago I saw a sign hung in jest in a small café. It read:

This is a non profit organization, but it was not planned that way.

How sad if such a sign were to be hung on the wall of our denomination.

This is a non prophet organization.

May it never be said about the Church of the Nazarene. ☒

The Enterprise

by Stephen Manley

Jesus was in the process of calling His disciples. As He approached Simon, James and John were present. Luke calls them partners with Simon (Luke 5:10). The three were earning their livings as business associates in the enterprise of fishing. The Greek word which is translated partners is the familiar Greek term koinonia.

A decade or so ago, this was the familiar buzz word used in the church for our linkage together. I never fully comprehended what was meant by this term. The Greek word is often translated "fellowship." Though it may mean the casual chit chat around a potluck table, our fellowship time in the Sunday morning service is not koinonia.

The fellowship (koinonia) of believers means entering into partnership as business associates with each other, but more specifically with God. God calls us into His office to participate in the enterprise that flows from His heart. He presents the one thing He wants to do, and we are invited to participate as partners.

The deep level of involvement (koinonia) is described for us in the incarnation. Your child is a partner (koinonia) with your flesh and blood. He has linked with you and your "gene pool," heritage, physical characteristics as well as family skeletons. Inasmuch then as the children have partaken (koinonia) of flesh and blood, He Himself likewise shared in the same (Hebrews 2:14). Is it possible for us to join Him in the same manner? Can we become partners (koinonia) in His nature, mind, and motive? Can we join Him in His great enterprise?

Paul illustrates this linkage (koinonia) in terms of you, being a wild olive tree, were grafted in among them became a partaker (koinonia) of the root and fatness of the olive tree (Romans 11:17). We are now partners in the great enterprise of the olive tree. Its nature, life source, and destiny have become ours. Paul goes on to describe this linkage by saying you are partakers (koinonia) of the sufferings (2 Corinthians 1:7). Oh, to be an extension of the cross for my generation. Could I fill up in my flesh what is lacking in the afflictions of Christ, for the sake of His body, which is the church (Colossians 1:24)? Is this not our call? ☒
