Courtroom Connect and LexisNexis to Bring Video and Audio Content to LexisNexis Law School eBooks

LexisNexis Courtroom Cast to “go beyond the book” with multi-media resources within legal eBooks

June 30, 2014 — NEW YORK — LexisNexis® Legal & Professional, a leading provider of content and technology solutions, and Courtroom Connect™ today announced that LexisNexis will license, feature and promote the Courtroom Connect academic content, CVN Law School™, within law school eBooks and through other channels. This broad integration of video and audio content will be named LexisNexis® Courtroom Cast powered by Courtroom View Network.

“Many law students find it difficult to develop a deep understanding of the material by text alone. They can greatly benefit from additional resources to complement their books,” said Olympia Duhart, co-president of the Society of American Law Teachers and professor of law at Nova Southeastern University. “The new offering from LexisNexis and Courtroom View Network will help address these needs. I’m excited about the learning opportunities created by video and audio embedded into law school eBooks. This will bring an important layer to my teaching, and a critical learning tool to students.”

CVN Law School is the academic portal of Courtroom View Network™, a pioneer in delivering on-demand multimedia content to the legal academic environment. It offers students and faculty a searchable, online learning platform with more than 2,000 audio-recorded judicial opinions and thousands of hours of video footage of U.S. legal proceedings. The platform also features video training libraries based on original courtroom video, covering 87 topics in the key course areas of Evidence, Advocacy and Appellate Advocacy.

LexisNexis Courtroom Cast will offer content in two ways:

- ▶ Access via eBooks – LexisNexis will integrate courtroom video and audio case files within select legal eBooks used by law students, taking readers directly from the text to the courtroom with video or audio from LexisNexis Courtroom Cast.
- ▶ Video & Audio via the Web – CVN courtroom video and audio will be offered via the rebranded portal to new and existing law school libraries, students and other customers. Additionally, LexisNexis will engage with law professors to encourage use of the LexisNexis Courtroom Cast resources as teaching tool in association with classes.

“Multimedia content from CVN Law School enables law students to enhance their education by listening, watching and learning from real courtroom events anytime from anywhere,” said Andrew Feinberg, CEO of Courtroom Connect. “We are very delighted about the collaboration with LexisNexis. Their resources and expertise provide new, innovative and expanded ways to deliver content through eBooks and other means.”

“People read and comprehend information in different ways. That is why it’s key to ‘go beyond the book’ to provide rich, multi-media experiences which enhance the understanding of the law by established and aspiring legal professionals,” said Scott Meiser, senior director, Research Information - eBooks & Digital Library at LexisNexis. “The creation of LexisNexis Courtroom Cast is the most recent example of this.”

Earlier this year, LexisNexis launched an innovative role playing game [™] within select law school eBooks and announced that the collection of eBooks from the American Bar Association [™] will be offered within the LexisNexis® Digital Library [™] e-lending solution, which offers access to legal eBooks from the most popular mobile devices and computers.

Lexis Advance®—use the History Research Map to get back to filtered results

Lexis Advance®—use the History Research Map to get back to filtered results

You may have noticed that the History tab on Lexis Advance® lists your searches, but does not reflect any filters applied. If you like to follow the path you took as you applied filters, you can do that by going to the Research Map in History. Once the Map opens, you will find a list of the searches and their filters applied. You can view All Trails, or uncheck that box, and select only the searches and their trails that you want to view. You can access any point in the trail of a search, where the first filter is applied, where the third filter is applied, etc., by clicking on that filter and selecting from the Actions: Rerun search; Select search to compare search results; Save search to folder; or Create an alert. The Map is also a visual presentation of your search, and can help you rethink your strategy, or affirm what you have already done. It offers you a chance to step back and look at your search with a wide view. Check out the Research Map and see what you think!

LexisNexis Launches LexisNexis Legal Content Insider

New Site Aggregates Marketplace and News, Info and Multi-Media Content on Legal eBooks, eLending Technology and Print

July 14, 2014 — NEW YORK – LexisNexis® Legal & Professional, a leading provider of content and technology solutions, today launched a new online news & information resource offering access to materials and tools on legal eBooks, digital library technology and print titles.

Called LexisNexis® Legal Content Insider, the new resource was unveiled at the American Association of Law Libraries \(AALL\) annual meeting in San Antonio, Texas. The site provides legal professionals a one-stop destination to stay connected and up-to-date on the evolving landscape of legal publications. Built on the LexisNexis® LexTalk platform, the site is also connected to a network of community forums where legal professionals such as law librarians can connect with one another on issues of the day.

“There is a lot of information in the market about legal eBooks and print titles, as well as digital library technology, but this information is typically hard to find and time-consuming to research, access and use,” said Scott Meiser, senior director, Research Information – eBooks & Digital Library at LexisNexis. “LexisNexis Legal Content Insider gathers this valuable information – from LexisNexis and the market – to make it easier to understand key trends and emerging issues in this important area.”

The site features recent news, in-depth written and video pieces, links to influential blogs, and legal news feeds from Law360® and LexisNexis® Mealey’s®, as well as connection to the full LexTalk network of forums for legal professionals. Users can register and learn industry opinions via surveys, and there are links to community sites for further conversation. The site also features “spotlight” areas where news, info, links and other content is available on specific practice areas. At launch, LexisNexis Legal Content Insider includes spotlights on IP law and Banking Compliance. In the future, the site will also include other content, such as guest posts and commentaries, white papers and more.

The site is the latest example of the LexisNexis strategy to enable customers to “go beyond the book” by offering innovative technologies to help them better use legal publications, as well as providing resources to assist them in managing their collections.

Library Without Books Debuts at Florida's Newest College

LEXISNEXIS DIGITAL LIBRARY

E-LENDING

TAMPA Fla. (Reuters) - The library opening with the first day of classes on Monday at Florida's newest college features a sunlit arched roof and cozy reading chairs - but not a single book.

A fully digital library is among the futuristic features of Florida Polytechnic University's striking dome-shaped building, designed by Spanish architect Santiago Calatrava.

"It's a boldly relevant decision to go forward without books," said Kathryn Miller, the university's director of libraries. The inaugural class of 550 students, offered scholarships covering tuition to attend a public university so new it's not yet accredited, can access more than 135,000 ebooks on their choice of reader, tablet or laptop.

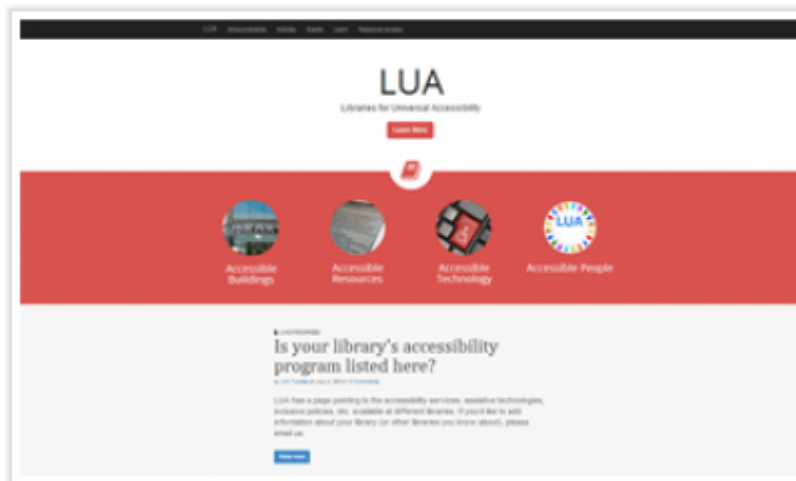

A bookless library is a rarity among U.S. colleges but reflects the high-tech ambitions of the university in Lakeland, Florida. Rising along a drab stretch of highway between Tampa and Orlando, Florida Polytechnic envisions building a technology corridor in the image of Silicon Valley.

BEST PRACTICES FOCUS: Innovation: It's in the DNA

Author: James King, Information Architect, NIH Library

http://www.lexisnexis.com/tsg/gov/best_practices_2013.pdf.

Article starts on page 119.

James asks us three questions:

- “What do we, as information professionals, need to do in order to survive and thrive in the 21st Century?”
- How do we respond to challenges from the likes of Thomas Friedman who demonstrate that “average is over”?
- Can we learn from the organizations that are driving disruptive change in the industry to see how to adapt our organizations, our profession and our careers to this brave new world?

“In the “The Innovator’s DNA” (Dyer, Gregersen, and Christensen; Harvard Business Review, December 2009), Harvard studied the people behind some of the most innovative and disruptive business strategies (Amazon, Apple, eBay, etc.) in the world and found five skills that CAN BE LEARNED and serve as a model for us to survive and thrive in the digital era.”

Five Discovery Skills or “Innovator’s DNA”

BEST PRACTICES FOCUS: Innovation: It's in the DNA

- Questioning – asking questions to dig deeper
 - Do your research so you can ask the right questions.
 - Use tools like the SLA Alignment Report
- Observing – watching the world around us
 - Attend, read, monitor (#slakinfinity)
- Experimenting – willing to try new things
 - Where's your lab?

BEST PRACTICES FOCUS: Innovation: It's in the DNA

- Networking – building relationships with peers
 - Virtual and face-to-face
- Associating – creating connections
- Pull together questioning, observing, experimenting and networking to create new mental connections that spark innovation.

SOCIAL MEDIA SPOTLIGHT: DoD Social Media
