Edna the Examiner's Macbeth Workbook

Act 1, Scene 1: Meet the Witches

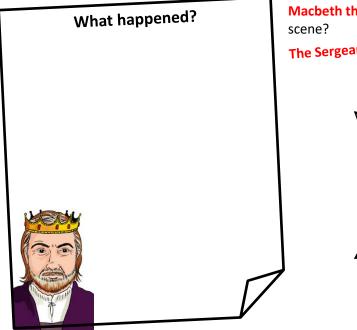

If there's one quote to know: What do we learn about the witches from their final rhyming couplet?

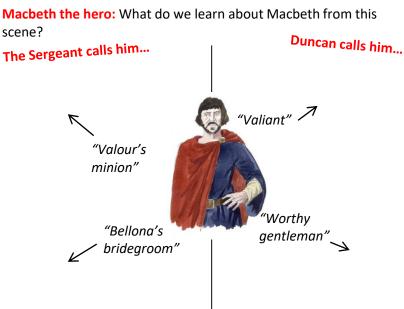

"Fair is foul and foul is fair"

Shakespeare's purpose: Compare how the differing audience's context would shape their reaction to this scene.

Jacobean Audience	Modern Audience

Act 1, Scene 2: Brave Macbeth

Shakespeare's craft: Duncan executes the Thane of Cawdor for plotting against him. But why is this dramatic irony? What does this suggest about Duncan and power?

Bravery: Both Macbeth and Banquo are unquestionably brave and heroic here. Is Macbeth's bravery a strength throughout the play?

Act 1, Scene 3: The Witches meet Macbeth

What happened?

Imagery: Shakespeare refers to Macbeth's new power using clothing: "borrowed robes" and "strange garments." What does this suggest?

Macbeth vs. Banquo: How do the two friends react to the witches?

Macbeth vs. Banquo: How do the two friends react to the witches?
Key Quote	What do they think about the witches?	Pick a language choice – what does this tell us?
Banquo: "look not like the inhabitants o' the earth"
Banquo: "What! Can the devil speak true?"
Macbeth: "strange intelligence"
Macbeth: "would they had stayed"

Shakespeare's Purpose: How does Shakespeare want to present Macbeth and Banquo through their reaction to the witches?

Macbeth ->

Banquo ->

Act 1, Scene 4: The Witches meet Macbeth

Malcolm reports to King Duncan he has heard Cawdor has now been executed. Duncan greets Macbeth and promotes him to Thane of Cawdor. He heaps praise and love on him: "only I have left to say, More is thy due than more than all can pay." They agree to meet at Macbeth's castle for a celebratory feast.

Act 1, Scene 5: Introducing Lady Macbeth

What happened?

"My dearest partner of greatness" What do we learn about the Macbeth's marriage from this letter?

What do we learn in this scene about Lady Macbeth's view on....

Duncan: What does she think of Duncan? "the raven himself is hoarse
That croaks the fatal entrance of Duncan"

Gender: What does she think of her gender?

"Unsex me here...take my milk for gall"

Supernatural: What does she think of the supernatural?

"Come, you spirits"

Macbeth: What does she think of her husband?

"too full o' the milk of human kindness"

Herself: What does she think of herself?

"I may... chastise with the valour of my tongue All that impedes thee from the golden round"

If there's one quote to know: What are Lady Macbeth's desires for Macbeth? How does Shakespeare use language here to present her intentions?

"look like the innocent flower, But be the serpent under't."

STRETCH: How is this quote also reflective of Lady Macbeth?

Act 1, Scene 6: Duncan Arrives

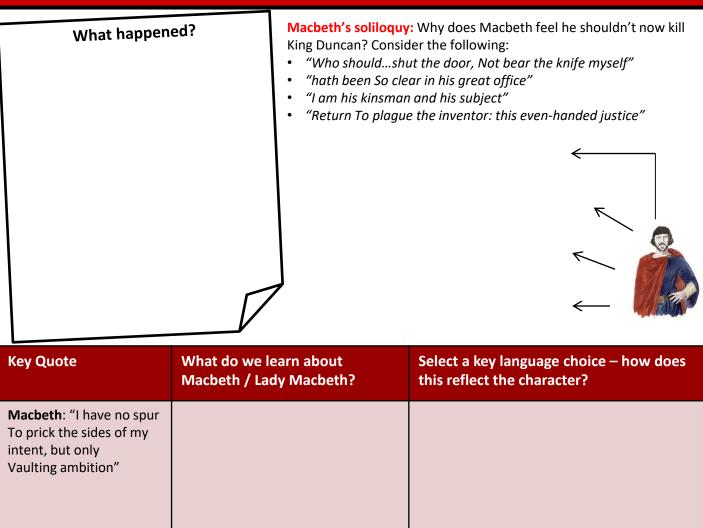

Appearance vs Reality: Here we see how the appearance of the Macbeth's is different to the reality. Explore this here...

Key Quote	what is the appearance?	what is the reality?
Duncan: "This castle hath a pleasant seat; the air Nimbly and sweetly recommends itself"
Lady M: "All our service In every point twice done and then done double"

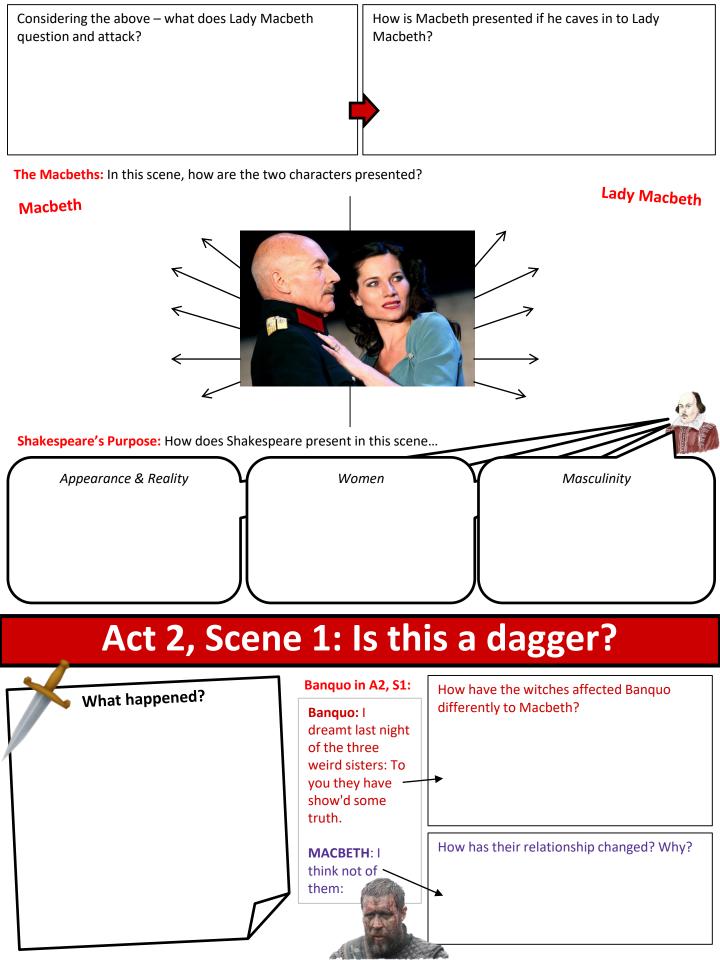

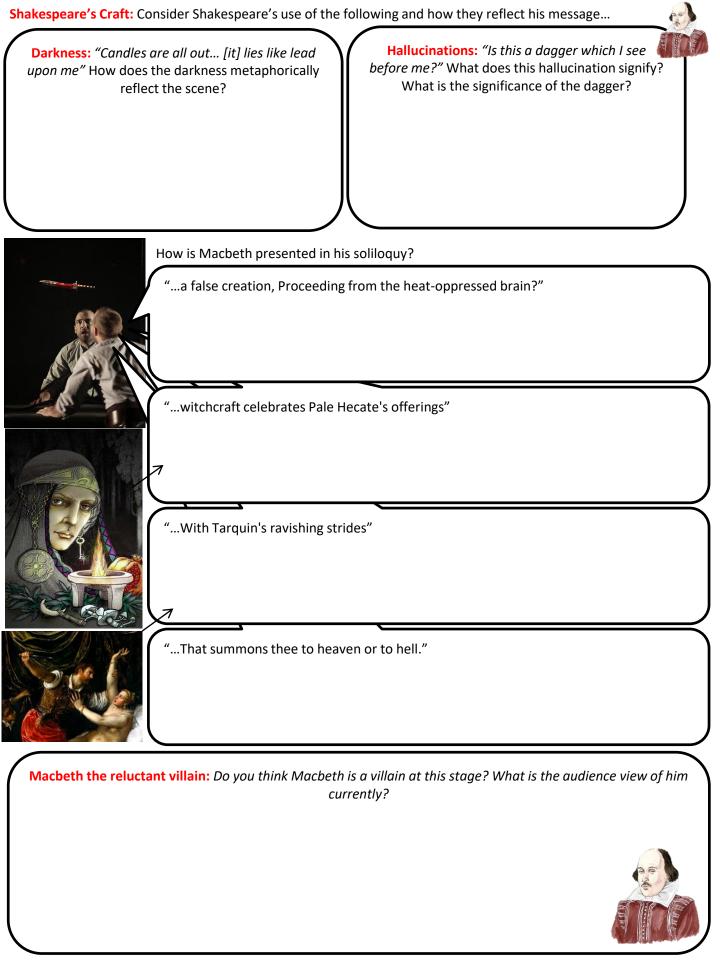

"our honour'd hostess.... Conduct me to mine host: we love him highly" How does the Macbeth's clash between appearance & reality compare to Duncan? How does this shape our view of him?

Act 1, Scene 7: Macbeth Wobbles

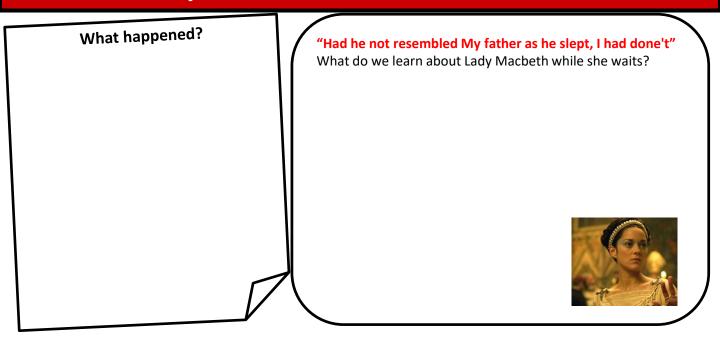

To prick the sides of my intent, but only Vaulting ambition"
Macbeth: "I dare do all that may become a man; Who dares do more is none."
Lady M: "Art thou afeard To be the same in thine own act and valour As thou art in desire?"
Lady M: "dash'd the brains out, had I so sworn as you Have done to this"

Act 2, Scene 2: Macbeth's Guilt

The Macbeths: How do the two character deal with the immediate aftermath of the murder?

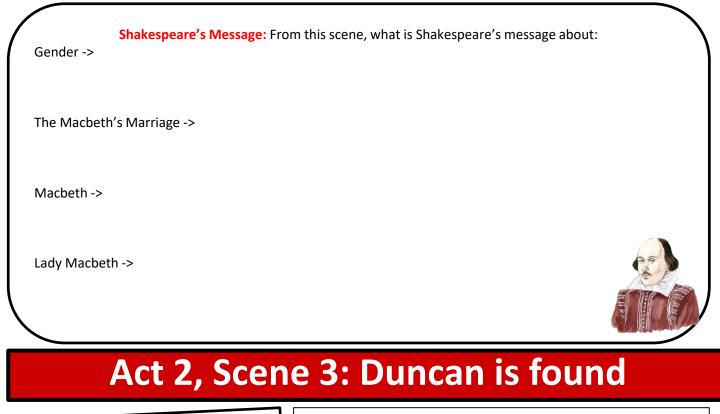

Macbeth

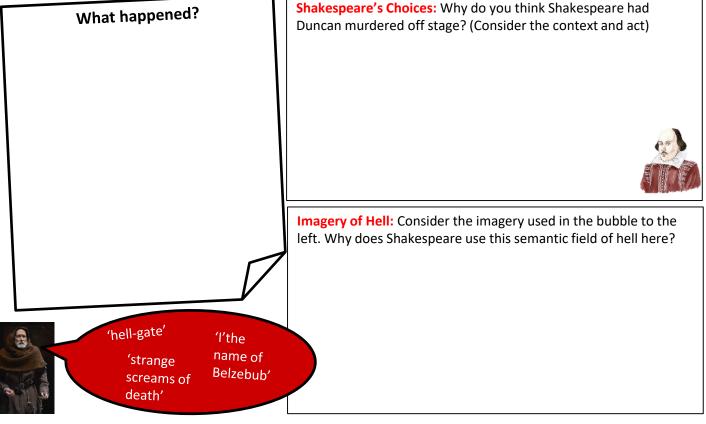

Lady Macbeth

Imagery of Water: How does the imagery of water demonstrate the two character's reactions?

Key Quote	What do we learn about Macbeth / Lady Macbeth?	Select a key language choice – how does this reflect the character?
Macbeth: "Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood Clean from my hand?"
Lady Macbeth: "A little water clears us of this deed"

Act 2, Scene 4: King Macbeth

Ross, an Old man and Macduff discuss the murder of King Duncan and the fact his sons have run away. Macduff does not hide the fact he suspects Macbeth of being involved, and in a show of his lack of support, he says he is not going to Scone to see Macbeth be crowned King.

Act 3, Scene 1: Macbeth's Suspicion

What happened?

Thou hast it now: king, Cawdor, Glamis, all, As the weird women promised, and, I fear, Thou play'dst most foully for't:

Banquo: Why does Macbeth feel he needs to kill Banquo? Consider the prophecies: why is this decision to kill him quite ironic?

The Murderers: What does the fact Macbeth discusses the death of Banquo in secret with murderers suggest about him? How has he changed?

Lady Macbeth: Is not a art of this plan to kill Banquo. What does this suggest about Macbeth?

Act 3, Scene 2: Macbeth is Changing...

What happened?

If there's one quote to know: What does the language here suggest about Macbeth?

"O, full of scorpions is my mind"

At the start: Lady Macbeth was called "my dearest partner in greatness"

Now, Macbeth refers to her as 'dearest chuck': How has their relationship changed? What does this show about both characters?

Act 3, Scene 3: Banquo's Murder

What happened?	Three Murderers: We find out here that Macbeth has enlisted a third murderer – what does this tell us about Macbeth and being King?

Light: Consider the metaphor of light. What does the metaphor suggest about the situation in the previous and current scene? Consider carefully at which point in the scene the lines are said.

Key Quote	What do we learn about Macbeth / Lady Macbeth?
A3, Sc2: Macbeth says "light thickens"
Line 5: "The west yet glimmers with some streaks of day"
Line 19: "Who did strike out the light?"

Fleance escapes: What does this suggest about the prophecies / Macbeth's position?

Act 3, Scene 4: Ghost of Banquo Scene

What happened?

"Sit, worthy friends: my lord is often thus, And hath been from his youth" Lady Macbeth covers for Macbeth and directs the nobles when to stay and when to leave. What does this show about:

Macbeth:

Lady Macbeth:

The finest and most powerful of Scotland have come to feast:

What should this night have been for the Macbeths?

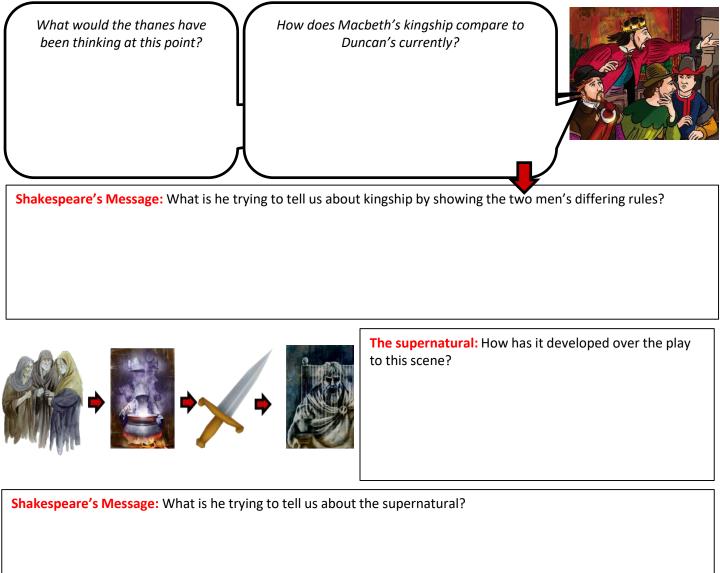

What was it actually?

Banquo's position: What is the significance of the ghost sitting in Macbeth's seat?

Banquo's ghost: Why does Macbeth see the ghost? Why is it key that only he can see it; what does that demonstrate about Macbeth?

Whose missing from the feast?
Why is this key?

Act 3, Scene 5: Hecate

Act 3, Scene 6: Macduff Builds an Army

Lennox and a Lord discuss current affairs and how unpopular and tyrannical Macbeth's rule is. They state that Macduff is raising an army in Northumberland (England)

Act 4, Scene 1: Three More Prophecies

What happened?		What are the three prophecies?
Key Quote	What do we l Macbeth?	learn about	Select a key language choice – how does this reflect his character / reaction to the witches?
The witches exclaim at Macbeth's arrival "something wicked this way comes"
Macbeth demands of them: "I conjure you answer me To what I ask you."
When he hears of the threat of Macduff: "I'll make assurance double sure, And take a bond of fate: thou shalt not live"
When Macbeth hears the prophecy about Birnham Wood: "That will never be Who can impress the forest, bid the tree Unfix his earth-bound root?"

Act 4, Scene 2: Macduff's Family Dies

What happened?

"...to leave his wife, to leave his babes, His mansion and his titles in a place From whence himself does fly? He loves us not"

Lady Macduff denounces her husband as a villain, but he is arguably the hero of the play. Do you think he is heroic or villainous for leaving his family?

Shakespeare's Choices: Why do you think Shakespeare had the son murdered on stage, but Lady Macduff murdered off it?

Act 4, Scene 3: Macduff Finds Out

What happened?

Ross: Why do you think Ross didn't mention to Macduff that he was there just before the murders?

Compare how Macduff and Macbeth react to the news of their wives' death. Referring to the language choices; what do their reactions indicate about their character?

Macduff: "What, all my pretty chickens and their dam, at one fell swoop?"

Macbeth: "Out, out, brief candle"

Act 5, Scene 1: "Out Damned Spot!"

What happened?

What does the spot and the washing action represent?

Lady Macbeth has spoke in strong blank verse throughout the play... until now: How has her language now changed? How is this reflective of her?

Macbeth: "Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood Clean from my hand?"

Lady Macbeth: "A little water clears us of this deed"

Remember the Macbeth's reference to water when they killed Duncan: Why is this so significant in this scene? What is Shakespeare's message through this?

In Act 3, scene 2 she said, "What's done is done"
Now, "What's done cannot be undone"

What's changed?

What is the significance of the two lines above? What has changed? What is Shakespeare's message through this?

"To bed, to bed, to bed!"
What is being suggested through the language here?

Shakespeare's Message: What do you think his message s about women through Lady Macbeth's demise?

Act 5, Scene 2 - 4: The Battle

Scene 2

What happened?

Remember Shakespeare's use of clothing imagery earlier in the play: Now the advancing army says Macbeth "feel his title hang loose about him like a giant's robe upon a dwarfish thief." What does the language here suggest about Macbeth's rule?

Act 1, Sc 3: "borrowed robes" and "strange garments."

Scene 3

What happened?

The doctor remarks Lady Macbeth is "troubled with thick-coming fancies": how is this also true of Macbeth?

"Cure her of that": What does Macbeth's reply to the doctor indicate about him at this stage?

Scene 4

What happened?

Macbeth mentions the life he could have had; a life of "honour", "love" and "troops of friends." How does this affect our interpretation of him?

"Bring me no more reports, let them fly" What do we learn about Macbeth's approach to battle? Why is this? What does Shakespeare imply through this?

Act 5, Scene 5 - 6: Macbeth's Downfall

Scene 5

What happened?

Just like Duncan and Lady Macduff, we don't see her die. Why?

Macbeth's reaction: He says her death is "signifying nothing" but also "I 'gin to be aweary of the sun" – how does he feel about her death?

Birnham Wood moves towards the castle: How have the prophecies destroyed Macbeth?

What happened?

Scene 6

When defeat seems inevitable: "Why should I play the Roman fool, and die On mine own

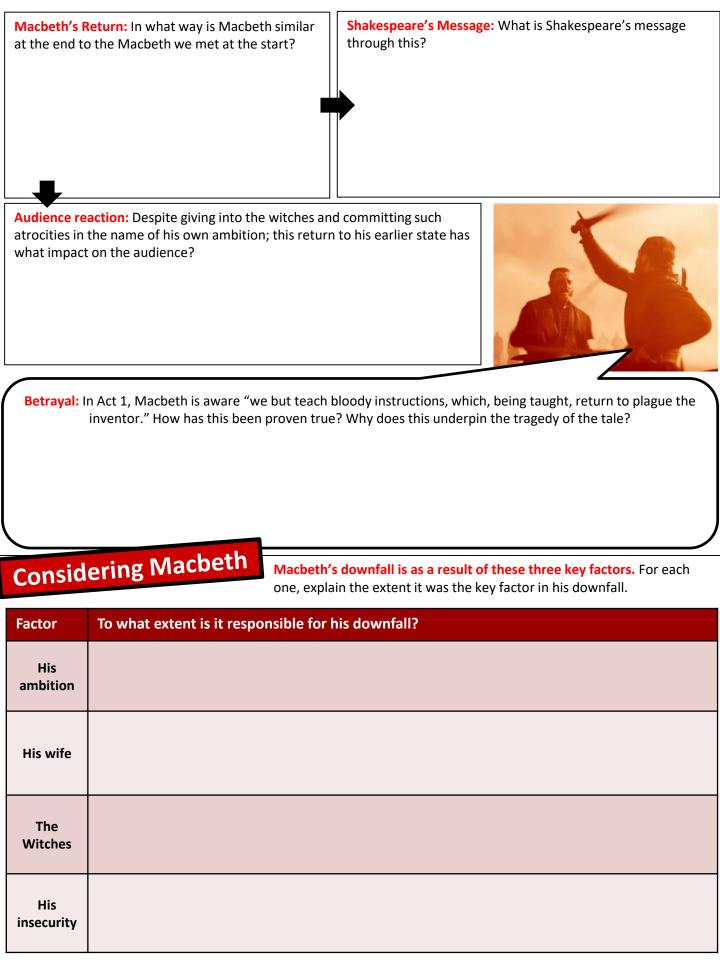

When confronted with Macduff – someone not 'born of woman': "I'll not fight with thee."

Constructing an Essay

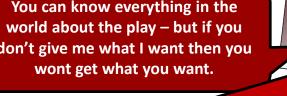

Edna the Examiner wants to see in your essay:

Can you use the evidence in the extract and references to the wider novel to respond to a task, with:

- Suitable evidence
- Analysis of language.
- Subject terminology.
- A consideration of the effect on the reader.
- Links between context and task.
- Consideration of the overall effect on the reader (What does Stevenson want you to think / feel / know?

A PEEZL paragraph – but you do not need to go in order!

You can know everything in the world about the play – but if you don't give me what I want then you wont get what you want.

You do not need all of these in every paragraph, but they must be in evidence across your essay.

Steps to success:

- 1. Plan your response by annotating 4 to 5 pieces of evidence from the text with what they inform you about the task's focus.
- 2. Conceptualise your point of view on the question (see example on next page).
- 3. Aim for 4-5 PEA paragraphs (see below)
- 4. Conclude by summarising your overall view, with a consideration of Shakespeare's purpose.

Link this all back to Shakespeare's purpose.

From her introduction, Lady Macbeth is established as an unorthodox woman who challenges the expectations of the Jacobean era. Upon hearing of Duncan's imminent arrival, she exclaims the "raven himself is hoarse" in announcing Duncan's impending doom. This ability to make choices without her husband's consent challenges the notions of women being inferior, weaker and unable to contribute to family decisions. However, her assuredness is misplaced for her husband then initially refuses to follow her demands; such would be the male obligation at the time. Macbeth's vain attempts to determine the decisions that the couple make seem to be an attempt to keep Lady Macbeth in her traditional, weaker position, but she presents an image of being too strong a persona to adopt such a meek role. Her reference to a "raven," a symbol of death, demonstrates her apparent comfort with violence and murder; challenging the perception that women should not associate themselves with such barbaric, masculine ideals. However, she personifies the "raven" in referring to him as a male: "himself." This could suggest that although she is happy to associate herself with death, it remains in the domain of the male to deliver it to the victim. Shakespeare therefore presents a woman conflicted between her place in society, her belief she commands greater influence; yet socially paralysed by her acceptance it is her husband who delivers the final say.

Starting with this extract, how does Shakespeare present Lady Macbeth as an untraditional Jacobean woman?

ightharpoonup 'Look the innocent flower but be the serpent under it"

Shakespeare's Lady Macbeth presents an illusion of being unlike a traditional Jacobean woman. However, beyond her assaults on her husband's character, her apparent comfort with the supernatural and her demands for the pursuit of Macbeth's ambition, there lies an emotionally weak character that is unable to deal with the consequences of her actions. Through Lady Macbeth, Shakespeare demonstrates that a woman's place in society is so entrenched, it is foolish and pitiful to challenge it; and to do so can have far-reaching, devastating consequences.

From her introduction, Lady Macbeth is established as an unorthodox woman who challenges the expectations of the Jacobean era. Upon hearing of Duncan's imminent arrival, she exclaims the "raven himself is hoarse" in announcing Duncan's impending doom. This ability to make choices without her husband's consent challenges the notions of women being inferior, weaker and unable to contribute to family decisions. However, her assuredness is misplaced for her husband then initially refuses to follow her demands; such would be the male obligation at the time. Macbeth's vain attempts to determine the decisions that the couple make seem to be an attempt to keep Lady Macbeth in her traditional, weaker position, but she presents an image of being too strong a persona to adopt such a meek role. Her reference to a "raven," a symbol of death, demonstrates her apparent comfort with violence and murder; challenging the perception that women should not associate themselves with such barbaric, masculine ideals. However, she personifies the "raven" in referring to him as a male: "himself." This could suggest that although she is happy to associate herself with death, it remains in the domain of the male to deliver it to the victim. Shakespeare therefore presents a woman conflicted between her place in society, her belief she commands greater influence; yet socially paralysed by her acceptance it is her husband who delivers the final say.

Lady Macbeth also shows the same acceptance of the supernatural as her husband, for she calls "come you spirits.... Unsex me here." In this most critical moment of her life, she instantaneously turns to the powers a Jacobean society would associate with evil, thereby marking her out as a disturbed, villainous woman and a far cry from the moral, upstanding woman the Jacobeans would have strove for. Yet, the fact she shares her husband's tolerance for the supernatural demonstrates their like-minded approach and reflects the depth their souls and minds are entwined – it would appear they share a very close love, as would be the goal for any Jacobean woman. Her call to be "unsexed" is a demand to be free of the innocence and purity that is associated with women – she no longer wishes to be an inferior associate in a masculine driven world, but instead be the driving force for Macbeth towards his ambition. Shakespeare echoes this notion of her as insignificant in society's whole through delaying her introduction until Act 1, Scene 5: in withholding her involvement until the rising action the climax, Freytag's theory of dramatic structure demonstrates she is merely an additional factor in Macbeth's rise and fall, and not the catalyst. It is perhaps this desire to be a greater part of Macbeth's choices that stirs her to also reject manhood in her call to be "unsexed;" in doing so she refuses the notions of honour, dignity and respect for she recognises that to reach her and Macbeth's goal, they have to resort to immoral and violent means that would compromise the reputation of any man or woman.

Shakespeare shows how Lady Macbeth's comfort with violence and evil can be a bond between her and her husband. But, it can also be a weapon in which to manipulate him and be a driving force behind her actions, for she scorns she would "shame to wear a heart so white" when Macbeth refuses to return the daggers to

A Level 7+ Essay

I have not just followed a PEEZ structure all the way through, I have mixed up my order depending on what I want to achieve in each point.

My language analysis is consistent, rich and varied.

I have four, clear, different points that are taken from across the play, but there is a clear chronology and order to my thoughts — they are not just 4 random points I've come up with and whacked in my essay. In doing so, I show a clear understanding of the play as a whole.

I'm consistently challenging myself with differing interpretations and thoughts on how the language, actions and choices of characters could be interpreted.

I've found a pattern between a comment aimed at another character that is relevant to herself, allowing myself to explore the symmetry between characters and the relationship between them.

The conclusion is not just a regurgitation of what I've already said, but it brings together all my points to give a final overview summation of her role and Shakespeare's message through her. I always end with a personal reflection of what I have taken from the character or theme.

Duncan's guards. Her return of the daggers shifts her from being a mere inspiration for the murder, but now also an accomplice. She steps from the sphere of innocence and virtue associated with Jacobean women, and instead assists in the masculine domain of violence and pain. However, she is willing to compromise this dignity for the sake of her husband's ambition and his safety. It was a sacrifice driven by love and commitment: principles that Jacobean women would strive for. She questions his masculinity by referring to his "white" heart, alluding to an innocence and purity in him that a warrior future-king would baulk at. She may also be referring to the "white" of surrender, implying that he has given up and cannot see the deed through. Both messages push her way out of the submissive role a Jacobean woman would adopt, but instead make her the villainous drive that she always desired. Yet, we spy here the first hint of her inner weakness, for to "wear" is to cover up your true self and identity, thereby implying that this bravado and masculine-style comfort is merely a cover for the weaker soul within, driven by a desire to see the very best for her husband.

By the end of the play, that façade has fallen and Lady Macbeth reverts back to the weaker, fragile woman a Jacobean audience would come to expect. She pleads "Out damned spot!" repetitively, reflecting how like her pain and guilt, the spot will not go away. Her initial strength in her decision making has been replaced by a complete inability to control her mind, such is the damaging extent of her consequences. We also see how naïve her belief was she did not need to fear the supernatural but could embrace it in her life - for now the supernatural hallucinations are inhibiting the respect and dignity she once enjoyed as Queen, and it now marks her out as a broken, lost woman. To compound her loss, the husband for whom she compromised her morals and dignity for is now absent and no longer concerned by her plight (dismissing the Doctor to "cure her of that"). Therefore, this ambitious Jacobean woman, who had looked to break beyond the societal limitations of marriage, beliefs and mind-set, has been left broken and alone. The tragedy of this is that, like the "spot" her role in Macbeth's tyranny was only small, however the consequences are permanent and cannot be removed. She also recognises there are aspects of her that are "damned," and therefore destined to result in hell. Now that the supernatural has betrayed her and her husband, she reverts back to her Christian ideals of right and wrong - those same ideals that shaped a Jacobean society she had initially rejected. Shakespeare here shows that no matter the cause or the action of an individual, society will always prevail in dominance – a Jacobean woman can either accept it, or accept her place in hell.

To conclude, Lady Macbeth had called on Macbeth to "look the innocent flower but be the serpent under it," and in many respects this reflected her character: society demanded she fit to the Jacobean expectations of women, but beyond the façade was a woman 'serpent'-like in her comfort with evil and violence, and 'snake' like in her ease in betraying her King, country and her own morals and dignity. However, like the 'serpent,' of any story, her demise was inevitable and brutal for evil so rarely prevails.

Yet, despite her role in Duncan's death and her initial comfort with the malevolent and the supernatural, I believe Lady Macbeth's story is one of pity and sadness. Shakespeare created a character so desperate to break from her societal conventions - and her one motive for doing so was Macbeth. Be it for love, or a matching thirst for his ambition, she defied all that was expected of her to drive him to greater glory, and in doing so compromised on her dignity, marriage and her mental state. Her story is so sad, as no matter how noble her reasons and no matter the courage and strength of her character, her demise came from stepping beyond the role that society had dictated to her. Her determination to step from the expectations of a Jacobean woman, and her self-illusion that she was capable of doing so, ultimately led to her, her husband and Scotland's demise.

Basic Point

"Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood clean"	Macbeth feels so guilty about killing Duncan, he doesn't believe there's enough water to clean him of the deed.	Lady Macbeth here dismisses Macbeth with "a little water clears us" – but by the end she is the one calling for more imaginary water to wash her hands clean of her crimes.
"Bear-like"	Macbeth fights really bravely in the final battle	Cyclical structure: Macbeth returns back to the brave warrior we knew at the start.
"Unsex me"	Lady Macbeth doesn't want to be a woman so she can be free if the innocence and purity expected of her gender.	She doesn't want to be a man either so she doesn't have to uphold honour – she's committing to evil. (And she's comfortable with the supernatural – asking the spirits to do it for her)
"Dash'd the brains out"	Lady Macbeth uses threats of violence and taunts of cowardice to bully Macbeth.	Lady Macbeth presents an image of not having the motherly, womanly instincts expected of the time.
"Out damned spot!	Lady Macbeth looses control of her mind; she can't cope with the guilt and shame.	The spot represents her actions; she played a small role in comparison, but it had permanent consequences.
"shame to wear a heart so white"	Lady Macbeth mocks the cowardice of Macbeth.	'White' implies there is a purity and innocence in Macbeth: he's a reluctant villain.
"Thunder, lightening or rain"	Pathetic fallacy of the witches meeting suggests mystery and evil.	A storm, like the witches, is a disturbance to the natural order. They want to disrupt society and the great chain of bing.

Key Quote	Basic Point	Higher Point
"Wish't they had stayed"	Macbeth believes he can control the supernatural – he is upset when the witches go.	He depends on them for guidance. They depend on him to use his ambition and their riddles to make carnage.
"Approach thou like the rugged Russian bear"	Macbeth wants Banquo's ghost to turn into something physical so he is no longer afraid of it.	Macbeth is trying to show he is masculine enough to not be afraid, but the power of the supernatural usurps the power of masculinity.
"His virtues will plead like angels"	Macbeth knows it's a bad thing to kill Duncan.	Duncan is associated with the virtue and glory of God & Heaven, whereas Macbeth's rule is characterised by the supernatural and evil. The King is the head of the Great Chain of Being, so deserves that comparison.
"Tears will drown"	Macbeth knows lots of people will be upset when Duncan dies.	Macbeth prioritises his own ambition over the harmony of the Great Chain of Being, and the success and happiness of the Scottish society.
"Fair is foul and foul is fair" The witches think good is bad and bad is good. They live to cause chaos.		The witches speak in rhyme and not in iambic pentameter: they do not fit in with the structural expectations of the play, just as they don't fit in our world.
"Look like the innocent flower, but be the serpent under it"	Lady Macbeth wants Macbeth to trick people before he kills the King.	Flower: Pure, innocent, attractive Serpent: snake (betrayal), dangerous, unpleasant.
"I dare do all that may become a man; who dares do more is none"	Macbeth is conscious his ruining his own perception of his character.	Macbeth, correctly, believe it is the more masculine thing to know when to be peaceful and righteous – Lady Macbeth disagrees.
"We shall proceed no further in this business"	Macbeth tries to assert his masculinity by telling Lady Macbeth they'll stop their plans to kill Duncan. He fails.	He calls it a 'business' – he's detached from the whole plan, he doesn't feel a true part of it. He doesn't want to be a villain.

Essay 1: Macbeth

Read the following extract from Act 2, Scene 1, and then answer the question that follows.

Is this a dagger which I see before me,

The handle toward my hand? Come, let me clutch thee.

I have thee not, and yet I see thee still.

Art thou not, fatal vision, sensible

To feeling as to sight? or art thou but

A dagger of the mind, a false creation,

Proceeding from the heat-oppressed brain?

I see thee yet, in form as palpable

As this which now I draw.

Thou marshall'st me the way that I was going;

And such an instrument I was to use.

Mine eyes are made the fools o' the other senses,

Or else worth all the rest; I see thee still,

And on thy blade and dudgeon gouts of blood,

Which was not so before. There's no such thing:

It is the bloody business which informs

Thus to mine eyes. Now o'er the one halfworld

Nature seems dead, and wicked dreams abuse

The curtain'd sleep; witchcraft celebrates

Pale Hecate's offerings, and wither'd murder,

Alarum'd by his sentinel, the wolf,

Whose howl's his watch, thus with his stealthy pace.

With Tarquin's ravishing strides, towards his design

Moves like a ghost.

A bell rings

I go, and it is done; the bell invites me.

Hear it not, Duncan; for it is a knell

That summons thee to heaven or to hell.

Give him tending; He brings great news.

Exit Messenger

The raven himself is hoarse That croaks the fatal entrance of Duncan Under my battlements. Come, you spirits That tend on mortal thoughts, unsex me here, And fill me from the crown to the toe top-full Of direst cruelty! make thick my blood; Stop up the access and passage to remorse, That no compunctious visitings of nature Shake my fell purpose, nor keep peace between The effect and it! Come to my woman's breasts, And take my milk for gall, you murdering ministers, Wherever in your sightless substances You wait on nature's mischief! Come, thick night, And pall thee in the dunnest smoke of hell, That my keen knife see not the wound it makes, Nor heaven peep through the blanket of the dark, To cry 'Hold, hold!'

Essay 4: Macbeth

Read the following extract from Act I, Scene VII and then answer the question that follows.

MACBETH

If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well It were done quickly: if the assassination Could trammel up the consequence, and catch With his surcease success; that but this blow Might be the be-all and the end-all here, But here, upon this bank and shoal of time, We'ld jump the life to come. But in these cases We still have judgment here; that we but teach Bloody instructions, which, being taught, return To plague the inventor: this even-handed justice Commends the ingredients of our poison'd chalice To our own lips. He's here in double trust; First, as I am his kinsman and his subject, Strong both against the deed; then, as his host, Who should against his murderer shut the door, Not bear the knife myself. Besides, this Duncan Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been So clear in his great office, that his virtues Will plead like angels, trumpet-tongued, against The deep damnation of his taking-off; And pity, like a naked new-born babe, Striding the blast, or heaven's cherubim, horsed Upon the sightless couriers of the air, Shall blow the horrid deed in every eye, That tears shall drown the wind. I have no spur To prick the sides of my intent, but only Vaulting ambition, which o'erleaps itself And falls on the other.

Read the following extract from Act I, Scene VII and then answer the question that follows.

LADY MACBETH

Was the hope drunk

Wherein you dress'd yourself? hath it slept since?

And wakes it now, to look so green and pale

At what it did so freely? From this time

Such I account thy love. Art thou afeard

To be the same in thine own act and valour

As thou art in desire? Wouldst thou have that

Which thou esteem'st the ornament of life,

And live a coward in thine own esteem,

Letting 'I dare not' wait upon 'I would,'

Like the poor cat i' the adage?

MACBETH

Prithee, peace:

I dare do all that may become a man;

Who dares do more is none.

LADY MACBETH

What beast was't, then,

That made you break this enterprise to me?

When you durst do it, then you were a man;

And, to be more than what you were, you would

Be so much more the man. Nor time nor place

Did then adhere, and yet you would make both:

They have made themselves, and that their fitness now

Does unmake you. I have given suck, and know

How tender 'tis to love the babe that milks me:

I would, while it was smiling in my face,

Have pluck'd my nipple from his boneless gums,

And dash'd the brains out, had I so sworn as you

Have done to this.

Doctor

Do you mark that?

LADY MACBETH

The thane of Fife had a wife: where is she now?--What, will these hands ne'er be clean?--No more o' that, my lord, no more o' that: you mar all with this starting.

Doctor

Go to, go to; you have known what you should not.

Sit, worthy friends: my lord is often thus,

The fit is momentary; upon a thought

Feed, and regard him not. Are you a man?

MACBETH

Ay, and a bold one, that dare look on that Which might appal the devil.

LADY MACBETH

O proper stuff!

This is the very painting of your fear:

This is the air-drawn dagger which, you said,

Led you to Duncan. O, these flaws and starts,

Impostors to true fear, would well become

A woman's story at a winter's fire,

Authorized by her grandam. Shame itself!

Why do you make such faces? When all's done,

You look but on a stool.

MACBETH

Prithee, see there! behold! look! lo!

how say you?

Why, what care I? If thou canst nod, speak too.

If charnel-houses and our graves must send

Those that we bury back, our monuments

Shall be the maws of kites.
