Celebrate Fairfax, Inc. named the 2016 Lords and Ladies Fairfax at the Board of Supervisors meeting on Tuesday, June 7 at the Fairfax County Government Center.

“We’re proud to honor the 2016 Lords and Ladies Fairfax. Since 1984, each supervisor has selected a Lord and Lady to represent their district. Each honoree dedicates time to the betterment of their community,” said Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova.

Each year the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors selects two people from each district who have demonstrated superior volunteer service, heroism, or other special accomplishments to receive the award.

Later that evening, the Lords and Ladies were honored at a cocktail reception and special dinner and hosted by Great American Restaurants, Celebrate Fairfax, Inc., and the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

The Chairman’s Lord And Lady Fairfax

Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova

read the following description of Shirley Ginwright and Michael J. Hershman at the board meeting:

“Ms. Shirley Ginwright is one of the most devoted citizens of Fairfax County. She exemplifies community service in her countless efforts to bring people together and facilitate communal growth. Ms. Ginwright is the president of the Fairfax County NAACP, and served on the Fairfax County Chief of Police’s Diversity Council in 2013. Ms. Ginwright inspired and facilitated the establishment of the Communities of Trust Committee, and serves as the committee’s chairman. In addition, Ms. Ginwright served on the Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission, serving as the chair of the Subcommittee to Review Police Practices for Recruitment, Diversity, and Vetting. Ms. Ginwright has done invaluable work to make Fairfax County a leader in community and law enforcement engagement and is very deserving of the title Lady Fairfax.

“Mr. Michael J. Hershman is president and CEO of Fairfax Group, and is an internationally recognized leader on ethics and transparency in business and government. Mr. Hershman’s extensive resume begins with his career with U.S. military intelligence. He is a cofounder of Transparency International, a nonprofit coalition promoting

Handbook Oversight Re-ignites Controversy

Board adds sexual orientation and gender identity to student handbook.

BY TIM PETERSON
 CENTRE VIEW

Students in Fairfax County Public Schools started the 2015-2016 school year without the words “sexual orientation” or “gender identity” as part of the nondiscrimination guide within their student handbook.

While the School Board approved adding those two terms to the laundry list of other qualities and characteristics for which no employee or student in the system should be discriminated against or excluded because of, the new language didn’t automatically appear in the handbook, the Students Rights and Responsibilities.

The error was an “oversight,” according to Superintendent Dr. Karen Garza and board chair Pat Hynes.

In order for the handbook to reflect the current policy, which was updated with the additional terms in November 2014 and May 2015, the board needed to amend its action on approving the 2016-2017 student handbook.

What was billed in the agenda as a mere administrative action of aligning the handbook with existing policy became a heated debate at the School Board’s June 9 business meeting.

Opponents of passing the handbook update said the process had been rushed and that the community should have a chance to weigh in on changes that will directly affect how their children may be disciplined.

A private consultant was hired to review current practices affecting transgender students and compare them with other schools around the country, but the findings and conclusions have yet to be released.

At-large member Jeanette Hough, who was just elected to the board last fall, was critical that the body hasn’t been briefed in a year.

“We don’t have clarity as adults,” Hough said. “How can we ask students to sign something we haven’t discussed?”

Cappies Gala Honors Local High School Theater

The 17th Annual Cappies Gala honoring high school theater was held Sunday, June 12 at The Kennedy Center. Winning the top prizes for the Best Musical was Woodrow Wilson High School in the District for “Hair;” and winning Best Play was Duke Ellington School of the Arts in the District for “The Story.” This year’s Masters of Ceremony were Judy Bowns, Janie Strauss and Ed Monk, who is retiring from Chantilly High School this year.

This year’s show included 57 public and private high schools in Fairfax County, Arlington, Fauquier, Loudoun, Montgomery, and Prince William counties, and the cities of Falls Church, Alexandria, and Washington, D.C. The Cappies season extended from late October to early May.

The Cappies program was launched in the summer of 1999 by Judy Bowns, the Theatre Arts resource teacher with FCPS, and the late Bill Strauss (director, Capitol Steps), in cooperation with area theater teachers, for the purpose of celebrating and bringing public acclaim to high school theater.

both Schultz repeatedly emphasized the board had not discussed gender identity formally since last year's policy change.

"Why haven't we talked about it in 399 days?" Schultz asked.

Sully representative and another recently elected member Tom Wilson also cited the lack of discussion as a reason for his multiple amendments in favor of postponing a vote on approving the student handbook.

"We haven't had those conversations, those discussions," he said. "We need to do better."

Mount Vernon representative Karen Corbett Sanders admitted members "all agree we got here through a very messy process."

Though Hynes reminded that the Students Rights and Responsibilities is not "an implementation plan of policy."

"It's not a question of whether that policy is clear," Hynes said. The current handbook should, she continued, reflect "existing language of our policy at this point."

After nearly three hours of debate, the board voted 9-3 in favor of At-Large member Ryan McElveen's amendment to update and align the language in the student handbook. Hough, Schultz and Wilson were the "no" votes.

Support for Police in Reforms

Police commission recommendations go to Board of Supervisors for approval, implementation.

In some ways, the Fairfax County Ad Hoc Police Practices Review Commission, brainchild of Board of Supervisors Chairman Sharon Bulova, was a bit of a miracle.

The 32 voting commission members included at least nine representatives from Fairfax County Police; former Commonwealth's Attorney Robert Horan; current and former law enforcement officers with experience from the FBI, DEA, state police and others; other former county officials; mental health advocates; attorneys; high powered consultants. Ranks of those participating swelled to 80 when others were appointed the five subcommittees.

How could such a large, intense group with so many viewpoints get anything done? It seemed crazy to expect much. But Bulova, apparently, was crazy like a fox. Bulova and commission chair Michael Hershman, expressed unwavering commitment to the process.

The 142 recommendations, the result of democracy in action, provide support and more resources to the FCPD, while providing for transparency and public confidence.

Police, Commonwealth's Attorney Ray Morrogh, county attorneys and others provided answers to questions and consulted on recommendations every step of the way. The commission and subcommittees met for literally hundreds of hours over nine months. Individual members took on in-depth research projects and reported back to subcommittees.

Members of the Mental Health subcommittee, chaired by Del. Marcus Simon, traveled to Texas for a first-hand look at an effective Crisis Intervention program. In January, the Community Services Board, Police and Sheriff's Office launched Diversion First, to get people having a mental health crisis who come into contact with law enforcement into treatment instead of jail. If this were the only accomplishment of the police review commission, it would be an achievement.

The Independent Oversight and Investigations subcommittee unanimously recommended formation of an Independent Auditor and a Civilian Review Panel. Independent oversight is a national best practice, and these issues come before the Board of Supervisors next month.

The commission recommends the implementation of body worn cameras, a recommendation that appears to be set for delay. This might be necessary, but if so, the delay should come with a timetable for next steps.

Changing the culture from withholding information to sharing as much as possible, as soon as possible, and responding to Freedom of Information requests with as much information as possible are part of the recommendations of the Communications subcommittee. Police departments in Northern Virginia have invoked a blanket exemption to FOIA requests, which has been part of the erosion of public trust.

The robust collection and reporting of demographics covering all stops, frisks, citations, arrests, and use-of-force incidents by district station and magisterial district is also key to public trust and departmental excellence.

Bulova and the Board of Supervisors formed the commission in the wake of the death of John Geer in August of 2013. Geer, a Springfield resident, was standing unarmed with his hands up in the doorway of his own home when he was shot by Officer Adam Torres. Torres, charged with murder, was the first Fairfax County Police officer in the history of the department to be charged in such a death. Torres entered a guilty plea to involuntary manslaughter, with a likely sentence of 12 months; his sentencing is scheduled for next week.

Public outrage over Geer's death was compounded by obfuscation and silence, the failure to communicate, and a lack of public accountability. The police and county refused to release any information on the case for more than a year, and only then after repeated court orders. This tragedy and its aftermath no doubt had a negative impact on morale in the FCPD. The commission's recommendations acknowledge the excellence of the Fairfax police. It's a credit to the department that Chief Edwin Roessler aspires to make FCPD the best in the nation. It's a high bar, county residents expect no less, and steps in that direction are a positive reflection on every member of the department.

It now falls to Supervisor John Cook, chairman of the Public Safety Committee, to guide these recommendations through for approval by the Board of Supervisors overall. The process is underway, and deserves public attention to the details.

ADAMS Condemns Orlando Mass Shooting

The All Dulles Area Muslim Society (ADAMS) condemns the tragic and horrific Orlando mass shooting, and rejects any possible motive for this terrible act, whose perpetrator is still being investigated as a possible hate crime, mentally unbalanced individual, and/or lone wolf terrorist sympathizer.

We send our thoughts, prayers, and condolences to the families and loved ones of all those killed or injured.

We appreciate the Orlando Muslim community's response in condemning this attack, and we join in urging the entire Muslim community to take part in a blood donation drive for those injured in the attack.

For us in Virginia, this tragedy brings back horrible memories of April 2007, when Virginia Tech student Seung-Hui Cho killed 32 people on the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University campus in Blacksburg, Va.

This is also too reminiscent of the equally horrific hate crimes like the attack in South Carolina on an African American Church, attacks in movie theaters and schools and too many more. Such incidents are a too frequent reminder of the number of individuals driven by hate to commit unspeakable acts.

This horrific Orlando attack however should not be used to vilify and stereotype the peaceful and law abiding Muslim community in America. Islam absolutely condemns and forbids terrorism and extremism. The Quran, Islam's revered text, states: "Whoever kills a person, it is as though he has killed all mankind. And whoever saves a life, it is as though he had saved all mankind."

Islam promotes the sanctity of human life, the dignity of all humans, and a respect for human, civil rights. Islam teaches religious freedom and emphasizes the same universal moral values accepted by the majority of people of all backgrounds. These are the same principles on which the U.S. Constitution was established and the Bill of Rights was approved.

Muslims believe there is "No compulsion in faith" and we reject violence, hatred, and discrimination toward anyone on the basis of race, color, gender, disability, religion, familial status, sexual orientation and national origin.

ADAMS' mission is to provide religious, social, and educational services to enable the Muslim community to fulfill its responsibilities and contribute to the betterment of society www.adamscenter.org.

Chantilly Comes Back to Win State Championship

Chargers score three runs in bottom of seventh to beat Battlefield.

BY JON ROETMAN
CENTRE VIEW

The Chantilly baseball team's improbable comeback against Battlefield in the 6A state championship game on Saturday ended with a euphoric celebratory pile in the infield. It started with senior Forrest Wagner remaining resilient while facing a potential third straight loss in a state final.

Jared Enders' walk-off RBI single capped a three-run seventh inning for Chantilly and the Chargers captured the first state title in program history with a 3-2 win over Battlefield on June 11 at Robinson Secondary School.

After losing to Western Branch in the 2014 state championship game and falling to Madison in the 2015 state final, Chantilly trailed Battlefield 2-0 and was two outs away from yet another runner-up finish when Wagner started a memorable comeback in motion.

Wagner had started on the mound for the Chargers. He battled, keeping Chantilly in the game, but after the left-hander issued his sixth base on balls, he was pulled with one out in the top of the seventh inning and the Chargers trailing 2-0. Chantilly reliever Jake Pasquale got the next two outs and the Chargers came to bat in the bottom of the seventh needing at least two runs after managing just two hits in the first six innings.

With one out in the bottom of the seventh, Wagner, who had less than his best on the mound, ripped a single, bringing the tying run to the plate. It was Wagner's second hit of the day.

"He's an amazing kid that just keeps battling," Chantilly head coach Kevin Ford said. "You saw what he had today — he was throwing fastballs because he couldn't throw anything else, yet he didn't hang his head. He got tired there at the end, so we kind of had to go to somebody else, but he battled and battled and battled and that is Forrest Wagner. We don't get here without him. He won a district championship on the mound; he won a region championship on the mound and got us to the end here. ... We don't keep going if he doesn't get a base hit there."

Second baseman Chris Pitura followed with a groundball to shortstop that resulted in a fielder's choice and an error, giving Chantilly runners at the corners with one out. Designated hitter Ryan Krueger then drove in a run with a sacrifice fly, cutting the Battlefield lead to 2-1.

With Chantilly down to its final out and the tying run on second base, right fielder and No. 9 hitter Garrett Snedeker hit a fly ball to right that dropped for a game-tying RBI triple.

"Everyone was a little nervous," Snedeker said. "We know we're a great team, so we just kept our heads up. We usually have, like, one big inning per game. We knew it was coming up soon and we just got it done that last inning.

"... When you hit a pop fly, you've just got to think that it's going to drop, so I was just running the bases as fast as I could. Fortunately enough, it got over his head. I was already halfway to second, so that enabled me to get to third."

Enders, a first-team All-6A North region selection, completed the comeback with an RBI single.

Chantilly senior Forrest Wagner gives head coach Kevin Ford a celebratory bath after the Chargers came from behind to beat Battlefield 3-2 in the 6A state championship game on Saturday at Robinson Secondary School.

After rounding first, Enders fell to his back and was mobbed by his teammates.

"It's crazy," Enders said. "Down to our last three outs, thought my high school career might end with a third straight loss in the state championship, but — I don't know, I can't even believe that just happened, to be honest with you ..."

Wagner received a no-decision on the mound. He allowed two runs on four hits in 6 1/3 innings. He walked six and struck out one.

Pasquale pitched 2/3 of an inning and earned the win.

Battlefield starting pitcher James Beasley suffered the loss despite surrendering two hits and no runs through the first six innings.

Battlefield took a 1-0 lead in the top of the sixth when catcher Tyler Solomon led off with a home run over the left-field fence. After center fielder Oakley Herrewig hit a two-out single, pinch hitter Jonah Seagars fouled off four two-strike pitches before delivering an RBI triple and increasing the

The Gap Year Trend

The pros, cons of taking a break in academic studies before college.

By MARILYN CAMPBELL

Rappelling down an 80-foot waterfall, the ground appearing miles away, zip lining through thickets of dense, steamy rain forest, treating wounded travelers in the wilderness and engaging in other limit-pushing adventures — that's how three local young adults spent their time after graduating from high school.

"Scuba was definitely my favorite part of the course because of a strong reinforcement that I would enjoy working as a scuba instructor one day," said A.J. Galindo or Alexandria. His adventure was part of Outward Bound's Costa Rica program.

Galindo took what is known as a "gap year," which means taking an academic break for a year or a semester before beginning college. Gap year programs offer students an opportunity for "personal growth in ... leadership, self-awareness [and] ... character development," said Soizic Hagege, spokeswoman for Outward Bound Costa Rica.

After completing his Outward Bound program, Galindo enrolled in Thompson Rivers University in British Columbia, Canada.

The American Gap Association (AGA), an organization that accredits and sets standards for gap year programs, reports that taking a gap year has become an increasingly popular choice for American students. The association has seen renewed interest since Malia Obama's recent decision to take a year off before beginning her studies at Harvard University.

A RECENT AGA STUDY showed that students who took a gap year over performed academically in college. The organization released the results from a survey of its 2015 alumni. More than 90 percent of the alumni surveyed credited their gap year with increasing their self-confidence and maturity as well as offering time for personal reflection.

Uncertainty about future plans is one of the reasons students decide to take time off between high school and college. "Some don't know yet what they want to study, or want to take the opportunity to travel or work to get experience in the real world," said Francesca Reed, associate vice president for Enrollment Management and director of Graduate Enrollment Services at Marymount University. "A gap year ... can be a great opportunity for a person to mature and discover their interests before pursuing a college degree."

Experiences gained during a year away from school can offer clarity, says Jim McClellan, PhD, dean of Liberal Arts at Northern Virginia Community College in Alexandria. "Few students know what they want from life or what will be their life's work when they first enroll in college," he said. "Few finish college in the same major where they began. Sometimes a year of reflection can help a student focus. A year abroad or in some environment beyond their previous experience can offer new perspectives. Working at a 7/11 convinced me I needed to continue college."

A.J. Galindo of Alexandria, Benjamin Waters of Fairfax and Kirby Nassetta of Arlington participated in Outward Bound Costa Rica's Gap Year program.

While the AGA reports that 90 percent of students are actively enrolled in a four-year institution of higher learning within one year of completing a gap year, the organization acknowledges that this option is not for everyone. The decision to delay college comes with a caveat that students may lose academic momentum they gained through high school.

"There is a set of skills that a student learns moving through each grade level. Like playing tennis or any other sport, the more practice, the better the performance," said McClellan. "Laying out for a year leads to skills atrophy. [For some students] it is better to continue on while in top form than to try to rebuild lost skills and regain good study habits."

Even for students who feel certain that they want to take a gap year, Reed advises completing the college application process if obtaining a college degree is a future goal.

"It is easier while they are still in school to gather letters of recommendation and use the resources of guidance departments when applying for college," she said. "It will also keep them focused with a future plan. If the student decides to go abroad or work full-time, it may be difficult to request a letter of recommendation while they are busy overseas or with work. Once accepted into college, they can defer their admission a semester or a year."

Boosted by a belief in the benefits of a gap year experience, a growing number of colleges and universities are supporting students who want to take time off before college. "Most colleges are accommodating and will move their start date to the following year," said Reed. "Colleges and universities like to see students with a plan and a degree of motivation before entering college, and the gap year may be the perfect opportunity to do just that."

Researching opportunities, thinking about goals and having a plan in place about how the time will be spent are critical components of a successful gap year. "They shouldn't wait until they graduate to start planning," said Reed. "Do you want to travel abroad? Learn a new language or improve your foreign language skills? Volunteer either at home or abroad? Explore career interests? It's important to have something meaningful in mind. There are many programs available for students that are considering a gap year."

McClellan suggests an alternate option for students and parents who are concerned that a gap year could slow a student's academic progress. "Spending the junior year abroad is a better idea since no academic momentum is lost and the experience of living and studying abroad is of incalculable value," he said. "Plus, with two years of college completed and added maturity, the junior year abroad is more meaningful than a gap year."

Control And/Or Lack Thereof

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

If being diagnosed with a "terminal" form of lung cancer makes you feel anything, it is loss of control; along with all the anxieties associated with feeling powerless. As I may have written previously, "terminal" is all it's cracked up to be. That prognosis hangs over your head, almost physically – or so it seems, but most assuredly: emotionally and spiritually. The trick is; there is no trick.

Compartmentalizing, deluding, pretending, denying, hoping, praying, laughing and crying are but a few of the methods I've employed over these past seven-plus years in an attempt to overcome that original "13 month to two year" prognosis. Being open to diet and lifestyle changes and non-Western alternatives, and maintaining a positive attitude and a self-effacing sense of humor have likewise contributed – or so I've been told, to my above-average years of survival.

I wouldn't characterize these last seven years, however, as my friend Sean has joked, as "being on the clock," but cancer patients are usually on something. And the "something" we're most typically on is, a schedule. For me: 24/7 urine collection on Tuesday, pre-chemotherapy lab work on Wednesday (two days prior to Friday infusion), pre-infusion medication taken at home beginning Thursday and continuing through Saturday, Friday infusion, post-chemo weak for the next seven to 10 days; repeat every four weeks; quarterly C.A.T. scans followed by a quarterly face-to-face appointment with my oncologist to discuss the scan/results, P.E.T. scans every six months, M.R.I. of the brain once a year; plus my daily regimen of pills, supplements, apple cider vinegar, alkaline water, wheat grass, among other miscellaneous presumptive anti-cancer options.

Given this chronology of treatment and routine/maintenance, it's extremely difficult (let me amend that: I'll say challenging instead) to plan, schedule, coordinate, arrange and commit to social activities, especially those involving travel away from home. Because, at least for me, the cancer stuff comes first and is foremost – as does my daily routine – so anything that upsets that figurative apple cart is yet another complication/blip on my radar that initially serves no particular purpose other than reinforcing some of the less obvious problems/negatives of living life as a cancer patient undergoing treatment.

Perhaps understanding this lack of control/fairly rigid set of circumstances – as well as my recurring attempts at extending my life as long as possible – my oncologist, to his credit, has regularly given me opportunities to stop, start, change, etc. my treatment/schedule in order to enhance the quality of my life and give me back some control. Rarely have I taken advantage, however. As much as I respect and appreciate his opinion, it has always been difficult for me to find that balance. The logistics of juggling my mandated routine along with my personal routine – and dealing with the subsequent fears of not doing/maintaining either, given the fact that I've survived so long adhering to them, is a hurdle I've been unable to overcome.

I've often heard it said that laughter is the best medicine. I wonder though, as it pertains to cancer patients like myself, currently still on treatment, if breaking/braking routine – and saying the heck with it, for awhile anyway, is not the pause that refreshes? As much as I like to laugh, I'd like to live a little, too.

An Unexpected State Title

Comini wins state championship in first year as Chantilly boys' tennis head coach.

BY AARON LUNDMARK
CENTRE VIEW

The Chantilly boys' tennis team headed into Saturday afternoon's state championship match after making one of the more unseen runs ever by a Northern Virginia tennis program.

With a champion-like effort in the final match, the No. 2 doubles team of freshmen Manu Balasubramanian and Shaun Ganju took a victory in the final match, giving Chantilly the 5-3 win over Cosby High School at George Mason University to win the Virginia 6A boys' team state championship.

To make it to the state tournament, the Chargers had to go through a lot. The improbable run started with them as the No. 3 seed in the 6A north region tournament after a 7-3 regular season.

"They've worked incredibly hard all season," said first-year head coach Mike Comini. "What I've seen the most in them is that they're competitors."

Comini knew a little bit about bringing home state championships as he brought five home for Herndon High School's gymnastics team before arriving at Chantilly.

Before reaching the state tournament, the Chargers upset Westfield and Langley before beating Madison to win the school's first ever region title in boys' tennis.

"Our battles with Westfield and Langley were something else — the tie breakers went on forever," said Comini. "But that character they showed as well as their no-quit attitude inspired me to be a better coach."

The team has been led by senior Sean Moran, as well as junior Josh Melynck, and freshmen Balasubramanian and Ganju.

Balasubramanian and Ganju both won their singles matches to go along with their title-clinching doubles match. Melynck also won his No. 2 singles match.

"During our matches we're really focused on winning," said Melynck. "So whether it means changing up how we play to get the win, we focus on it."

Even though No. 1 player Sean Moran lost his singles match, senior Abiral Pandey won his No. 5 match in singles, which helped propel Chantilly to the championship.

"It's kind of like the miracle on ice," said Comini jokingly. "We never thought we'd make it this far. I told them it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience, so enjoy it. I never saw fear in them."

Bobcats' lead to 2-0.

Battlefield would take the two-run lead into the bottom of the seventh, but Chantilly found a way to score three runs.

"It's really just great for these kids," Ford said. "They have fought and fought and fought and to have a game like this, where we really didn't play that well, it would have been a tough one to sit with, but they came through there at the end and got it done."

Chantilly finished the season with a 25-2 record and won championships at the Conference 5, 6A North region and state levels. The Chargers defeated Battlefield in the regular season, in the region championship game and the state final.

"It's a crazy feeling," Wagner said. "We've been here the past two years, lost it. It's a new feeling, I guess. It's so much more than just the regional or district 'ship."
