How to Conjure Magick Word-Doku Puzzles

Magick Word-Doku puzzles come in two sizes: six-letter magick words and nine-letter magick words.

Six-Letter Word-Doku Puzzles

A grid of six squares by six squares can also be divided into six smaller grids of two squares by three squares. You want to fill in the grid with the letters from your Word-Doku word. For example, the word “magick” has six letters. Summon your powers of logic and elimination to fill the grid with the letters m, a, g, i, c, and k to fill in the grid. It’s just like Sudoku except that you use letters instead of numbers.

A Word-Doku puzzle is finished when:

- Each horizontal row contains each letter exactly once.
- Each vertical column contains each letter exactly once.
- Each smaller two-by-three grid contains each letter exactly once.
- Your Word-Doku word will appear with the letters in the correct order only once. Note that the word may appear backwards or diagonally.

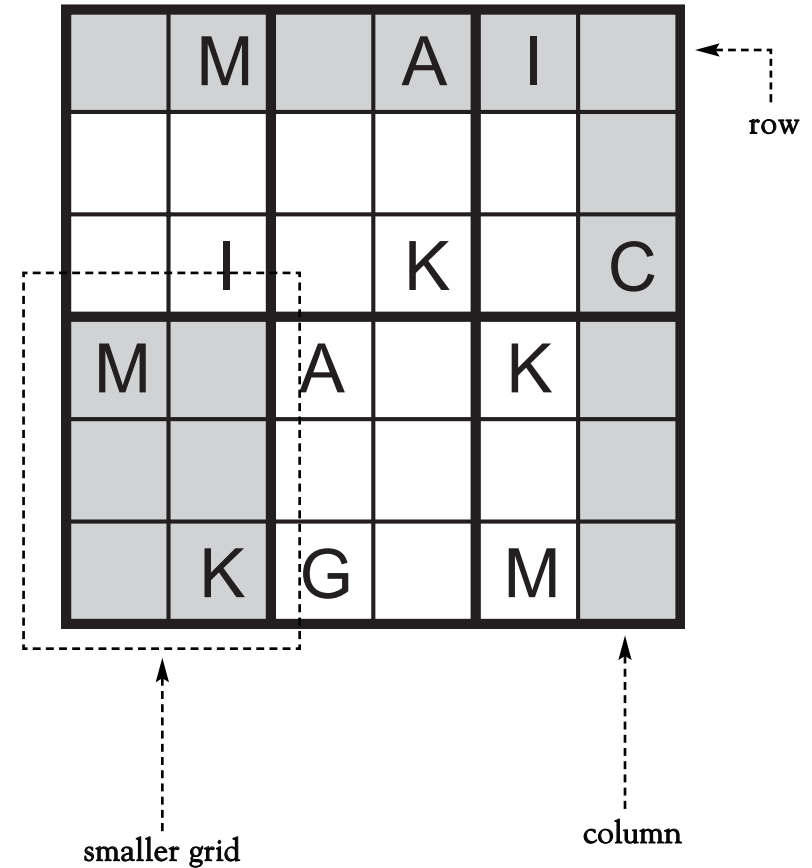

In each Word-Doku puzzle, several correct letters have already been entered for you.

Nine-Letter Word-Doku Puzzles

Nine-letter Word-Doku puzzles follow the same rules as six-letter puzzles. The larger grid is nine squares by nine squares and can be divided into six smaller grids of three squares by three squares. These are more challenging because they use more letters.

A Summary of Magick Creatures and People

A wizard who has become a master may work with other adepts, or experts, to summon all kinds of creatures such as giants, gnomes, or a goblin. Witches often work together in groups known as covens. Together they can summon strange beasts such as the manticore, which has the body of a lion, the tail of a scorpion, and a human head! Magick can also be used to turn a common animal, such as a lizard, into a magical one, such as a wyvern—which is part dragon, part serpent.

Magick users often rely on birds such as the falcon or the larger arctic gyrfalcon to carry messages for long distances. When traveling themselves, magicians may encounter forest spirits such as nymphs or a sylvan. A wise mystic will be careful to stay away from the ghouls who spend their time near graveyards, munching on the dead. In the desert, it is best to avoid the sphinx, a creature with the head of a woman, the body of a lion and the wings of an eagle. As the Egyptians can tell you, her riddles are difficult to solve. A knight or prince often uses magick to rescue a damsel.

Some magicians become famous. Merlin was a well-known wizard who lived as a hermit and gave King Arthur the magickal sword Excalibur.

Magicians often study other subjects as well. An alchemist can turn any metal into gold, and an herbalist knows all about plants—often an important spell ingredient! These professions have a history that goes farther back than ancient Greece, where it is said the Furies, or goddesses of anger, would punish you if you committed a crime. Such a crime could be turning a dead person into a walking, talking zombie!

A Summary of
Magick Spells and Potions

Valuable magick ingredients such as argent—an ancient name for silver—are often kept in cupboards that can only be opened by charms or brief poems spoken to perform a spell. For potions, ingredients such as sparkling fairy dust or the poisonous herb wolfsbane may be mixed in a pot over the hearth fire or in a goblet. Or a wizard might drop some powder from a ground-up garnet stone into the flames of a candle while speaking a magic word, such as presto! A flower or herb can be used to make a tisane, or tea, that heals.

A spell might create a mirage or vision in the flames, or it could open a vortex to another dimension. Spells can be used to create an amulet or two out of ancient relics with a magick symbol on them. The amulet may shine with a glowing luster and bestow the power of flight. A spell called a glamor morphs a person so they look like someone else. Sometimes saying special words a certain number of times helps cast a spell.

Some potions can be mixed only during certain seasons such as winter or spring, or when certain stars of the zodiac are bright in the sky. Someone playing tricks with dark magick might end up jinxed or cursed. Going in to a trance can be dangerous, and so can a love charm. Be careful you don't regret what you wished for.

A Summary of the Magickal Life

Magicians often live in a gothic-style castle, with a labyrinth of shrubbery in the yard. An intricate mosaic on the floor may hide an enigma—or riddle—in its picture. Witches might work with the nature spirits to grow a lush garden of magick herbs. The yard may even include a menhir, which is a standing stone like those in Stonehenge. Some wicked magick-users live in dark crypts underground, as if to entomb themselves.

Cloaks must be worn to keep warm when traveling through a portal into the realms of shadow, since dark forces often create a drop in temperature. A wizard might wear a turban on his head, or a pointed hat.

A magick-user sometimes acts as an oracle, using magickal foresight to predict the future. Dreams often carry mystical messages, and so can a nightmare. If one's crystal ball is cloudy, palmistry can be used to search people's hands for clues to their fate.

Though magick fills users with wonder, the fabled powers must be used with wisdom. Secret spells written on parchment must be protected by a cipher, or code, that will unlock them. Witches and wizards would do well to learn a variety of skills such as speaking Elvish, the elf language, or hypnotism. This helps one gain membership in one of the magick profession's guilds.
