THE PUBLICATION OF THE SOUTHWEST MINNESOTA ARTS & HUMANITIES COUNCIL, INC.

2012 Prairie Star: Malena Handeen

The Southwest Minnesota Arts and Humanities Council is pleased to announce Malena Handeen of Milan, MN as the recipient of the 2012 Prairie Star Award, which honors a distinguished artist whose work and activities have best exemplified the highest quality of work in the SMAHC region.

Fred Cogelow of Willmar, Malena’s nominator, describes her as a “skilled musician and unique vocalist. Malena, to my mind, is as close as a mortal can come to being an animating force. Malena’s work is an authentic reflection of her own indigenous, complex, joyous individuality. She uses her music to give back to the community and to create community. She manifests a compulsion to revel in the thrill of the senses and a drive to experiment and excel.”

AN INTERVIEW WITH MALENA HANDEEN

Where did you grow up and go to school?

I was born at Moonstone farm outside Montevideo in 1976. I grew up there, going to school in Montevideo until I was 16. I was accepted to the Minnesota Center for Arts Education, now known as Perpich High School for the Arts. Then I left high school for Colorado and snowboarding but returned a year later and received my diploma at Montevideo. I took classes from the U of M Morris and the College of Visual Arts in St. Paul interspersed with periods of travel in the US, Mexico, and Europe which served to be considerably educational as well.

Tell us about your career.

My career is a balance of three focuses: Farming, which provides the stability of my family's livelihood and enables me to eat as well as I do; Music, which affords an outlet for my voice and a purpose for all the mad writing I engage in; and Painting and printmaking which I feel most passionately about. Though I do commissioned work from time to time, my portraits, especially of myself and other women, are the pieces I am most proud of along with certain depictions of storms. My interest in human form and atmospheric light has consumed more of my cumulative thoughts than anything else. I am captivated by beauty in the natural world and hope I can serve to honor and share it. I enjoy solitude and the companionship of my wiser or more child-like self, depending. I am apprenticing in tattooing.

When did you first begin to be interested in music?

I became interested in performing music at some very young age as my parents are both musicians. I still play regularly with them. My brother Daniel Handeen may have been as large a factor as anything in my formative years as he is and was a voracious student of music. I gathered many varied influences through him and prefer him as a bandmate for the ease of communication with him. My aunt Dale Handeen was also influential as a songwriter and wielder of an amazing inimitable voice.

The SMAHC Gallery will feature works by Joyce Meyer of Canby from September 6 through October 2, 2012. This exhibition started out as Joyce's project to incorporate multiple photographic images blended to express diversity and commonality of human nature, emotional expressions and purpose of rural culture. Joyce applied for, and received, a grant from the SW MN Arts & Humanities Council to complete this project in February of 2011.

An art teacher and owner of RJMeyerart Portrait Studio in rural Canby, Joyce used only available light to portray the natural textures in the environment with no added flash. Subject matter was drawn from everyday rural and small town life situations. Joyce said, "With multiple layers of a scene I would like to depict a deeper understanding of character, emotion and life as we know it in southwestern Minnesota. Each layer requires careful blending of opacity, texture and tone to give the feeling required of each subject and its surroundings."

Joyce has exhibited her expressions of rural culture many times over the years in both Minnesota and South Dakota.

The public is invited to visit the SMAHC art gallery at its new downtown location (114 North 3rd Street, Marshall) and talk with the artist at a reception from 5:00 PM - 7:00 PM on Thursday, September 6. Regular SMAHC Gallery hours are Monday - Friday, 8:00 am to 12:00 pm and 1:00 - 4:30 pm.

This activity is funded, in part, by an appropriation from the Minnesota State Legislature with money from the State's general fund, and its arts and cultural heritage fund that was created by vote of the people of Minnesota on November 4, 2008.

Davis speaks on the arts as an economic development tool

On August 14 through 17, SMAHC presented free Lunch & Learn sessions in Litchfield, Canby, Slayton, and Jackson on "The Arts as an Economic Development Tool for Rural Communities," led by John Davis. Davis has dedicated his career to working in small town arts and community development, and is a nationally recognized leader on rural arts issues. His work with the arts in New York Mills, MN has resulted in the town being recognized as a national model for rural economic development, and he has helped put Lanesboro, MN in the national spotlight as one of the premiere small town arts destinations in America.

Davis' message was well-received by the 102 attendees, including artists and representatives from arts organizations, city governments, chambers of commerce, and economic development authorities. Participants came away from the workshop starting to see the potential of the arts in their communities to provide future benefits throughout the SMAHC region.

This activity was made possible by an appropriation from the Minnesota State Legislature with money from the State's general fund, and its arts and cultural heritage fund that was created by vote of the people of Minnesota on November 4, 2008.

Talk about your songwriting and recording process.

I write out of frustration. I sing words that I can't find a way to speak. I play music when there is nothing left to say. Like crying or holding hands with someone, it's a way to communicate that which is difficult to articulate. I sometimes sing about painting. Sometimes I paint about song. When my children were small, I strung their words into all my music, especially Hazel's, who sang non-stop. Much has been inspired by motherhood. My recordings were made, at first, just so I would remember my own songs and so that friends could have them and learn to play them. I prefer to play my songs than to listen to them, of course. I had recorded with other artists and had live recordings, but I didn't have a product I could promote until I was awarded a grant from SMAHC for the CD project. The album Toothsome Favorites was recorded in the old Loose Tooth Saloon of Art which has since burned to the ground. The new Tooth, which is currently under construction, shall yield more imagery and more songs than its predecessor, in due time.

Who has encouraged you?

I would mention Jerry Ostensoe, Colleen Frey, Carol Ford and Brad Fernholz as artists who encouraged me to record my music and to whom I am grateful for the push. If a person wants healing and challenges themselves to resonate truthfully the angst and mirth that pounds in human chests, it is worth doing it well. You aren't magically gifted without being in the practice of a thing. I am just trying to stay in the practice so I can have the magic, and by magic I mean happiness, which is healing and somewhat contagious.

Tell us a little bit about your family.

My husband, Mike Jacobs, is good and clever. He bakes breads and grows the finest vegetables possible. He is a master of pie crusts. He is very tolerant of my eccentricities and a sharp dresser, though colorblind. The seasons dictate much of our daily lives. When the snow is perfect I cannot resist making domed alcoves. I will work on a snow fort like a boss while the weather is right. As I write this, it is the end of August and the fruits of the tomato, melon and zucchini beds must be gathered almost daily. My children are swiftly showing me how to be a better person. They are Hazel and Arlo, currently 12 and 9.

Congratulations to Malena Handeen on her accomplishments and on being named the SMAHC Prairie Star of 2012. The award will be officially presented to Malena at the SMAHC Annual Celebration on October 28 in Milan. Please come and help us honor her.
