Historical Drama Filled with Texas Heroes

Dan Rice
FYI Television, Inc.

While the siege of the Alamo remains an iconic tale of bravery under fire, the rest of the Texas Revolution is largely unknown by most people outside of the Lone Star State, which attained its unique distinction of being a sovereign republic by way of a most dramatic course. The HISTORY Channel provides a comprehensive retelling of this epic saga with the 10-hour miniseries "Texas Rising," premiering on Memorial Day, Monday at 8 p.m., and then continuing Tuesday at 8 p.m. and on the next three Mondays at 8 p.m.

The story begins in the aftermath of the Alamo's fall, as the tyrannical Gen. Antonio López de Santa Anna (Olivier Martinez) demonstrates his policy of no mercy by executing the remaining prisoners. Meanwhile, another survivor (Ray Liotta) rises from a pile of the dead, steeped in outrage, to begin his stealthy mission of vengeance as an assassin in the shadows. Miles away in the Texian camp at Gonzales, Gen. Sam Houston (Bill Paxton) is beset by his officers to attack Santa Anna at once, but he is convinced such would be folly until he has gathered enough troops to make a difference. When news arrives about the slaughter of their comrades at the Alamo, his men cry out for action, but Houston, with the backing of the Texas Rangers, holds firm, promising them that at the right time, on the right battlefield, they will get their blood.

Paxton ("Hatfields & McCoy's") is the ideal actor to portray Houston. A native of Fort Worth, he was instilled with respect for Texas history, and the resemblance he bears to the revered leader comes as no coincidence. "I'm related to Sam Houston, interestingly enough," he reveals. "His mother's name was Elizabeth Paxton. She was my great, great, great aunt; he was my second cousin three times removed. So, I wanted to get it right.

Directed by Oscar nominee Roland Joffé ("The Killing Fields"), the miniseries co-stars Brendan Fraser as Billy Anderson, a Texas Ranger with a Comanche son and other ties to the fierce tribe; Kris Kristofferson as President Andrew Jackson and Jeffrey Dean Morgan as the famed courier, guide and spy Deaf Smith, for whom a Texas county is named. The state map is filled with the names of other Texas heroes portrayed here: Henry Karnes (Christopher McDonald), Col. James Fannin (Rob Morrow), Thomas Rusk (Jeff Fahey), Bigfoot Wallace (Robert Baker), Mirabeau B. Lamar (Chad Michael Murray) and the storied Texas Ranger Jack Hays (Max Thieriot). This roster of lesser-known Lone Star luminaries adds an authenticity and scope that separates the production from earlier, more simplistic efforts.

"I think we all grew up seeing John Wayne and Richard Widmark in 'The Alamo,'" Paxton allows, "and I think we had kind of a false reality of what that world was and what the history was, so it's always been brought up as an Anglo versus Mexican story. Whereas, you have to remember, [when] Santa Anna became president, one of the first things he did was he threw out the Mexican constitution in 1824, then he makes himself dictator, and so a lot of Mexican people were not very happy about this. There was a lot of civil war when he decided to throw out that constitution. In Zacatecas they broke away, and in Texas they were breaking away. So, this is a story, really, that's more inclusive than we've seen before. You've got two cultures, but they're not against each other. This story shows that Mexicans, you know, Anglos, they've all come together to fight a common enemy."

To their credit, executive producer Leslie Greif and his co-writers Darrell Fetty and Ted Mann do the best job yet of depicting the Tejano-Texian front against Santa Anna, noting the crucial wartime contributions of such prominent Tejanos as Juan Seguín (Raúl Méndez) and Manuel Flores (Gerardo Taracena). But the writers move out of bounds at times in their agenda of leveling the racial playing field, like flipping an anachronistic slur against illegal immigrants, with which a Mexican officer describes the vanquished Fannin as being wet on his back from having illicitly crossed the Sabine River into Mexican Texas.

And while the use of so many historical figures

After the fall of the Alamo, General Sam Houston (Bill Paxton) strategically builds his volunteer forces for a decisive victory against Mexican tyrant Santa Anna on "Texas Rising," an epic 10-hour miniseries premiering on Memorial Day, Monday at 8 p.m. on HISTORY.

is commendable, they are presented alongside the embellished legend of Emily West (played by Cynthia Addai-Robinson), an indentured servant of mixed race said to have been a fateful distraction for Santa Anna, who calls her his "yellow rose" to ensure she is recognized as the fabled inspiration of "The Yellow Rose of Texas." The writers recast her as an Alamo survivor out for vengeance, and then push the character for a little more erotic mileage by placing her in an absurd love triangle with Sam Houston.

Mythical warts and all, however, "Texas Rising" has enough real-life drama and heroes to make the miniseries both worthy and inspirational viewing. And who knows, this reminder of how the first Texans risked it all to free their homeland from outside oppression just might add fuel to the recent secession movement.

"Let's hope so," Paxton says. "It didn't work in Scotland, but it's gonna work in Texas."

TRIVIA CHAIN

Memorial Day Movies

1. A great many fine films have been made to commemorate our valiant fighting forces who died in historic battles, such as this all-star 1962 depiction of the World War II events of D-Day.
2. Another WWII drama, this tale of the titular Pacific battle was one of the few films in which star John Wayne's character perished.
3. And who could recall the casualties of WWII without thinking of the reason we entered it, retold in this 2001 romantic drama.
4. Mel Gibson stars in this 2002 story of the first major

- battle in the American phase of the Vietnam War.
5. Oscar nominee Ridley Scott directed this 2001 action drama about a near-disastrous 1993 mission of Army Rangers in Somalia.
 6. This Oscar-nominated drama of 2009 focuses on an Iraq War veteran's ill-advised romance while a member of the Casualty Notification Team.
 7. And this 2004 historical drama finds a beloved frontiersman and his fellow volunteers bravely facing a far-superior force as they attempt to hold an old mission.

David Letterman

New York City has a rat problem. There must be three to four million rats running loose, but finally, Mayor de Blasio has declared war on rats. Here's what he's going to do. He's going to bring in more coyotes.

These are not regular rats. They're enormous, and they're brazen. They have to bait the rat traps with lasagna.

Jimmy Fallon

People are being really picky about the upcoming election. I read that Americans do not want the next president to be a first-term senator, be over 65 or have a former president in the family. Then the Secret Service said, "Hey, whoever slips through slips through. No promises."

A house panel in Texas has approved full marijuana legalization for the state. Yeah, meaning Texas could go from having dude ranches to "Dude, ranches."

Jimmy Kimmel

The NFL has found it was more probable than not that Patriots employees deflated balls on purpose and that Tom Brady was generally aware of it. The response has been divided. Some people believe the Patriots are cheaters who should be fined and forced to forfeit the games, and other people are from Boston.

Moments in Time

On May 30, 1806, Revolutionary War veteran and future President Andrew Jackson kills Charles Dickinson in a duel for printing libelous comments about his wife, Rachel. Jackson had married a woman who was not technically divorced, even though her husband had abandoned her.

On May 28, 1902, Owen Wister's "The Virginian" is published. The book was the first "serious" Western and one of the most influential in the genre. It became a sensation almost overnight, selling more than 1.5 million copies by 1938 and inspiring four movies and a Broadway play.

On May 26, 1927, Henry Ford and his son Edsel drive the 15 millionth Model T Ford out of their factory on the final day of production. The Model T had a 20-horsepower, four-cylinder engine and could travel up to 45 mph.

On May 31, 1962, in Israel, Nazi SS officer Adolf Eichmann is executed for his crimes against humanity during World War II. Following the war, Eichmann was captured by U.S. troops, but escaped before having to face the Nuremberg War Crimes Tribunal. Eichmann fled to Argentina, where he was found by agents of the Mossad, Israel's intelligence service.

On May 25, 1977, the first of George Lucas' blockbuster Star Wars movies hits U.S. theaters. Star Wars was soon a pop-culture phenomenon. Over the years it has spawned more feature films, TV series and an entire industry's worth of comic books, toys and video games.

On May 27, 1994, two decades after being expelled from the Soviet Union, Nobel laureate Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn returns to Russia. In 1945, Solzhenitsyn was sentenced to eight years of hard labor for criticizing Stalin in a letter to a friend. Foreign publication of his "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" led to his expulsion from the USSR in 1974.
